A Pretty Party at Fogg's Opera House, South Weymouth.

Last Saturday evening a very pretty party was held in Fogg's Opera House South Weymouth, given under the direction of Hamilton Tirrell.

The matrons were—Mrs. A. C. Drinkwater of Braintree; Mrs. Edwin Clapp, East Weymouth; Mrs. H. A. Thomas and Mrs. A. E. Kingsbury of South Weymouth.

Music was furnished by Gott's orchestra of Boston and dancing was from 6 30 to 10.30.

The last dance on the first half of the order was a "German" and the favors used were handsome pink and white carnations.

Among those present were the following:

Mr and Mrs Harry Marrs
" " C. H. Tinkham

Norfolk Cycle Club.

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Directors was held last Tuesday evening. One name was added to the list of membership and one application was received.

The bowling team was entertained by the Codman club of Dorchester last evening.

Next Tuesday evening, the bowling team will be entertained by the Melrose Highland club.

The bowling team will play its first match game in the league next Thursday evening, Nov. 12th on the home alleys. The opposing team will be the Philedians of Waltham and a good game may be expected as each team will be anxious to win its first game. There should be a good attendance of "rooters."

"YAWCOB" IS A READER.

Charles Follen Adams, the Poet, Joins the Ranks of Platform Reciters.

Among all the poets of America few occupy a warmer niche in the hearts of the people than Charles Follen Adams, of Boston, the genial author of the "Yawcob Strauss" ballads, which are known and recited wherever humor is appreciated. To his many admirers it will be pleasant news to hear that Mr. Adams has fallen in with the prevailing spirit of the times and has entered the lists of those authors who read from their own works. It seems to be accepted that no one can interpret the things he has written like the author himself, particularly if he possesses elocutionary ability; added to which there is always the pleasure to be found in seeing a favorite author in the flesh.

Mr. Adams comes upon the professional platform under the most favorable auspices. For some time his remarkable cleverness as a reader has been known in the society circles of Boston, and he has had the unqualified praise of men like Oliver Wendell Holmes, Edward Everett Hale, John T. Trowbridge, and Professor Emerson, of the famous school of oratory which bears his name. "Yawcob's" dialect is delightful, his manner graceful, and his humor most infectious—so say all who have heard him recite. Club, society, lyceum, and church entertainments are his specialty. The author reader is under the management of Mr. W. D. Quint, literary editor of the Boston Traveler.

What Are Juries For?

The leniency of juries is evidently as marked in Gotham as at Dedham. An assistant district attorney who has tried more than 300 persons indicted by a grand jury for violating the Raines Excise law says he has obtained hardly fifteen convictions. Clear cases of infringement go unpunished because juries go beyond their province and consider the penalty.

Magazine Notes.

Every one will be interested in Miss Frances A. Walker's article in THE SYMPOSIUM for November, called "An American Woman's Glimpse of Oxford." The paper describes in a charmingly picturesque manner the quaint old college town, and the article is profusely illustrated by photographs, pen and ink sketches and engravings. The very atmosphere of the old English town seems to have been caught by the writer. The paper is the leading pictorial article in this month's SYMPOSIUM.

The only permanent cure for chronic catarrh is to thoroughly expel the poison from the system by the faithful and persistent use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. This wonderful remedy proves successful when all other treatment has failed to relieve the sufferer.

Castle Square Theatre.

For the coming week at the Castle Square theatre a revival of Auber's tuneful "Fra Diavolo" is announced, and the revival of this favorite example of all that is best in the French school of light opera is sure to give satisfaction to patrons of the Castle Square company. "Fra Diavolo" has held the musical publics both sides the Atlantic throughout the present generation, and it enjoyed the greatest popularity upon the European stage for more than a quarter of a century before it was heard of in this country. Its music shows that remarkable fertility of Auber's melodic invention and his genius in chorus writing is at all times prominently exhibited in its numbers. The story is full of interest with ample contrast in its scenes and incidents, and the humorous features afford opportunities which greatly heighten its enjoyment. "Fra Diavolo" is announced for a single week with "Carmen" as the following attraction. Next Wednesday a rose matinee is announced and two thousand bride, mermet and bridesmaid roses will be given away to patrons.

Saw the Point Finally.

A man said, "When I was a young chap, I could use coffee and tobacco without their troubling me, but as I get along in years, they both distress me. I quit tobacco, but only got a little better; liver, stomach and bowels kept all out of gear until finally my old doctor told me that coffee had the same poisonous alkaloids as tobacco, but not quite so many, and advised me to leave it off and give nature a chance to build up. I didn't take much stock in the old man's advice, but found out by trying it that he was just right. Still I missed my hot drink at breakfast and supper—tried chocolate, but that lacks the taste I like, and tea don't exactly go to the spot. Lately I have been drinking Postum Cereal Coffee and like it better than the old coffee. It has that pungent taste that fits my notion of a hot drink and it agrees with me well enough that I have put on 10 pounds in a month. It is made of grains wholly, and brews a deep, rich color like the finest Mocha. Wife buys it at the grocery and says it costs us about one-third what coffee used to." It comes from Battle Creek, Mich.

Dr. Henry Venne, 99 Blue Island Ave., Chicago, says: "The Postum has been tested and found to be excellent."

Beware of the fraudulent imitations of the original Postum Cereal Grain coffee. Insist on Postum.

Condensed Testimony.

Chas. B. Hood, Broker and Manufacturer's Agent, Columbus, Ohio, certifies that Dr. King's New Discovery has no equal as a Cough remedy. J. D. Brown, Prop. St. James Hotel, Ft. Wayne, Ind., testifies that he was cured of a Cough of two years standing, caused by La Grippe, by Dr. King's New Discovery. B. F. Merrill, Baldwinsville, Mass., says that he has used and recommended it and never knew it to fail and would rather have it than any doctor, because it always cures. Mrs. Hemming, 222 E. 25th St., Chicago, always keeps it at hand and has no fear of Croup, because it instantly relieves. Free Trial Bottles at the Drug Store of J. E. Connell, Weymouth; Geo. M. ### Gallop Island in Boston Harbor.

The Boston Herald had the following interesting story about John Gallop and his beautiful island in Boston harbor near Fort Warren.

The island was a famous farm two centuries and a half ago, when it contained 16 acres and was owned by Capt. John Gallop, who, in addition, had a meadow on Long Island, a sheep pasture on Nix's Mate, and a house at the North end in Boston. Capt. John was in his day the best pilot in Massachusetts Bay, and the local historians of the colony all have stories to tell of a noteworthy feat of his in 1633, when he brought through a new channel the good ship Griffin, 300 tons, from England, having on board 200 passengers, including Rev. John Cotton, Rev. Thomas Hooker, Elder Thomas Leverett, Elder Stone, Mr. Pierce, Mr. Haynes, Mr. Hoffe and other fathers of New England and "gentlemen of great estate."

But the feat of the doughty Capt. John that will live longest was his battle with Indians on the water off Block Island in July, 1636, which Cooper, in his Naval History, says was "the first engagement that probably ever occurred between inhabitants of the American colonies and enemies afloat."

Capt. Gallop was on a trading expedition having with him in his shallop his two boys, John and Samuel, and his boatman, who is described as a "strong, lusty fellow." He was putting into Block Island to traffic with the natives when he discovered a vessel making off from shore under suspicious circumstances, the sails being managed in an awkward manner. That something was wrong was so evident that the captain gave chase, and on overhauling the strange boat found it manned by 14 Indians, who, armed with guns, pikes and swords, stood ready to give him a warm reception. He fired on them, and then stood off to see what effect the shot would have. They still maintained a belligerent attitude, and so Capt. John crowded on all sail and rammed the enemy's vessel on the quarter. Six of the Indians were so frightened that they jumped overboard and presently were drowned, but there were still eight left and so Skipper Gallop repeated the manœuvre. This time he drove the fluke of his anchor throught the pirate's bows and remained fast, in the meantime ranking the enemy fore and aft with small shot. The boys were as good marksmen as their father and his boatman, and their fire was so hot that the Indians fled below deck. But the captain still hesitated about boarding, owing to the desparity in numbers, and his anchor having broken its hold, he stood off to ram the stranger again. Seeing this several more of the Indians jumped overboard and were drowned like their predecessors, and Gallop then ran alongside and boarded, followed by the two boys with loaded guns. He stumbled over something lying under a seine in the bottom of the boat, and lifting the net discovered the body of a white man, and the head that had been severed from it. The face was mutilated and covered with blood and dirt, but the captain washed it, and was shocked to find it that of his old friend and fellow trader, Capt. John Oldham.

"Ah, Bro. Oldham, is it thee?" cried Capt. John. "I am resolved to avenge thy blood."

"And then," says Cobbett, in his quaint story of the adventure, "taking his dagger to the scuttle hole, in which the Indians were quogged as thick as they could stand, head by head, he jabbed his dagger very often with all his strength upon them."

Upon this one Indian got out of the hold and begged for quarter, and being bound, was sent back with a demand for a general surrender. Then another came up and was likewise bound, when it occurred to Capt. Gallop that if this one were returned to the hold also, the others might release him; and so the captive, all bound as he was, was thrown into the sea to drown. There were still several Indians below who defended themselves so stoutly that the captain put the hatch over them, and, taking the shallop in tow, started for home. But the wind coming up in the night, he was compelled to cut his prize adrift, and she was never seen again. Capt. Gallop saved but one of the Indians, and him he brought to Boston.

The Indians who killed Capt. Oldham were Narragansetts, but this was not learned until some time afterward, the deed being attributed to the Pequots. "Whereupon," says our historian, "that just war was commenced the bloody Pequots and their associates."

The island, when Capt. Gallop died in 1650, was valued at £12, and the richness of the soil made it a favorite location for many successive generations of farmers, who for years and years supplied the ships in Nantasket roads with vegetables and milk and pure spring water. After passing out of the Gallop family it was long owned by gentlemen of Quincy and Hingham, and in 1810 was purchased by Peter Newcomb, who made it his home until his death. It was bought of his son in 1860 for $6600 by the city of Boston, and soon after the outbreak of the civil war it was loaned to the United States as a camp ground for troops waiting to go to the front. Gen. Hendrickson was in command of the post during the latter part of the war, when, in addition to long lines of barracks, the island had a church and a library. As many as 3000 recruits were quartered there at one time. The 8th Massachusetts infantry was sent to Gallop's on returning home in 1865, and there, too, were encamped the 2d Massachusetts heavy artillery, the 54th colored and 65th infantry.

A spacious cemetery, filled with close-lying graves, contains not only the remains of persons who have succumbed to disease in quarantine, but also the bodies of men who died in the military camp between 1861 and 1865. The plain white headboards do not relate long tales, but they supply an index to a great deal of history and biography that was never written and exists only in the memories of friends of the men whose bodies have there turned to dust.

Twenty-nine years ago the island was devoted to municipal uses, the city establishing there the quarantine hospital.

The horses now kept on Gallop island for anti-toxine purposes are far from having the appearance of patients in a hospital. They are all young and in good flesh and their quarters are as luxurious as the stables of a millionaire. Last year a building was erected near the barn, in one end of which, adjoining the laboratory, is a room where the horses are stood between rails to be operated upon. Five of them apparently do not care the whisk of a tail about either the hypodermic needle or the trocar after the first prick that punctures the skin. The sixth, however, a handsome black, was frightened during his first inoculation by the bursting, under the air pressure used to force the toxine through the needle, of the bottle containing the fluid. Since then he executes a war dance whenever he sees a bottle, and he hates Dr. Metcalf with all his might, never neglecting an opportunity to bite or kick at him.

More than half the new building is given up to the guinea pigs, on which the potency of the toxine and anti-toxine is tested. There is a big colony of these little animals, of all ages and colors, as fat as butter under a liberal diet of of carrots and oats, frisking about in their spacious pens, happily unconscious that it is their fate to suffer in order that man may be healed.

Except for a brief respite after undergoing phlebotomy or inoculation, the horses are worked on a farm, which is the delight of Overseer Blanchard's heart. Never a piece of land was better tilled, and at certain seasons of the year everybody coming within a quarter-mile to leeward knows that the soil is being incited to further fertility by the application of top dressing; for if the overseer has a fad, it is the invention, preparation and application of fertilizers in which last year's fish are an important component.

Here is Good News for Men Suffering From Nervous Debility, Weakened Powers and Exhausted Vigor.

Weak men suffering from nervous debility, weakened powers and exhausted vigor, can now take new hope. Here is something which will powerfully interest them. It is a fact that until now sufferers have been debarred from seeking a cure by the great specialists in these complaints owing to the cost of travel to the large city and the high fees charged by these eminent physicians.

Here, therefore, is a chance for weak men in our community which should not be lost. Dr. Greene, of 34 Temple Place, Boston, Mass., who has the largest practice in the world, and who is without doubt the most successful specialist in curing this class of diseases offers to give free consultation by mail to all weakened, vigorless and nerve-exhausted men. You have the privilege of consulting Dr. Greene by letter describing your complaint and he will, after carefully considering your condition, send you a letter fully explaining all your symptoms, telling you everything about your complaint so plainly that you will understand exactly what ails you. He will also give you his advice, based upon his vast experience and wonderful success in treating and curing such cases, as to just what to do to get cured. All this will cost you nothing and you can thus have consultation with the best-known physician and acknowledged most successful specialist in the world, without leaving home and at no expense whatever. The Doctor is the discoverer of that greatest of medicines, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and he has discovered many other most valuable remedies. Write to him now, for this is the chance of a lifetime to get cured which you may never have again.

HOW TO PREVENT CROUP.

Some Reading That Will Prove Interesting to Young Mothers. How to Guard Against the Disease.

Croup is a terror to young mothers and to post them concerning the cause, first symptoms and treatment is the object of this item. The origin of croup is a common cold. Children who are subject to it take cold very easily and croup is almost sure to follow. The first symptom is hoarseness; this is soon followed by a peculiar rough cough, which is easily recognized and will never be forgotten by one who has heard it. The time to act is when the child first becomes hoarse. If Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is freely given all tendency to croup will soon disappear. Even after the croupy cough has developed it will prevent the attack. There is no danger in giving this remedy for it contains nothing injurious.

"You remind me so strongly of a lady's watch," Miss De Smith concluded when young Mr. Featherly had forgotten for ever and ever so long how late it had got to be.

"Because—" he hesitatingly began.

"It never is going," explained Miss De Smith, in clear, incisive accents.

But that wound him up again.—N. Y. Recorder.

Make a Successful Doctor.

Dr. Emdee—Don't be discouraged; your son will be a successful physician before you know it.

Graduate's Father—What indications of this have you observed?

Dr. Emdee—He has just the face for hot-house whiskers.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Used to It.

"I hope our conversation did not annoy you?" said a gentleman to a friend who sat behind a talkative party at the opera.

"Oh, no, not at all," replied the man addressed; "my office, you know, is next door to a boiler shop."—Yonkers Statesman.

A Correct Definition.

"I see that a number of gentlemen have organized a 'Homeless club.' Does that mean that they have no home?" remarked a Dallas lady to a neighbor.

"No, it only means that they will be home less than ever now," was the reply.—Texas Sifter.

Our Billy is in.

⁂

Their Billy is out.

⁂

Who's a democrat now? We can't find any.

⁂

The Gazette is proud of the vote of Weymouth.

⁂

A thousand plurality for Weymouth is a "corker."

⁂

Altgeld, Tillman and Debs are no longer powerful. Good.

⁂

The boy orator can confine his eloquence to the Platte hereafter.

⁂

Little Mac will soon get ready for his march "On to Washington."

⁂

Dedham, the home of George Fred, gave him the expected severe drubbing.

⁂

Weymouth's vote was a surprise to some. Not many democrats here this year.

⁂

Judge Flint, Col. Lovell and Judge Cook wore very large smiles election night.

⁂

Now that election is over the parties' next hustle will be to settle their bills.

⁂

Mr. Nevin got there with a good large margin and will do credit to Weymouth in the next Legislature.

⁂

Massachusetts is proud of her sons and the sons are proud of the state. It was a grand verdict.

⁂

Arthur Sewall of Maine and Tom Watson of Georgia need quarrel no more for the vice presidency.

⁂

One met a great many men from Weymouth and Braintree in Boston, Tuesday night. They were everywhere.

⁂

We hope Bryan has received good pay from the silver mine owners. He certainly worked hard for their interests and should be recompensed.

⁂

Now that Garrett A. Hobart will surely be vice president, and perhaps president if he lives, the people will try and know something about him.

⁂

Mr. Mayhew's friends evidently meant to do all they could for him by voting for him only. Their course put him in the lead in the representative contest.

⁂

There was not enough of doubt in the returns Tuesday night to make it interesting. Many returned home by ten o'clock satisfied that they knew the result.

⁂

Not the least joyful intelligence is the defeat of Anarchist Altgeld of Chicago. Even that degenerate city of foreign-born people is at least awake to its danger.

⁂

John V. Scollard will live in Braintree for some time yet. He has postponed any idea of a Washington trip next March. Local politics will still interest him.

⁂

Wolcott had a walk-over too, and how Georgie Freddie, poor little boy, must feel. He will want to go west and seek green fields and pastures new for his enchanting eloquence.

⁂

You can still subscribe for this paper with two gold dollars, or any other kind of dollars that you can get. No discount on any United States money now. The gold basis is assured for a generation.

⁂

Mr. Whelan's pictures are now called in. There may be various opinions as to the efficacy of those pictures but Mr. Whelan is best complimented by the vote of his own ward where people knew him the best.

⁂

We heard one man say that he would give $1000 if not one newspaper would mention the name of George Fred Williams in the election returns and thus utterly ignore that vain boaster and petty politician.

⁂

Tom Reed stands out above all as a tower of strength. He was the logical candidate for president on a gold platform and had this money issue arisen earlier might have been selected. Will he be secretary of state?

⁂

The election was a sweep, a cyclone, a landslide, an avalanche, a waterloo, a tidal wave, or any other large and expressive word that you can find for it. And even then you fail to get the full meaning. It can't be put in words.

⁂

The rooms that the Norfolk club provided at Hotel Savoy were so excessively cosy that most of the members went down to the American house, where, at the republican headquarters, there was lots of fun and excitement over the returns.

⁂

Citizen Hobart of Braintree has been quite a picturesque figure in the campaign and was surely slated for the Boston Custom house if Bryan had been elected. The citizen will not now have to sacrifice his ease and private interests for the public good.

⁂

The first election of the Weymouth-Braintree district has evidenced a disposition to one sided voting by the citizens of one town. The ballots were many on which the voters marked but for one representative thus endangering the party's candidate in the other town.

---

We shall have no more of the free silver fallacy for some time and we hope never. That cause has received its death blow in the United States. Neither of the great parties will again adopt silver as its shibboleth and it will be forced back for support upon its promotors, the silver mine owners, who will not again get the following they have had this year.

The Boston Journal which ordered in its last issue before election, "Be sure and vote yes on both amendments" now says that the people have made such an awful mistake in refusing the offered progress by an overwhelming vote. We suppose the Journal knew and knows more than the people of Massachusetts. Verily the conceit of some papers and some editors passes comprehension. Does the Journal not realize that it is an insult to the people of Massachusetts to tell them that they have made a mistake and that the Journal and its small minority are right. The people's verdict is final.

There were the usual number of peculiar and at times, amusing features connected with the voting of last Tuesday. It is still evident that a school of instruction should be opened a few days before the day of voting. In some instances the whole vote was lost by marking for an excess of candidates and here and there it was evident the voter found the formidable ballot too much for his intellect and giving up in despair he dropped it into the hopper without any mark. Another bad feature of the day was a lack of system in the hour of closing the polls. They should close uniformly throughout the town but the fact is that each precinct had a time of its own and in Precinct 2 several voters were disfranchised by the polls being closed from a half to an hour earlier than in other places. We would suggest that in the future the wardens have a joint meeting before the election and arranged a systematic manner of doing business and rendering decisions on disputed question.

The incendiary blusterings and threatening telegrams of some of the populistic leaders, who claimed Bryan's election and demanded that he be seated by force show us that we should rejoice more than ever at the defeat of such men and at the election of McKinley by a margin beyond any doubt whatever. Had the election been in doubt and depended upon the vote of any one western state where there had been a close vote, anarchy and civil war would have been the sure result of such blatant tongues, for the violent mobs of Chicago would have picked the matter up at once and stopped at nothing. Anarchy, riot and disorder are what they want and what they are waiting for an excuse for. We may all be thankful that the returns have put the result beyond any possible doubt and deprived those men of the least shadow of an excuse for inciting trouble.

COUNCILLOR BEN.

The Genial Colunel Elected by an Increased Vote.

Col. Lovell is re-elected to the Council with a much larger majority than last year. The Colonel grows in popularity abroad and who knows but it may soon be Governor Ben.

SENATOR FLINT

Elected by Large Pluralities.

Senator-elect James H. Flint carried the district by 4600 plurality, the largest ever received by any candidate for that office.

COUNTY CLERK COOK.

Elected Easily. The Vote Not Close.

Judge Cook is elected clerk of Courts of Norfolk county with large margins to spare.

Congressman Morse on the Result of the Election.

Congressman Morse said the result cannot help having a most salutary effect on business. The restoration of confidence, the certain stability of our money and the certainty that it will be maintained at a parity with gold will show immediate results in a business way. Our house is holding orders this morning for five car loads of our product contigent on the election of McKinley. That is undoubtedly true of every manufacturer in the country to a greater or less extent. I believe the country will now enter upon an era of prosperity unprecedented in our history. The country will anticipate the economic and protective policy of the Republican party, and money which has gone out of the country to buy foreign goods will stay at home and give employment to American workmen. It won't do however to assume that the silver lunacy is dead. The campaign of sound money agitation, which has been on for the last few months, must be continued. The free silver propaganda have been circulating their literature for years. The lumber men in Arostook County, Maine, had "coin" Harvey's book months ago. The friends of sound finance have been tardy and dilatory in using the specious arguments of the silver cranks. Education must continue.

A cough which persists day after day, should not be neglected any longer. It means something more than a mere local irritation, and the sooner it is relieved the better. Take Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. It is prompt to act and sure to cure.

Saturday's Enthusiasm.

Flags, flags everywhere. Of all sizes, from the tiny flag worn in the button-hole to the Campaign flag floating in the breeze. Yards and yards of bunting were tastefully draped from shop, store, hall and dwelling. Red, white and blue ribbon was worn by the fair daughters of America and patriotic devotion to American principles of Truth, Honor and Right beat high in every loyal heart as Old Glory floated in the clear sunlight of October 31st. After the sun had set many headlands and commanding elevations came prominently into view as the blazing fires and tar barrels testified to the alert and awakened patriotism of the voting public.

"How the bon-fires and the torches illumed the night's repose?" The brilliant flames from Mr. J. F. Sheppard's high hill were easily seen on all sides. Just before eight o'clock the torch was applied and until midnight the blazing pile showed clear and bright. Many red lights were to be seen and on Weymouth Great Hill, King Oak and Sandy Banks, red, red flashing flames answered each to the other, as they leaped into the night. Did you recall to mind those ancient beacon fires which called the early settlers together? We mention two instances, one at King Oak Hill when it was feared the Indians would devastate the country; and later when from the same high eminence the blazing beacon called the men to fight for liberty and defend their homes from the British. Two thousand men gathered and hastened to the islands in the harbor, destroyed the hay there and prevented the men of war of the enemy from landing their crews of soldiers. Though those fighting days are over, yet still the vigilance and devotion of American sons are needed and the voters with ready and willing hearts were called to deposit their votes on Tuesday and won a decided victory for Freedom, Truth and Honor.

OBITUARY.

Reed Blanchard.

Mr. Reed Blanchard, a former resident of South Weymouth, but for the past few years living at the almshouse, passed away last Monday. Funeral services were held at Highland cemetery, South Weymouth, Tuesday afternoon, where the interment took place. Rev. H. C. Alvord conducted the services.

Deceased was 86 years of age.

The wife of Mr. Leonard Wells, of East Brimfield, Mass., had been suffering from neuralgia for two days, not being able to sleep or hardly keep still, when Mr. Holden, the merchant there, sent her a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and asked that she give it a thorough trial. On meeting Mr. Wells the next day he was told that she was all right, the pain had left her within two hours, and that the bottle of Pain Balm was worth $5.00 if it could not be had for less. For sale at 50 cents per bottle.

J. E. Connell, Weymouth.
L. T. Brown, South Weymouth.
F. A. Smith, Hollis Block, Braintree.

MERCA CYCLE CLUB DANCE.

A Successful Party at Clapp's Hall.

The young ladies of the Merca Cycle Club held a very successful Harvest party at Clapp's hall last Saturday evening, from 6 to 10 o'clock.

The hall was very prettily decorated with flags, bunting and autumn leaves, and the dance orders were gotten up in the shape of different kinds of vegetables.

The matrons were Mrs. Arthur Cook, Mrs. Byron Hunt and Mrs. Fred Cook. Russell Niles and Harold Taylor were pages and little Misses Mabel S. Nash and Carrie Kaler gave out the dance orders.

Peters' orchestra of Boston furnished the music for the occasion. The grand march was led by the president of the club, Miss Louise Rand and Mr. Harry Kimball.

THE PEOPLE'S COLUMN

The column under this title will be given to the people for a free discussion of any and all subjects the management of the paper distinctly disclaimingall responsibility for the opinions here expressed.

Mr. Editor:

I am pleased to learn by "Old Glory's" communication in last week's issue of the Gazette, that the children of our public schools are being taught to salute and pledge allegiance to our beautiful flag, and I would suggest that an additional act of patriotism might not be without further beneficial results. Last week when the Weymouth band made a halt in Washington square on its way to the Braintree rally, and gave us a half hour's music, they played for the introductory piece, "America." A friend was with me, my guest at the time, and a subject of the Queen. She remarked "when our bands play 'God save the Queen,' all hats are removed, heads remaining uncovered during the first lines." Would it not be well for us to emulate that custom and show a like courtesy when our National hymn is being played? T.

FAREWELL RECEPTION.

Tendered to Rev. W. H. Alexander last Friday Evening.

The most notable social gathering of the season took place at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Ambler on Front street, Weymouth, last Friday evening, Oct. 30. The occasion was a reception to Rev. W. H. Alexander, the retiring pastor of the Union Congregational church of Weymouth and Braintree, previous to his departure for a year, at least, of study and travel in England.

The patriotism of the host and hostess was expressed in the decorations of the hall and spacious rooms of the charming home, there being an abundant use made of the great symbol of American Liberty—the "Stars and Stripes"—and their generous hospitality was evinced in the bountiful supply of dainties with which the tables were ladened. Music, vocal and instrumental, added its charm to the evening's enjoyment, and the Campaign song—words and music by Miss Annie F. Loud and Mr. J. J. Loud, was heartily sung.

A host of friends, the clergy being represented by Rev. C. F. H. Crathern of South Braintree and Rev. Daniel Evans of East Weymouth, availed themselves of the opportunity to once more greet their friend and pastor and wish him Godspeed upon his journey and wherever his duties may call him in the future.

Mr. Alexander left Weymouth on Tuesday, sailing by the St. Louis for England from New York, Wednesday. The best wishes of many friends go with him, with the hope that America may again be his home.

FOOT BALL.

Weymouth High, 14; Norfolk, 0.

At the fair grounds, South Weymouth, last Saturday afternoon, the Weymouth high and Norfolk foot ball elevens met for a friendly game which resulted in a victory for the former.

The high school boys played a good game, the best work being done by Loud and Thayer.

The Norfolks were weak on the defensive and frequent fumbling cost them many yards. McCarthy and Allen played well.

The line-up:

| Weymouth High. | Norfolk. |
|---|---|
| Torrey, l e | r e, Butler |
| Barnes, l t, | r t, Holbrook |
| Howe, l g | r g, McCarthy |
| Hart, c | c, Stetson |

Opened their New Store.

Henry L. Kincaide & Co. threw open to the public on Saturday evening last, the doors of their palatial new furniture store at Quincy.

For weeks active preparations had been going on, and the public were more than impatient for this important event. Over seven thousand people, took advantage of the invitation to inspect their new warerooms, which were brilliantly illuminated, and beautifully decorated with palms and potted plants. Delightful music was discoursed throughout the evening, and those who were present, voted it one of the handsomest and best equipped stores they had ever visited. They occupy a whole brick block with five complete floors devoted exclusively to the display of household fittings and carpetings. The building has all modern conveniences, elevators, etc., and is a great addition to Quincy's business centre.

Furniture Economy.

Keep an eye on this space. Something new and interesting will appear here each week for your benefit. Something that's worth while reading, because it will be fruitful to you, and will tell you just how to make your home more modern, more attractive, more beautiful.

BRIEF ITEMS

Of Local Happenings and Personals.

WEYMOUTH.

—The Y. P. C. U. of the Universalist church will hold their annual food fair, Thursday, Nov. 19th.

—The Union Literary circle met with Mrs. Alice Cook, Tuesday evening, Nov. 3d. It being election night, the meeting was of a patriotic nature. Mrs. R. L. Hunt read a very interesting paper on the "Election and Inauguration of George Washington." Mrs. M. E. P. Hunt gave an account of what she saw at the Inauguration of Gen. Grant. Then followed twenty miscellaneous questions. After singing a few of our patriotic songs and spending an hour in social talk, the Circle separated to meet with Mrs. R. L. Hunt, Tuesday evening, Nov. 17th. Quotations, miscellaneous.

—Miss C. Louise Worster has been appointed Supervisor of Drawing in the public schools at Meriden, Conn., for the coming year.

—The following item will be of interest to our readers and is from the Congregationalist of October 15. "Sidney K. Perkins and wife, at a house warming in the new parsonage of First church, Springfield, Mass., were surprised by a gift of money as an expression of love from their people." Rev. Mr. Perkins is a native of Weymouth and a grandson of Rev. Jonas Perkins, formerly of Union church.

—Miss Louise Rand has resigned her position as a teacher at Hingham to accept a much more lucrative one in one of the large schools at Brookline.

—Patrick Irving who was injured sometime ago by being thrown out of a team, is about again.

—The UniversalistSocial circle held their first entertainment and supper last evening.

—One of our citizens after voting yes on the amendment, on coming out said, he thought he had voted on the license.

—Flag Day was observed by our citizens Saturday, and nearly every house and place of business in the village was decorated with flags.

—Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Smith have been on a visit to Ohio.

—McCauliff and McCarter's latest sensation is billed to appear at Clapp's hall, Monday evening.

—John M. Walsh is out again after being confined to the house by illness.

—Wm. Godfrey has moved to East Braintree.

—James Donovan is to open a provision store at the store on Broad street, formerly occupied by White & Bates.

—George Y. Sawyer of Boston was in town visiting friends Sunday.

—Rev. Ira Morrison of Provincetown occupied the pulpit at the Universalist church Sunday, in exchange with Rev. Edward Morris.

—The children of the Lincoln school second grade, Miss Mary E. Walsh teacher, are proud of their record of 100 per cent. for the week ending October 30.

—The W. C. T. U. held a meeting with Mrs. Geo. White Monday afternoon.

—The election returns were received "Election night" at both Connell's and Harlow's drug stores, and there was large crowds at both places. There was not much enthusiasm however as the land slide made every thing one-sided and it was seen very early in the evening that it was only a question of how large McKinley's vote would be.

—George Loud has purchased a periodical store and paper route in Canton.

—The Baptist social circle held a meeting at the vestry, Wednesday afternoon.

—Mrs. James Hyland who has been quite ill is much improved.

—The Ladies' Aid society of Division No. 6 A. O. H. held a hallowe'en party at Washington hall, Saturday evening and a general good time was had by the large party present. Games, dancing and a banquet made up the evening's entertainment.

—Miss Louise Cowing celebrated her twelfth birthday Tuesday by giving a party to a number of her young friends.

—The street department has been cleaning out the gutters, and disposing of the leaves on Washington street.

—An alarm of fire was rung in Sunday afternoon just before one o'clock for a fire in the chimney at the residence of Sheriff Geo. W. White. The fire department responded quickly but their services were not needed, the fire being extinguished with but a trifling damage.

—Mrs. James Morrison is seriously ill.

—The South Shore Co-operative bank held its regular monthly meeting Monday evening.

—Miss Carrie Kaler went to Providence, R. I., this week to attend a golden wedding.

—It was nearly two o'clock Wednesday morning when the result of the vote in this precinct was announced. For some unknown reason, although there are more voters in this precinct than any other in town, the counting was not commenced until after the polls closed at 2.30 o'clock. It is a well known fact that the vote of this town is always one of the last to be received in Boston, and is the most difficult to get, as there are six different voting places, and unless the newspaper men are there the moment the count is completed they have the pleasure of hunting the town over to find some one who knows the result. In every other town the votes are turned over to the town clerk that night and it is possible to get the vote of a town, and it should be so in this town.

—The Fore River Engine Company has an order for a thirty-five foot launch for Lake Champlain parties. She is booked to make 11 knots. It is also designing two racing knockabouts. One of these boats costs over twice as much as a racing jib and mainsail boat. The steam yachts Philomena, Swallow, Ilybius, Galatea, Gazelle, Maria and the yachts Gleaner, Hyperion, Linsey and Mischief are hauled out at the works. The firm is to erect a plant suitable for build yachts of 100-feet waterline.

—On Sunday, Nov. 15th, at Trinity church, Weymouth, Rev. William Hyde will begin a course of sermons on great Bible questions, and matters of prophecy which have to do with our own and future times. His subject Next Sunday morning will be, "Is Life Worth Living?"

Cushing next Monday evening and from that time during the winter will meet every two weeks.

—It was quite unfortunate that the electric lights should have burned out on Pleasant street last Saturday evening just as the young people were gathering for the 6.30 to 10.30 dance. After a delay of nearly an hour the party proceeded by gas lights and at about 9 o'clock the electrics came on.

—One of our prominent Democrats has been subjected to considerable jesting for the past few days because he owned a Republican cow. A large "Bryan and Sewall" flag had been thrown to the breeze in Independence square, through which our friend takes his cow to pasture. The morning following the flag raising the cow as usual was to be driven to pasture, and had reached this point when she saw the flag and utterly refused to go under it, with "Bryan and Sewalls" names attached. It was some time before the cow was at her destination, going around, instead of under the flag.

—During the absence of B. F. Smith last Friday a transparency which read on each side as follows: Solid for McKinley and Hobart, Gold 16 to 1; Nit; was placed at the drug store for a joke on Mr. Smith by a number of his acquaintances. When he returned he was very much surprised and perhaps offended for he immediately removed the cause of attraction. The affair caused considerable amusement to by-standers who knew Mr. Smith as a silverite.

—The culmination of the torchlight processions of the boys of this vicinity was reached last Friday night when thirty-two of them sat down to a clam chowder at the residence of their leader Sumner F. Shaw. There were about ten spectators present and all were interested and amused at the speeches made by the boys, and other impromptu entertainment. At about 9.30 they dispanded after giving three cheers for the hostess Mrs. R. F. Shaw who kindly made the chowder.

—Central square was the scene of a brilliant spectacle last Saturday night as the torchlight procession marched around Broad and Middle streets around the blazing colored lights, and throngs of people witnessed the sight. The decorations and illuminations were very pretty, the most attractive being the residences of Chapin Tisdale, Henry Lovell, Douglas M. Easton, Alphens Nicholls, Edward Orr and Noah T. Joy.

Flag Day, Bonfire, and Flag-raising at Weymouth Heights.

Weymouth Heights went into the various features of the celebration of last Saturday with its usual enthusiasm and success having determined not to be outdone by any other part of the town. During the day there was a liberal display of flags throughout the community from public buildings and private residences. All day long a willing band of patriots toiled at preparations for the bonfire on King Oak hill. About one hundred and fifty tar and oil barrels had been procured from Boston and other places. Three teams were engaged in carting railroad ties, brush and other inflammables were collected and the whole massed in a pile on the hill which satisfied the most enthusiastic. Bountiful provisions for a collation were also made. At about half past eight in the evening a barrel of kerosene oil was poured over the pile and the torch applied and then what a blaze streamed up. Certainly such a fire has not been seen on King Oak hill since the day when king Wessagusset sat around his campfire on the same hill. Soon the crowd and the band and the rifles arrived from East Weymouth, quantities of red fire also were burned, the hill was covered with people and enthusiasm reigned. The company of future voters with their banners, from Old Spain were a feature of the occasion. When the fire was about consumed and the provisions disposed of, the line of march was resumed and the whole crowd clambered down the side of the hill and proceded to the store of Holden and Sladen where a new American flag was thrown out, bearing the now triumphant names and faces of McKinley and Hobart, which was greeted with cheers the firing of rifles and the playing of the Star Spangled Banner by the band. Soon after the crowd dispersed in good order and good nature, feeling that the day had been fittingly observed at the Old North.

Several of our voters failed to have a share in the triumph of Tuesday on account of the polls being closed at an earlier hour than they had anticipated. It would seem that this is a matter which ought to be determined beforehand and plainly announced and not left to the caprice of a few who happen to be assembled at the polling place at the time of the election. It is not intimated that any unfair advantage was taken at this time but it can be very easily seen how it might be on occasion. Certainly the time for closing the polls can be determined before hand just as readily as the time for opening them and in some states it is determined by law.

About the Army Nurse Fund.

At the opening of the Army Nurse fair last Monday night, department president, Helen A. Brigham, when presented, gave some facts and figures both expressive and explanatory, as follows.

In 1884 an Army Nurse fund was established by the national W. R. C. and the department of Massachusetts promptly responded to the appeal then issued. For the past twelve years, our corps have taken a deep interest in all that concerns the welfare of army nurses.

In 1893 the Army Nurse fund in this department was transferred to the Memorial Home fund, which also included soldiers' widows. This fund has been a blessing to many, who through age, sickness and misfortune, have needed our kindly help. In addition to the state work conducted for these brave women by their sisters, who appreciate and honor them, a National W. R. C. Home has been founded at Madison, Ohio, where any nurse who is homeless but worthy, can receive the kindest care. The relief corps of Massachusetts have contributed over $2000 for the support of this home. During the past year, about $1000 has been given by the department for the National W. R. C. home, and for the nurses within our own state.

As early as 1884, plans were made by the W. R. C. to secure from Congress, pensions for the women who gave their best services for their country, and for the care of the men who fought their country's battles.

In those days of our order, when its membership was small, 67 corps in this state, circulated these petitions, and secured over 8000 signatures to the memorial to Congress. Blanks for compiling a record of army nurses, were issued and certificates were given them, as mementoes of their war record. Through the efforts of the National W. R. C. pension Committee, 559 army nurses are today receiving pensions from the United States government amounting to $80,000 annually.

It is not in a boastful spirit that these facts are stated, but to show the interest felt by our corps in the cause here represented.

The brave women who left their homes to minister to the soldiers in the hospitals and on the battle fields of the South, are worthy of our respect and gratitude.

I congratulate you on the auspicious opening of this fair, and trust that all your efforts will be successful. I assure you that the 14,000 members of the W. R. C. of Massachusetts are loyal to the great patriotic cause which your association represents.

McKINLEY THE CHOICE

Of the Women of the United States.

Returns Not All in Yet. Prohibitions Running Strong With the Ladies.

The ladies' vote has attracted national attention this campaign. It has called forth the vote of many ladies who perhaps would never care to go to the polls to cast a vote. The vote was polled by postal cards and letters sent to the Postum Cereal Food Coffee Co. of Battle Creek, Mich., whose office force have faithfully compiled and reported from time to time the progress of the vote. The deepest interest is shown by the letters and postals, great numbers of which express gratitude for this act which is surely a step towards the realization of some practical plan under which one half of our citizens, (female though they may be) who are now denied the elective franchise, can have the right to say how and by whom their laws shall be made, their country governed and their sons and daughters protected.

An extract from a letter from a lady in Kennebunk, Me., expresses "thanks for an opportunity to vote; when woman has the opportunity and an incentive to engage her mind in affairs which pertain to the welfare and prosperity of her people and country, the beings she brings into existence will be improved, elevated, and endowed with the fire of true statesmanship, by the mind of the mother during the parental state. Have your statesmen born with the great, clear and patriotic mind, Sir."

That keynote that will ring eternally until the theory becomes a fact. It is this that the keen, clear mind of woman was sought in affairs of state.

No report will be shown Nov. 13th.

The complete vote will be given Nov. 11th by which it is expected that all votes will be in.

It is true that this national vote by the ladies brings into prominence the manufacturers whose office is used to compile and report it. The Postum Co. however have already a wide reputation as the originators of the unique article of public need in the way of their cereal of grain coffee which is used by many brainy people who cannot digest common coffee. Newspaper men, authors, actors, business men, professors, nervous women and even the children find in Postum food coffee a delicious breakfast beverage that is made so largely from the glutton and phosphates of wheat that a direct result in nervous energy is found in its use, as the food elements go directly to rebuild the lost gray matter in the nerve centers. These facts are facts and this justly famed American product has made a profound impression on people of all classes.

This explanation is given for those who may not be familiar with the company, having the woman's vote in charge.

NEW BRAINTREE ENTERPRISE.

The Automatic Electric Pump Company.

The company has purchased the lot of land on Shaw street, East Braintree, bordering on Monatiquot River, formerly belonging to the White estate and willed by Mrs. Glover to the Thayer Academy.

On this spot will be immediately erected a two-story frame factory 150 feet long by 36 feet wide; also a brick boiler house 24 feet by 30 feet with tall chimney; this will contain a boiler of eighty-horse power, an engine of fifty-horse power together with an hundred electric light generator for lighting the factory. Several small buildings will be included in the plant, to manufacture brass and iron findings and fittings.

The company will make electric pumps electric motors, electric propellers with rudder combination for pleasure boats, graphophones, electric fans for circulating air in halls, public buildings and dwellings. Also electric batteries for power and other purposes. As soon as the plant is completed the factory will furnish work to one hundred and fifty hands both men and women.

The entire charge of locating and building this business enterprise is entrusted to Henry Gardner, of East Braintree, whose inventive genius and mechanical ability is well known to all. Through Mr. Gardner's untiring efforts this industry was located in this village; with hard work and persuasive words the company was induced to purchase this site.

The intention is to complete the works ready for occupancy by January the first, 1897.

Thanksgiving Proclamation.

By the President of the United States:

The people of the United States should never be unmindful of the gratitude they owe the God of nations for his watchful care, which has shielded them from dire disaster and pointed out to them the way of peace and happiness. Nor should they ever refuse to acknowledge with contrite hearts their proneness to turn away from God's teachings, and to follow with sinful pride after their own devices.

To the end that these thoughts may be quickened, it is fitting that, on a day especially appointed, we should join together in approaching the throne of grace with praise and supplication.

Therefore, I, Grover Cleveland, President of the United States, do hereby designate and set apart Thursday, the twenty-sixth day of the present month of November, to be kept and observed as a day of thanksgiving and prayer throughout our land.

On that day may all our people forego their usual work, and occupation, and assembled in the accustomed places of worship, let them with one accord render thanks to the ruler of the universe for our preservation as a nation and our deliverence from every threatened danger; for the peace that has dwelt within our boundaries; for our defence against disease and pestilence during the year that has passed; for the plenteous rewards that have followed the labors of our husbandmen, and for all the other blessings that have been vouchsafed to us. And let us, through the mediation of him who has taught us how to pray, implore the forgiveness of our sins and a continuance of heavenly favor.

Let us not forget on this day of thanksgiving, the poor and needy, and by deeds of charity let our offerings of praise be made more acceptable in the sight of the Lord.

Witness my hand and the seal of the United States, which I have caused to be hereto affixed.

(Seal)

Done at the city of Washington this fourth day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and ninety-six, and of the independence of the United States of America the one hundred and twenty-first.

(Signed) GROVER CLEVELAND.

ECHOES FROM OUR LODGES AND CLUBS.

The secretaries of the various lodges and clubs are invited to contribute to this department each week any items of interest to the lodge and club members and the general public. Such notes to insure publication should reach us by Thursday morning of the week in which they are to appear.

WOMAN'S RELIEF CORPS.

In anticipation of the Thanksgiving season, Corps 102, W. R. C., will have a family party Thursday, November 12, afternoon and evening. Every member will receive a hearty welcome, and relatives from neighboring towns will be with us. As there will probably be a large gathering, members will please provide generously for the supper.

GRAND FAIR.

At the Church of the Sacred Heart.

The grand bazaar in aid of the St. Francis Xavier cemetery fund was opened in the vestry of the Church of the Sacred Heart, Monday evening and has been largely attended each evening.

The fair is in charge of Rev. John B. Holland and a large corps of assistants. There are a number of handsomely decorated tables and laden with useful and ornamental articles offered for sale and in charge of the young ladies of the church. There is also a shooting gallery, fish pond grab box and everything to be seen at a first class fair.

The opening night there was an entertainment given under the direction of P. E. Corridan.

Tuesday evening, the entertainment was under the direction of Miss Margaret Ahern. The tableaux, Visions of Fair Women, was given.

Wednesday evening there was an excellent entertainment in charge of Miss Annie White, and last evening there was a musical program under the direction of Miss M. Nellie Hart and J. B. Whelan.

This evening the entertainment will be given by young ladies from East and South Weymouth.

The fair closes tomorrow evening when there will be an auction sale and the premiums awarded.

An Apt Quotation.

"Then, little wifey, you really suspect me!"

His voice faltered. He sighed deeply and buried his face in the pillow.

"Yes, I do; and with good reason!" she replied, sternly.

"Ah! I had always believed that I had as good a wife as Caesar's!"

"So you have—haven't you?"

"No, dear; Caesar's wife was above suspicion!"—Town Topics.

Had Been Very Moderate.

"I should fine you for contempt," said the judge, as he glared at the lawyer who had aroused his ire.

"With all due respect to your honor," responded the attorney, "I think that you should not. I have been particularly careful not to express my true feelings toward the court."—Detroit Free Press.

A Plot.

"I guess I've found a way to take the conceit out of that amateur actress," remarked the girl who is not always good-natured.

"How did you do it?"

"Introduced her to an amateur photographer who wanted to take her picture."—Washington Star.

How the Miracle Was Worked.

"Henry," said Mrs. Gloonip, at dinner, looking down at her watch, but speaking to Mr. Gloonip on the other side of the table, "my watch hasn't varied a second in a week."

"Remarkable!" said Mr. Gloonip. "How did you get it to vary so little?"

"I broke the mainspring."—Tit-Bits.

One of Two Things.

Patient—And you attribute my trouble to smoking?

Doctor—Yes.

Patient—Oh, doctor, must I give up my cigars?

Doctor—Yes, and get a better brand.—Bay City Chat.

Serious Predicament.

Annie—I have never been in such trouble since coming to the seashore.

Grace—What's the matter, dear?

Annie—I've lost my memorandum book and I forget whether I'm engaged to young Chumpey or not. — Detroit Free Press.

Great Kick.

"Did old Grumpey make much of a kick when you asked him for his daughter?"

"Did he make much of a kick? The doctor says I'm threatened with curvature of the spine."—Detroit Free Press.

A JUVENILE TASTE EXPLAINED.

"Our cook has gone away, and I'm awful glad. Now, mamma will have to make the cake, and mamma's cake is always heavy."

"Well, I declare! Do you prefer heavy cake?"

"Yes'm. You get more chewin' in one piece."—N. Y. Weekly.

Very Green.

She—Did your grandfather live to a green old age?

He—Well, I should say so! He was buncoed three times after he was 70.—Bay City Chat.

Debts vs. Cupid.

"Why do men quit making love after marriage?"

"Because that amusement is incompatible with paying bills."—Brooklyn Life.

Leading a Double Life.

"Did you know Popperton is leading a double life nowadays?"

"No. You don't tell me!"

"Fact. Ony yesterday I saw him out waking with his twins."—Truth.

A Sign of Familiarity.

"Does young Whittle know much about politics?"

"Yes, I think he does. He has had several chances to run for office and didn't do it."—Washington Star.

No New Symptoms.

"Well, Mr. Badger, how are you breathing now?"

"Just one breath at a time, doctor—same as I always do."—Chicago Record.

Most Appropriate.

"Emily," said old Mr. Tibbetts, sternly, "who was that young man I found kissing you at the door last night?"

"It was Mr.—Mr. Lippincott," stammered Emily in a faint voice.

Old Mr. Tibbetts glared at his daughter fixedly for a moment, and then a softer light shone in his eye. In both eyes, in fact.

"B'George!" he cried, slapping his knee, "he's well named, too!"—N. Y. World.

JAPAN'S MONOPOLY.

All the World Must Now Go to Her for Camphor.

One of the unconsidered trifles that the mikado has picked up as the result of the Chinese war is the monopoly of camphor, says the Indian Agriculturist. That drug is produced only in Japan and Formosa, and, though a variety known as Borneo camphor is obtained from Borneo and Sumatra, it cannot compete with the product of the evergreen laurel of the eastern Asiatic islands. Inasmuch as camphor, apart from its many and varied therapeutic uses, is an essential ingredient in the composition of nearly all the new explosives, the demand for it is very large.

The Japanese are well aware of the valuable monopoly they have blundered upon rather than sought and have already begun to limit the export by imposing duties. As a natural consequence, the price of the drug has risen rapidly since the war came to an end and bids fair to rise higher. Happily, the commercial instinct of the Japanese statesmen is as sound as their political instinct, and they are not likely to abuse the monopoly they have acquired by forcing the price up to prohibitive rates.

The chief concern of the Japanese government will, for some time to come, be the finding of money to pay for the ships and munitions of war which will secure the mikado in the possession of the spoils he has already won. Properly handled and wisely administered, camphor should prove a valuable source of revenue and contribute a handsome quota toward the cost of the military preparations which pertain to the peace of the dragon kingdom.

PORTABLE HOUSES.

Made for a Great Variety of Uses and Exported to Other Lands.

Portable houses are made of almost any size and for a great variety of uses, says the New York Sun. There are portable dwelling-houses and portable boat-houses, and portable barracks, and portable clubhouses, lawn pavillions, engineers', miners', contractors' and other offices, bathing-houses, stables, bowling alleys, billiard-rooms, hospitals and so on. There have lately been made two-story portable houses. A two-story portable house of ten rooms costs $1,800. A house of one room, 8x11, with one door and one window, can be bought for $50; with two cots, two tables and two stools, for $60.

Sometimes a man who owns a portable house hires land on the seashore or in the mountains and sets his house up there for a season, takes it down and stores it in the fall, and next season hires land in another place and sets his house up there.

Portable houses are set on stones or blocks, and on posts, and sometimes they are set on permanent foundations. People sometimes have chimneys built where they set up their houses. The portable house manufacturers sell terra cotta chimneys in sections to be stacked up, and it is not unusual for the house-owner simply to run out a stovepipe for a chimney.

We export portable houses to Cuba, South America and South Africa.

THE CHINESE SCHOOLBOY

He Must Study Long Hours Every Day in the Year.

The Chinese school children have instilled into them at an early age habits of hard, steady study, says an exchange. At the age of five a boy begins his schooling. At daylight he rises and, after dressing as quickly as possible, he starts breakfastless to school. He is given a task and after it is completed he is allowed an hour for breakfast. Again, later, he has an hour for luncheon, but he is at his study nearly 12 hours a day, seven days in the week.

All this time when he is not receiving his lessons he is studying aloud at the top of his voice. He is under the eye of his master both in school and on his way to and from school. The lad is taught rudimentary astronomy, physics and natural history, but greater stress is put upon writing and his literary studies.

"A Thousand Letters," a poem, is the study that forms the backbone of his literary education. In it are taught the duties of children to parents and all such matters. Whatever the study may be—history, classics or science—every lesson is learned and repeated word for word.

RAILWAYS IN CHINA.

After Decades of Endeavor the Empire Is at Last to Be Open.

Several railways are at last about to be built in China, according to a recent Peking Gazette. One line is to connect Peking with Tien-Tsin. It will be about 80 miles long, and constructed entirely with government funds.

Another road is to run across central China from Peking to Hankow. The emperor has decided that the railroad will stimulate trade in China, besides giving employment to the masses of the people, and so will give it all the support in his power.

A third line is to be built from Shanghai to Soochow. This road, although it will only be about 65 miles long, is expected to accomplish a great deal by opening up the province of Kiangsu. The viceroy of Nanking has always strongly opposed all railroad projects in China, but is now enthusiastic over the enterprise, and offers to provide half the cost out of the official treasury, and urges his people to subscribe for shares for the remainder.

Surveys are now being made, and the work will probably soon be under way.

Artificial Silk.

The process for the manufacture of artificial silk is based upon that employed by nature. The first thing used is wood—for mulberry leaves are in reality the equivalent of a mulberry wood. The wood is worked into a paste, after being dipped in nitric and sulphuric acids, is dried and placed in a bath of ether and alcohol. A transformation takes place and a kind of glue or collodion is the result.

The Difference.

May—How quickly you learned to wheel! It took me the whole winter to learn.

Minnie—Oh, how deliciously jolly! You must have had a perfect love of a professor to have been all that time at it.—Town Topics.

Just Suited for It.

Mr. Muchblest—I don't think we can do better than put Johnny in the dry goods business.

Mrs. Muchblest—Why so?

Mr. Muchblest—His teacher says he is always getting marked down.—N. Y. World.

Unmitigated Selfishness.

"Ruggles, how does it feel to have a tooth pulled?"

"It cost me a dollar to find out. If you want to know how it feels go and pay for the knowledge, like a man."—Chicago Tribune.

In Confidence.

Friend—Who spread the report that you were financially embarrassed?

Millionaire—I did, and it has worked like a charm! Lord Ninkumpupe has hardly noticed my daughter since.—Town Topics.

Well Prepared.

Magistrate—What have you brought that thick stick into court for?

Defendant—Well, everybody told me I must come provided with a means of defense, and I fancy I've brought it.—Tit-Bits.

Other Chap Held Four Aces.

Mabel—I called on the queen while I was abroad. It cost me over $500 for my clothes.

Jack Potts—I called on three queens last night and it cost me $500 and my clothes besides.—Town Topics.

HER DREAM WAS DISSIPATED.

Gail Hamilton's Idea of a Woman's Bank Proved Chimerical.

"Gail Hamilton," said a Philadelphia banker to a Bulletin reporter recently, "was a very able woman, but, like a good many other women, and men, too, for that matter, she didn't understand finance. Her ignorance on this subject led her into a grave mistake at one time, and thereby hangs one of the most curious tales of human credulity that ever came to light.

"About 18 or 20 years ago a woman named Howe opened a bank of deposit in Boston. It had several peculiar features, among which were: It was owned and operated by women; the accounts only of women were solicited, though there was a proviso that the sterner sex should be allowed the privilege of depositing money, though under no circumstances would they ever be allowed a voice in the management; no limit was to be made, as in ordinary savings banks, as to the amount that would be secured on deposit.

"This was all very well, and if there were nothing more the innovation might do—for Boston. But the circular wound up with the startling announcement that the rate of interest would be eight per cent. a month! Not only that, but this rate of interest was in all cases to be paid in advance!

"One would think that such an absurd proposition would be laughed at in any intelligent community, but it wasn't, and the bank was actually in operation in Boston for over a year. The concern was located in a fashionable quarter of the city, and did a rattling business. The Howe woman, if she didn't understand banking, as she afterward acknowledged at her trial, certainly understood the business she was engaged in, which was simply to 'get all you can and keep all you get.' The bank was patronized by high and low, rich and poor, and bore every outward evidence of prosperity. A few of the knowing ones, who put in on the ground floor, made money out of it, for it was only necessary for anyone to deposit $1,000, say, and get back $1,480 in six months.

"It was only by accident that the concern was exploded. A servant girl in the family of a banker had an account in the woman's bank, and her employer saw it and began to investigate. The story got into the papers, and the bubble burst. Great was the consternation among the women folks, and Mrs. Howe came out with a pronunciamento saying that the bank was all right and would continue to do business, but in three days the concern was closed by the sheriff and Mrs. Howe was arrested.

"Gail Hamilton was among the woman's dupes. She wrote a two-column article in defense of Mrs. Howe, in which she intimated very plainly that the failure of the bank was entirely due to the jealousy of the men; that Mrs. Howe and her system were all right and that all bankers could pay eight per cent. a month if they wanted to.

"Of course, there were lots of people who could see after the bank failed that no one could pay eight per cent. a month, and she was mercilessly ridiculed in the press, and from the fact that she never retorted, as was her invariable custom on the slightest provocation, I guess her friends got hold of her and kept her quiet."

"How much did Mrs. Howe get away with?"

"I forget the amount, but it was something over half a million."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

CIRCULATION OF THE BLOOD.

Theories Which Account for the Functions of the Vital Fluid.

Do you know that some of the very best physicians in the land are far from being satisfied that the heart is the organ which causes the blood to circulate in the veins and arteries? The theory of Harvey, which maintains that the impulsive stroke of the heart is "the sole motive power," is disputed by persons who know more about blood circulation in a minute that he ever did in his life. Various causes for the phenomena of blood circulation are assigned by the different students of the subject, but the majority of those who differ from Harvey say that the true cause of circulation is to be found in respiration. That function brings carbon into the lungs. This carbon mixes with the venous blood, the mixture forming the true fuel of animal life. The oxygen which is also taken into the lungs with every breath mingles with the carbon and a slow form of combustion ensues. Wherever combustion is going on heat is evolved. In this case the heat is communicated to the blood, which is about seven-eighths water. The lungs, being in partial vacuo, and having a temperature of at least 35 degrees above that required to change water into vapor (when the water in question is in a complete vacuum), steam is generated. This enlarges the volume of the blood and exerts a specific force. The valves on the right side of the heart close against this force, while those on the left open to give it free passage. Thus, according to this theory, the true motive power is produced which first causes and then keeps up the circulation of the blood.

When this theory is elaborated it is very conclusively proved that the heart has nothing whatever to do with the circulation of the blood, but to determine by its valves the course of the current and by the mechanical force of the stroke to equalize the flow.—St. Louis Republic.

Inventor of the Treadmill.

The treadwheel, or treadmill, as it is usually termed, its purpose generally having been for grinding corn or turning machinery, was the invention of Mr. Cubitt, an engineer of Lowestoft, England, the notion of such a piece of mechanism owing its conception to an accident.—Chicago Tribune.

—How contemptibly men kick and wrangle over a dollar, and how magnificently they throw it away!

Now He's All Right.

New Boarder—Madam, is this a sanitarium or a boarding house?

Proprietress—What do you mean, sir?

New Boarder—I am not in training for a bicycle race; I'm not trying to take off flesh, and the doctor says my digestion is perfect.

Proprietress—I think I understand you. It was very considerate to mention the matter privately. Just eat at the second table with me.—Detroit Free Press.

After a Record.

"Strange," said the man with the strong cigar, absent-mindedly.

"What's strange?" asked the man with the meerschaum.

"I was thinking of a friend of mine who claims to have found an absolutely perfect fountain pen."

"Always writes, never drips ink and never gets out of order?"

"That's what he says."

The man with the meerschaum pipe shook his head.

"What do you think of it?" he asked.

"I hardly know what to think of it. He's joined no liars' club that I know of and yet everything indicates that he is working for a record."—Chicago Post.

An Open Question.

"Who planned their wedding trip?" he asked.

"She did," replied his wife.

"Ah!" he ejaculated. "With perfect love comes perfect trust. How sure she must be of him!"

"Or else," his wife suggested, "she thinks she may want to get rid of him."

And together they read over again the part of the groom's letter beginning: "Thence we go to Oklahoma."—Chicago Tribune.

MINE ACCIDENTS.

How Disasters in Coal Mines Are Brought About.

The Miners "Rob the Pillars" or Supports and Substitute Timbers Which Cannot Stand the Tremendous Strain.

It is time that the truth about these accidents in the anthracite mining regions should be told. Year after year they have been occurring with appalling regularity. The list of the dead and crippled, the widowed and the orphaned, grows from month to month, while the public, intent upon its own pursuits, learns but little about it until some frightful accident like that which lately plunged the town of Pittston into mourning concentrates attention upon it, and then there is a universal outcry. It is felt instinctively that there must be something wrong with the conditions under which the mining of coal is carried on when disasters of that kind can occur in a state which has wise laws regulating both the ventilation of mines and the conditions under which the coal itself can be taken out. But what is the evil and what the remedy? Common sense as well as common humanity prompts the discovery of the one and the application of the remedy.

The law under which the present system of inspection is carried on has worked many reforms. It has done away with many of the evils which operated so disasterously in the early days of anthracite mining. It has given to one of the hardest working classes of labor in the state comparatively pure air where previously no one could breathe any but vitiated atmosphere. It has done even more than this, important as this achievement has been. Under its provisions no shaft, slope or other mine can be worked without having at least two avenues of exit—the usual entrance and the air shaft, the latter for use in case of disaster in gangways near the mouth of the mine. Nor do its benefactions stop even here. Inspectors authorized by law to inforce the law's provisions are regularly appointed and paid to do nothing else. How, then, does it come that even after it is in operation there can be such a disaster as that which recently horrified every resident of Pennsylvania?

The answer to this question has already been hinted at in these columns. When a mine is opened all the coal in the veins is not taken out. Portions of it, which are called pillars, are left standing to support the tremendous weight of the ground above. As mining becomes more expensive, however, and the supply of coal dwindles, the owners frequently order the "robbing of the pillars"—that is, the removal of the natural supports which were originally left standing. They know from past experience that this is a dangerous proceeding. Thousands of victims lie in premature graves as the result of its adoption. But competition is fierce and to compete successfully some chances must be taken. So one by one the pillars come down, until few, if any, remain to support the mountains of earth above. Rough timbers placed at irregular distances apart are expected to uphold what in the wise provision of nature solid masses of coal had held in place—an absurd proposition upon its face. Once the mine starts to "work," as we have frequently seen, the number of the dead is to be reckoned usually by the number of men employed at the time the crash occurs.

So much for the primary cause. The secondary cause is that which grows out of a faulty system of inspection. The average cave-in does not occur in a day or a night. Nature, as if to display her kindness to those who have rudely pierced her heart, gives repeated warnings before she asserts her mastery. There are ominous sounds throughout the gangways and breasts. The timbers creak and groan under their increasing weight. The rats desert the dangerous places before the timbers give way altogether. These indications of the strain are often perceptible for weeks beforehand, and then the duty of the inspector is to intervene. If he performs his duty with an eye single to the purpose for which his office was created he will either compel the owner of the mine to make it safe or empty it of those whose lives are imperiled. If he is the creature of the operators, as some of the inspectors are said to be, he may be indifferent to the condition of the mines or willing that operations shall be carried on after they are unsafe. His reappointment depends upon his ability to please the owners of the mines, not the men whose lives he is supposed to guard. There are districts in the state in which the corporation operating the colleries dictate the nomination of every inspector.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Fish in Deep Water.

A highly original observation upon the behavior of fish in deep water, so remarkable as to deserve special notice, is attributed to a long-experienced captain of a steam-fishing smack. The fishing boats belonging to the southern portions of the North sea found in their catch lately a disproportionately small quantity of codfish. The captain maintained that he had foreseen this for eight days, because most of the fish caught had sand in their stomachs. He claims to have observed that, just before the fish left the shallow water of the southern banks, they took sand into their stomachs, and soon after fish caught in deeper northern waters showed the same peculiarity. Then, when the time for migrating from the deep waters comes again, the fish dispose of the sand. The theory has been advanced that the sand is taken in as ballast, and is rejected when shallow water is to be returned to. The sand often differs in color and grain from that of the bottom where the fish are found. It is claimed that this sand may supply a guide for the fishermen.—N. Y. Ledger.

—France has 320,000 miles of highway.

Cow in the Second Story.

It used to be the favorite amusement of college boys to lead horses or cows up to the second story of buildings in order that the college authorities might have the satisfaction of taking the animals down again by means of derricks. It is very seldom that one of the poor creatures ventures to make the ascent itself, but such instances occasionally happen. One is reported from Miry Brook, Conn., where a farmer missed one of his cows, and as his family had gone to call on a neighbor, he locked up the house and went out to hunt for the missing animal. He tramped into dusk and searched every place he thought it possible that the cow might have strayed to, but without success. When he reached home his attention was attracted by a peculiar noise in the house, and hurried inside, and there was the cow in a room on the second floor. The animal had climbed the stairs after wandering in the open door. It took the farmer three hours to get the cow downstairs again.—Troy Times.

Can Live Without Air.

The common snail, although it has lungs, heart and general circulation, being in every respect an air-breathing animal, can yet live for an indefinite period without inhaling an atom of air. On the approach of winter the snail retreats into its shell, and hermetically closes the opening or the mouth with a secretion of silky texture, which is absolutely impervious to both air and water. Spallanzani kept a snail hermetically sealed in a glass tube, from which all air had carefully been removed, for four years and two months, and yet it resumed its normal functions within less than an hour after being exposed to a temperature of 90 degrees.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

OLD GUNS.

Being Given Away by Uncle Sam.

Grants to Patriotic Bodies at Charlestown Navy Yard.

The U. S. government has issued a formal invitation to the people of this country to help themselves to the old disused ordnance that is rotting in wind and weather in Charlestown navy yard and the other naval arsenal of this great country.

During the war the production of guns and amunition was carried on under forced pressure, and thousands of monsters—or what were then monsters—were cast and mounted, that could lay a city in ashes in half an hour, or send a hostile fleet to the coolness and quiet of Davy Jones' locker in a few rounds.

When the unpleasantness was over, all this material was left on Uncle Sam's hands, practically useless. Several methods were tried for its disposal. The arms could not be turned into ploughshares, neither could they be coined into money, because at that time there was no political party in the United States that believed in a Chinese system of currency.

WERE NOT NEEDED.

Fortunately for all concerned, there was no chance that the old sinews of war could be used in a fresh altercation, and if there had been a difference of opinion with anybody, the guns were completely out of date immediately after the war—some of them, in fact, were too old for use even before the first cannon ball bellowed over Fort Sumter.

The department of the navy could not elaborate any plan to dispose of the old ordnance, so congress finally took a hand and hit upon the altogether happy idea of distributing this material among the army memorial associations and G. A. R. posts.

Any memorial association, G. A. R. post, municipality or other patriotic or public organization that wants one or more of these valuable souvenirs has but to write to the secretary of the navy about it, and an order is immediately sent to the commandant of the Charlestown navy yard, or any of the other great navy yards of the country, to deliver such and such a piece of ordnance to the petitioner. The cost of packing or transportation, of course, is paid by the petitioners and not by government.

GIVING THEM AWAY.

The work of distribution is well under way at the Charlestown navy yard. There have been assigned for distribution seven mortars, 16 100-pounders, 67 32-pounders, and 1575 shells of various sizes and calibre. Some of the ordnance granted has already been carried away, while some of it has been delivered and awaits transportation.

There is still quite a collection of guns, mounts and ammunition in the yard, and they are one of the sights which visitors never miss when they look over Uncle Sam's Charlestown estate. They are neatly arranged in long rows, resting on a bed of parallel lines of oaken timbers with iron mountings. Of the guns yet undistributed there are 105 32-pounders of 57 cwt. apiece; 23 100-pounders Parrotts, and 10 13-inch mortars.

In addition there are piles and piles of cannon balls arranged in symmetrical pyramids. Some of these condemned projectiles are covered with a reddish layer of rust, while others are painted with black paint, and the process of corrosion is thus retarded. The guns are comparatively sound.

Visitors representing G. A. R. posts, soldiers' memorial associations and municipal bodies come to the yard from time to time, and make their choice for the organizations which they represent.

SOME WERE NEVER USED.

A good deal of this material was never used at all. The 32-pounders were cast mostly between 1848 and 1850, and have been lying where they are now ever since they were shipped from the foundry. Others have seen use during the war, and have been instrumental in saving the union. Two of the mortars were used by Porter's flotilla on the Mississippi and belched fire from the decks of the John Griffith and the Para.

Two of the 100-pounders were used on the corvette Richmond, four on the Brooklyn, and one apiece on the Port Royal, the Dakota, and the Ohio. The latter, however, was never on the water with her original armament.

Five of the mortars were sold at auction sometime ago for the metal.

Some of 32-pounders were used on the armored schooners John Griffith, Para, Sea Fawn, Henry Jones, Midnight, Albatross, Penguin and Euphrenia.

It is worthy of note that of the guns and ammunition assigned for distribution in the Charlestown navy yard, a disproportionately small number have been taken by Massachusetts associations. Pennsylvania heads the list, while out of 45 orders at present being filled at the navy yard, only two are from bodies belonging to this state.

IN OTHER NAVY YARDS.

In the three navy yards there are all told about 600 guns, all of which have outlived their usefulness. They are all obsolete weapons, and have been condemned by the ordnance office. None of them are light weight, and the smallest of the old stagers weighs more than 6000 lbs. Thirty years ago they were considered mighty fine weapons, and their yawning mouths seem capable of dealing enough death and destruction for half a dozen nations. Inventive progress, however, has left them far behind.

Among this aggregation of old-time thunderers, there are 32 13-inch mortars, with 36 mounts. Each of the mortars weighs 17,300 pounds, and each mount weighs 4000 pounds. The best use, it is considered, to which they can be put, is that of ornament at the base of a soldiers' monument or at the entrance to a park.

In addition to the mortars there are 200 11-inch guns, of the old muzzle-loading variety, each of which weighs 15,800 lbs. There are, besides, more than 60,000 projectiles, old-time cannon balls.

LADIES IN EARNEST.

An Echo of the Campaign.

Political managers and the public in general have been deeply interested in the national vote of the women in this campaign. This was carried on by means of postal cards sent by women all over the United States to a designated manufacturing office whose clerical force handled and counted the ballots. While it is true that the ballots cannot be counted for the favorite Presidential candidates of the fair voters, the movement has underneath it a deep significance, giving an excellent illustration of the drift of opinion among women, on public matters, as compared with the expressed opinion by the men.

It will be observed that the Prohibition vote is very much heavier in proportion to the other votes, than is shown in the men's election. There are some thousands of names which cannot be counted as votes, for the reason that only those whose signature appeared on the postal card or envelope, were counted. Many of the ladies, in their honesty of purpose, failed to realize that much unfairness might creep in if votes were counted on the testimony of some other individual than the voter. The vote has been strictly fair and accurately reported, no prejudice being allowed in the office of the Postum Cereal Food Coffee Co., whose office force, by the way are about equally divided in their opinions on the Gold and Silver question.

This Woman's Vote has called forth letters from many prominent women throughout the country, and while they know the votes do not count de facto, the writers appreciate the underlying motive in the movement, which is to bring to the front the idea of the right of women to express their opinion as to who shall make the laws under which they, as well as the men, are governed. There is a quaintness running through the following letter that will be appreciated, perhaps. The letter comes from Baltimore, Md. Never mind the name of the candidate she voted for.

"Postum Cereal Food Coffee Co.,
Battle Creek, Mich.

Gentlemen:—

I am very grateful to you for the beneficient privilege of voting this fall. Through this one act, you prove that you think your Mothers, wives, sisters and sweethearts are Citizens of these United States. I never was a foreigner, and yet this is the first time I have ever been a citizen.

I have never been a traitor, nor a spy of any kind, never was a bank-robber, counterfeiter or thief, never placed in a reformatory and let loose a few days before election, never been a drunkard nor a pauper. The opposite sex tell me the reason why I have never been a citizen, is because I was not born right. Therefore, for over half a century, I have been unable to cast my vote.

It pleases me to cast my vote for true American principles. I sincerely trust that the women of our land will be free to vote hereafter and demonstrate that we are progressing in the right direction, for our vote will be an honest one for an honest purpose, for right thinking, right living, which will give us an honest and intelligent lot of voters, whose efforts will be to put into office the man that will stand firm against all that is evil. It is of great concern to us who shall be our rulers, and if they stand for political power and greedy ends alone, the inevitable result must be wicked in their administration.

In the hope that the right may ever be uppermost, I am,

Yours very truly,
Mrs.——"

The postal cards and letters have been dragging along by various delays of mail, and it has been impossible to give a correct report until now. It is published, even at this late date, in order to give the reader a clear idea of how the ladies expressed themselves.

Battle Creek, Mich., Nov. 7th, 1896.

Personally appeared before me, a Notary Public in and for Calhoun County, Michigan, C. W. Post, Chairman of the Postum Cereal Co., Ltd., who makes affidavit that the above report of the receipts in the Women's Presidential Vote, is accurate and correct to the best of his knowledge and belief.

James Boughton, Notary Public.

The Company who have paid out a considerable sum of money to conduct this Woman's Presidential Vote, have conducted the matter in the best shape they were capable of, and that part of the work is presented to the ladies and to the politicians and public at large, with the knowledge that it has afforded considerable interest to all parties in this intensely interesting campaign. No prejudice of any kind has been allowed to creep into the work. It has naturally brought the Postum Cereal Food Coffee Co. into prominence, and this might be looked upon by some people as something of an advertisement for them. A great many letters have been received, inquiring about the Postum Food Coffee, and possibly it would not be amiss to make public explanation in this column.

Inquiry developed the fact that about one person in every three, has some form of disorder, caused by coffee drinking. They are slow to admit the reason, but find that their trouble leaves them when coffee is left out of their diet. It makes little matter about the theories, although it is known to physicians and chemists that certain alkaloids exist in coffee in small quantities, the same as found in morphine, whiskey, strychnine and tobacco. The proof is plain enough, that for some reason coffee is a direct poison to very many people. A warm, nourishing, palatable beverage is wanted at breakfast and perhaps at the other meals. The chocolate, cocoa, etc., fails to fill the want in many cases. After some hundreds of experiments, extending over a period of about twelve months, the Postum Food Coffee was finally discovered. It is a strictly pure product of the cereals (grains) alone. No coffee, chicory or other ingredients of any sort are contained in it. The color when brewed, is the deep seal brown of Mocha which changes to a rich golden brown when cream is added, and the taste is almost identical with the milder and more expensive grades of Java.

About 70 per cent. of Postum Food Coffee is made from the part of the wheat berry that contains the glutten and phosphates. It is well known that brain workers exhaust the phosphates rapidly.

It will well repay any individual who has any form of physical disorder, to try for ten days or two weeks leaving off the common coffee entirely and using Postum. A strong healthful nervous system will eliminate almost any form of disease, and by leaving off coffee, one gets rid of the active cause of nervous prostration, by taking on Postum Cereal Food Coffee, one directly builds in the phosphates and the needed elements to reconstruct the gray matter in the nerve centers throughout the body.

Samples of Postum can be had by mail, free upon application at the home office at Battle Creek, Michigan. Fancy grocers throughout the United States can furnish it.

The demand for Postum has been enormous, and has attracted the attention of many imitators. There is but one original and palatable Cereal Food Coffee, as can be easily determined by test. The red seals containing the words "It makes red blood" and the registered trade mark of Postum Cereal on the package, will protect the buyer.

Maine Sportsman.

The feature which makes the Maine Sportsman, the sportsmen's publication of New England, so valuable to sportsmen who hunt and fish, or contemplate doing these things in Maine, the paradise of the angler, hunter and naturalist, is the detailed reports from Maine's "outdoors" which are given extensively each month under the heads of "Hunting" "Fishing" and "Natural History." The November number is especially valuable in this regard, having nearly five pages devoted to news from the game regions alone. Not the least interesting feature of the number is a game supplement, giving the exact shipments of large game from all stations on the B. & A., which runs through the leading section of gameland. Especially charming among the illustrations is the frontispiece, a splendid half-tone cut of "Rangeley's Beauty Spot—the Cascade." For sale by newsdealers, or by Herbert W. Rowe, Pub., Bangor, Me. 10 cents a copy; $1 a year.

McKinley and Reed.

For Secretary of State in the Administration of President McKinley: the Hon Thomas B. Reed of Maine.

This is not a nomination. It is not even a suggestion. It is merely an indication of what the next President of the United States will do, if he follows the example of Lincoln, of Garfield, and of Harrison in selecting as his principal Cabinet adviser the most distinguished and most capable Eastern statesman among his competitors in the nominating Convention.

And what a truly American Secretary of State the Man of Maine would make!—New York Sun.

Farm Help and House Help.

TO THE EDITOR:—

As it is hard to get good help on a farm, and especially hard to get good help in the kitchen, some of your readers might like to employ one of the Armenian refugees who have lately arrived in Boston. They are sober, intelligent and industrious, and they are willing to work for small wages while learning the language. They do either farm work or housework, as desired. They have no objection to going into the country.

All the refugees are men. Very few women made their escape.

Persons near Boston are invited to call at the temporary home, 12 to 16 Waltham street, and select a man for themselves. Those at a distance are requested to communicate with Miss Alice Stone Blackwell, Dorchester, Mass.

Castle Square Theatre.

The attraction for the coming week at the Castle Square theatre, a revival of Bizet's "Carmen," will introduce many of the members of the company in roles in which they have won their greatest successes in the past; and the new comers of the present season promise to fully maintain the general excellence of the earlier productions of this notable opera. The opportunities afforded by the opera for picturesque effects in scenery and costumes, will be well improved under the supervision of General Director Jaxon, and Musical Director Hirschfeld will without doubt again display his thorough command of musical forces under his control. Bizet's music has made Carmen a standard opera in the opera houses of the world, and there are few works of the modern school which afford such excellent dramatic opportunities as the adaption of Prosper Merimee's story given its libretto. Following "Carmen" which is announced for a single week, a double bill consisting of "H. M. S. Pinafore" and "Cavaleria Rusticana" is announced.

Many people, when a little constipated, make the mistake of using saline or other drastic purgatives. All that is needed is a mild dose of Ayer's Pills to restore the regular movement of the bowels, and nature will do the rest. They keep the system in perfect order.

Your Boy Won't Live a Month.

So Mr. Gilman Brown, of 34 Milk St., South Gardner, Mass., was told by the doctors. His son had Lung trouble, following Typhoid Malaria, and he spent three hundred and seventy-five dollars with doctors, who finally gave him up, saying: "Your boy won't live a month." He tried Dr. King's New Discovery and a few bottles restored him to health and enabled him to go to work a perfectly well man. He says he owes his present good health to use of Dr. King's New Discovery, and knows it to be the best in the world for Lung trouble. Trial Bottles Free at the Drug Store of J. E. If we could weed out the selfish people of the world, those who care only for self and want others to do as they say without looking to them for any favors, we should have a fine paradise left, and it would not be overcrowded.

⁂

The total value of farm animals in this country in 1891 was $2,329,000,000; now it is $1,727,000,000, a falling off of $602,000,000. When agriculture is vigorous and prosperous it bears prosperity to all. Otherwise, otherwise.

⁂

The refusal of George B. Brown, secretary of the Brooklyn board of education, to accept an increase of $1,000 a year in his salary, has caused much talk complimentary to Mr. Brown.

⁂

A certain politician, lately condemning the government for its policy concerning the income tax, is reported to have said: "They'll keep cutting the wool off the sheep that lays the golden eggs until they pump it dry."

⁂

The Western Starch Company at West Hammond, Ind., has increased the wages of help 10 per cent. They had a cut-down of 5 per cent. in September.

⁂

A Biddeford barber has been expelled in disgrace from the union. It was proven beyond question that he invariably charged an Irishman 25 cents for a haircut, while he removed the fleece from a Frenchman for the trivial sum of 15 cents.

America is in the family of nations to stay; whoever thinks she can be downed is a poor reckoner. Just wait.

⁂

If there is one person more than another that deserves pity, it is the hen-pecked man. "That is so," said the Head of the Sidneys, "I know that's so."

⁂

Even after you have acquired the age when you are supposed to be self-reliant, how many times would you give all that the world has bestowed on you to be a child again, with a mother's love surrounding your every footstep!

⁂

A man cannot afford to be unfaithful under any circumstances; a man cannot afford to be mean at any time; a man cannot afford to do less than his best at all times and under all circumstances.

⁂

The self-respect of organized labor was thrown into strong and favorable relief by the action of the Pennsylvania Labor League, which unanimously refused to join in the effort to have the murderous assailant of H. C. Frick of the Carnegie Company pardoned.

Hints to Merchants and Clerks.

Order is the first law of a place of business; lack of it would be too trying to temper and wasteful of time. There can be no good reason for disorder nor idleness, and neither will be tolerated.

Be neither too soon nor too late; be ready promptly at the right time to begin the work of the day. "Well begun is half done."

Make welcome all who deserve it; but do not encourage idlers to stay after the courtesies are passed.

Your place of business should be clean and kept clean, for safety and comfort, as well as to please those who deal with you. No trash should be put elsewhere than in waste-baskets or metal cans, which ought to be carefully emptied in a safe place every night at closing time.

Always be on guard against evil-doers, without making it notable. It will not do to forget that there are black sheep in every flock.

The day's labor is not to be counted a task to get rid of, but a worthy use of time for the general good as well as your own.

The smoker is always a nuisance in a busy place, and often a terror, especially the cigarette fiend. And like unto him is the man who breathes liquor. Keep them away from you, and off the premises, if you can.

Loud talking is an offence to most people.

Punctuality is a shining virtue. Those who have it not may expect to be sincerely disliked.

HOW TO PREVENT CROUP.

Some Reading That Will Prove Interesting to Young Mothers. How to Guard Against the Disease.

Croup is a terror to young mothers and to post them concerning the cause, first symptoms and treatment is the object of this item. The origin of croup is a common cold. Children who are subject to it take cold very easily and croup is almost sure to follow. The first symptom is hoarseness; this is soon followed by a peculiar rough cough, which is easily recognized and will never be forgotten by one who has heard it. The time to act is when the child first becomes hoarse. If Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is freely given all tendency to croup will soon disappear. Even after the croupy cough has developed it will prevent the attack. There is no danger in giving this remedy for it contains nothing injurious.

165,132 plurality for McKinley and 155,182 plurality for Wolcott in Massachusetts will come pretty near being the banner republican state in percentage, of all the states that have over 10 electoral votes.

---

The election is over but we are not yet relieved from the cartons or caricatures that the papers continue to publish of the leading politicans. Many of these have been beneath the dignity of journalism.

---

The insignificant vote that Mr. Grant of Hyde Park got for senator once more proves that a personal attack upon a competitor is not the best means of obtaining votes. Mr. Grant received only 2853 votes to Mr. Flint's 7354 and thus was beaten worse than any former democratic candidate for the office within our memory.

---

The fact that Col. Lovell received a majority that is greater by 10,000 than his majority last year is a compliment to his popularity and merit which his townspeople appreciate. We think the Colonel comes pretty near being in line for promotion to the lieut-governorship after Gov. Wolcott shall have retired or stepped higher and Mr. Crane shall be promoted to be governor. That would mean that Colonel Ben would be governor of the state in five or six years.

---

The new directory of Weymouth and Braintree by the J. H. Hogan company for which people have been looking for some time and which was delayed by the publisher for the revising and improving is out this morning and in the brief time we have had to examine it we would say it is a very complete thing and commends itself to the public. It is a work of 411 pages and embraces a fund of information, which should be in the hands of every person interested in the political business and social life of either or both of the towns for which the work has been compiled.

---

A man who was approached for a contribution to a fund for celebrating the election was told that he had been put down for $5. "Not a dollar," he replied, "The election is over and well settled. It has already cost lots of money with great losses of time and business and all should now turn their attention to hastening the promised good times. If your committee will raise a fund to see that every family in town that is too poor to have a Thanksgiving dinner shall be provided with one, and there are many, I will give $10." While the gentleman is right in deprecating a waste of money when it would do many families so much good we think that a large amount of enthusiasm and joy in celebrating a victory that means so much to the workingmen is not altogether wrong. We would like to see the poor provided for on Thanksgiving day and upon all days and recommend the idea of the gentleman quoted above to our citizens to be acted upon both individually and collectively.

---

In answer to "A Sufferers inquiry" in regard to the roads of East Weymouth we would say that the story to be told is a long one and needs to be discussed by a public indignation meeting of the citizens. There are enough indignant ones to hold a formidable meeting and make their power felt. Evidently one difficulty is that with nearly a hundred miles of road in town we cannot expect to spend four-fifths of the money raised in macadamizing three or four miles of road and keep the other ninety odd miles in repair with the balance of the appropriation. Another difficulty is that for several successive administrations each one has been trying to make water run up hill on Broad street, this is contrary to all laws of gravitation as laid down by the GreatArtificer of the universe and expounded by Newton, Huxley and others. Again the people of East Weymouth are responsible for the condition of Broad street by not having taken a proper interest when projects have been submitted for its improvement. A few inches more or less in a man's front yard is not a matter to be considered when weighed against a great benefit to the masses. In conclusion we simply say that when the people come together and unite upon what is right they will be sure to get it, in the mean time they may go on and kick as much as they choose in small groups and it will amount to nothing.

Dun's Review on the Election.

A great evolution has been effected this week in the conditions which control business. It could not be in any fair degree reflected as yet in transactions or in records, but there is ample evidence already that a crushing weight has been lifted and rolled away, and the business world has begun to adjust itself to a state of freedom and security which it has not known for years. Dread of immeasurable disaster no longer locks up resources and paralyzes enterprise, and new contracts involving many millions have become binding since the election. The rush for stocks on Wednesday lifted the average for all railways $1.16 per share in a single day and Trust stocks $1.54, and in many of the most active the advance was so sudden that heavy sales for realizing caused some reaction. The wild advance of over 3 cts. in wheat on Monday and Wednesday was also followed by realizing and decline on Thursday. But the instant vanishing of the premium on gold, which had reached about two per cent., the unlocking of many millions which had been hoarded, the collapse of the interest rate to 6 and 5 1-2 per cent., and the quick demand for American securities on foreign account, are signs of more lasting promise. The lifting of the load of peril and of fear, all men know, means an incalculable relief for all industry and trade.

McKINLEY AND HOBART.

Republicans and Democrats Celebrate.

South Weymouth Alive With Noise and Ablaze with Red Light.

Last Tuesday evening, saw South Weymouth one blaze of red light and alive with the noise of bursting cannon crackers, the reports of cannon and guns, all in honor of the election of Wm. McKinley and Garret A. Hobart to the two highest official positions in the United States. But the demonstration was not alone to honor the above, but to honor those of our citizens who already hold high official positions and those who will hold them the coming year, namely:—Henry A. Thomas, private secretary to Gov. Wolcott; Benj. F. Lovell, councillor; James H. Flint, senator; Louis A. Cook, clerk of courts of Norfolk County and Edward B. Nevin, representative to the General Court.

The night was all that could be desired. Houses and stores all along the route of the procession were illuminated from top to bottom and republicans and democrats alike vied with each other for the honor of having the best display, while red fire was burned in quantities.

The procession was headed by the Weymouth band and the Columbian drum corps and was followed by citizens bearing torches and guns. Fireworks were set off from a wagon in advance and the rear was brought up with the cannon and rifles. The line of march was through Pleasant street to Park avenue, through Park avenue to Main to Nashs Corner; through Front to Main, to Columbian, to Union, to Reed avenue, to Central, to Pleasant and Pond to Hollis square; countermarching through Hollis to Derby, to Main, to Pleasant to Columbian square. Upon arrival at Columbian square the procession broke up and all who had taken part, repaired to Music hall where a collation was served.

The celebration was a success and the credit for it is due the Republican Ward committee, which is composed of Gordon Willis, E. B. Nevin, A. E. Vining, W. R. Field and H. W. Sears.

BOLD SNEAK THIEF.

Residence of L. Hattie Barnes Entered at North Weymouth.

A valuable silk cape belonging to Miss L. Hattie Barnes was taken from her residence on North street at five-thirty o'clock Wednesday afternoon, the thief effecting his entrance through the front door which had been left open in order to lower the temperature.

There is no clue to the thief except that later in the evening one of the clerks at Bartlett's store noticed a man on the platform attempting to conceal a cape under his coat. After he had accomplished his object he cooly walked into the store and inquired the price of matches and then marched out of the store taking the road to Quincy.

FOOT BALL.

Thayer Academy, 16; Weymouth High, 0.

The Weymouth High school foot ball eleven visited South Braintree last Monday afternoon and were defeated by the above score.

The Academy eleven made their scores in the first half on fumbles and gains around Weymouth High's ends. They were unable to score in the second half on account of good work by the visitors.

Weymouth gained mostly by bucking the line.

Delphi Council, No. 12.

D. G. C. of C. Jones of Cambridge, assisted by C. of C. Sumner and F. P. Dyer installed the following officers of Delphi Council, No 12, of East Weymouth, in Mechanics hall, last Friday night.

C. of C., George W. Dyer; J. of C., Waldo Turner; Tr. of C., E. B. Tirrell; D. M. of C., T. Margetts; W. of C., John Boodroe; S. of C., E. B. Gardner; R. of C., D. P. Lincoln; M. of C., L. W. Cain; P. of C., L. Thompson; Chaplain of C., Nathan Goodspeed.

A good number of home and visiting brethren were in attendance and the council enters upon its new term with a pleasant outlook.

Organ Music.

We are informed that John Hermann Loud of Springfield will give an organ recital in Mechanics Hall, Boston, on Wednesday, November 18, at eleven o'clock a. m., under the auspices of the "Noah's Ark Bazaar" Fair which occupies Mechanics building for the week from Nov. 16 to Nov. 21.

Mr. Loud is giving every other week a recital of the most classical organ music at the First Church, Springfield.

These recitals are well attended and heartily commended by the musical critics of the local press.

Entertainment.

The second entertainment in the course under the direction of the Ladies' circle of the Pilgrim church was given before a large audience Wednesday evening.

Although Mr. David is a stranger to North Weymouth audiences his work in Boston and other places needs no comments.

The programme:

Piano duet, Leiter, Misses Cushing and Newton.

Farce "Straw Man," Misses Oldham and Jenkins and Curtis.

Reading, "Widder Green," Mr. David.

Piano duet, Pinsuiti, Misses Cushing and Newton.

Reading, "Old Hayseed," Mr. David.

Vocal duet, "In the Cross of Christ I Glory," Mr. Bates and Miss Thayer.

Reading, Selected, Mr. David.

Baritone solo, "Son of the Desert," Mr. Bates.

Cross Country Foot Race.

A handicap cross country foot race will be held under the auspices of the Quincy Y. M. C. A. on Thanksgiving Day. Race is sanctioned by the Y. M. C. A. Athletic league open to competitors from Quincy, Braintree and Weymouth. A good list of prizes will be offered, first prize is a gold watch guaranteed by Holden the jeweler. Many entries have already been received. Entries close with the handicapper Wm. Lamb, 100 Hancock street, Quincy, entrance fee 25 cents.

SOUND MONEY JUBILEE AT NORTH WEYMOUTH.

Red Fire, Rockets, Steam Whistles and Cannon.

Over Three Hundred in Line.

The largest political demonstration in the history of North Weymouth occurred Thursday evening. Not only Republicans but life-long Democrats helped to make the celebration a grand success.

Nearly all the residences along the line of march were decorated and the streets were one line of red fire. Some of the decorations noticed were at the residences of A. W. Bartlett, W. A. Drake, W. O. Collyer, E. S. Beals and L. B. Curtis and also the fine display at the the Wessagussett club.

The new whistle on the factory of Torrey, Curtis and Tirrell groaned the entire evening, and cannon crackers, rockets and rifles added to the confusion.

The gunners in charge of the Wessagussett cannon kept up a continual firing.

A feature of the parade was the electric display on a Quincy and Boston electric.

The procession formed at the Park at eight o'clock and marched over the following streets—Athens, Sea, Bridge, North, Lovell, Neck, Newton, Pearl, Shaw, Howard and Curtis.

The formation of the line follows:

Wessagussett Drum Corps
Lovell Riflers
North Weymouth Battalion
Hingham Band
Quincy Battalion
Young America Drum Corps and Battalion
Quincy Drum Corps.

After the parade the battalions were refreshed with coffee, crackers and cheese at the Engine house.

Citizen Hobart.

Citizen Hobart is much too censorious in criticism of his dearly beloved brethren of the Bryan-Sewall-Williams Club. He has left that club, never to return, because as he explains among other reasons, he lost while in their society "an overcoat, three pairs of rubbers, a half dozen umbrellas and a tall hat." Considering that the chief plank in the Bryan-Sewall-Williams platform is that the eighth commandment ought to be abolished, or words to that effect, what did the citizen expect? Besides, they needed those things, and as the citizen is aware, necessity knows no law, not even the Decalogue. They wanted that overcoat because they had a foreboding that the morning of November 4 they would be left out in the cold. They needed the half dozen umbrellas because there are at least that many members of the club who do not know enough to come in when it rains. The tall hat was required for "Tim" Coakley to talk through. As for the three pairs of rubbers, of course, they were needed to manufacture new consciences for the members. As it was, we are reliably informed that the three pairs of rubbers did not furnish anywhere nearly enough material.

Citizen Hobart, in shaking off the dust from his feet as a testimony against the Bryan-Sewall-Williams Club says "They didn't get my boots, for I kept them on." We always did maintain that Citizen Hobart is one of the most unappreciated statesmen in the country. His greatness betrays itself even in his most casual remarks. Thus in merely mentioning the seemingly trivial circumstance that he kept his boots on while engaged in faithful, if unsuccessful, efforts to rescue his country from the impending ruin to be caused by 100-cent dollars, he discloses, all the more clearly because, with his characteristic modesty he does not mean to do so, his immense superiority in point of practical prudence to that other distinguished free silver, Bryan democratic statesman, Senator Call of Florida, whose well-known practice it is when in the United States senate chamber, to take off his boots and save his country in his stockinged feet.—Boston Advertiser.

HABITS.

Some Have Them and Others are Not Without.

A man likes some hot drink for breakfast, and coffee suits his taste about as well as anything. It seems hard that so many should be denied coffee because it upsets their liver and disagrees with them in one way and another, still this condition does exist, and when a man finds it hurts him, he is generally sensible enough to leave it out of his bill of fare, for it is quite a bit pleasanter to feel well all day than to enjoy a drug two or three minutes and pay for it in aches and ails or sickness.

A new breakfast drink has come into use, difficult to tell from coffee, but made entirely of grains and which never produces any disagreeable results. It has the clean, pungent flavor so much enjoyed in coffee, but while coffee hurts the system Postum Cereal goes to work in downright good earnest to "make red blood."

It is composed only of the grains intended by nature for man's subsistence. These are skillfully blended and prepared in such a way as to produce a hot drink the fac-simile of rich Mocha or Java coffee, but fattening and healthful. Stomach, liver and bowel troubles disappear when coffee and tea are left off and the food drink, Postum, taken in their place.

This toothsome drink goes about three times as far as coffee, and produces health and comfort where trouble formerly existed. It is made by the Postum Cereal Co. Lim., of Battle Creek, Mich. When a man or woman "feels mean" day after day or every few days, it can quite safely be charged to incorrect habits, and coffee and tea drinking are the real cause of more bodily disorder than any one knows. A habit is hard to get over, but when a delicious tasting article is offered which produces health instead of tearing it down, the change is easy to make. Prominent grocers say it exactly meets a want, and persons who have been kept from coffee on account of their health are now having all the enjoyment of coffee drinking and getting fat over it.

"Just as good" as Postum Cereal are words used to defraud the public.

The wife of Mr. Leonard Wells, of East Brimfield, Mass., had been suffering from neuralgia for two days, not being able to sleep or hardly keep still, when Mr. Holden, the merchant there, sent her a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and asked that she give it a thorough trial. On meeting Mr. Wells the next day he was told that she was all right, the pain had left her within two hours, and that the bottle of Pain Balm was worth $5.00 if it could not be had for less. ## BOWLING.

Norfolk Cycle Club, 2445; Philedians, 2383.

The first game in the Massachusetts Amateur Bowling league that the Norfolk Cycle club has taken part in was played on the alleys at South Weymouth last night and the visiting team was the Philedians of Waltham.

The home team won the match with a margin of sixty-three pins.

The game was started at 6.45 o'clock in order to enable the visitors to catch the 9.28 electric to Braintree.

The first string netted the home team 840 pins while the visitors were close behind with 824.

The good work was continued by the Norfolk making a total of 845, but the visitors could get but 754, giving the home team a lead of 107 pins.

The visitors won the third string, scoring 805 to 760, thus cutting the margin down to sixty-two.

Some good bowling was seen and many bad breaks were cleaned up.

The score—

The next League game will be bowled next Thursday evening at South Weymouth with the Reviews of Chelsea.

The team bowled the largest total in the league this week, being twenty pins higher than its nearest competitor.

Melrose Highlands, 2453; Norfolk Cycle Club, 2234.

The Norfolk Cycle club team visited Melrose Highlands last Tuesday evening and were badly beaten by the home team.

While the visitors had some hard luck, still they did some of the poorest bowling of the season, which is partly the result of lack of practice.

Better work will have to be done in the future or the team will end up the season at the bottom of the list.

Algonquin Club.

The Algonquin Whist club of North Weymouth had a very enjoyable time at the residence of Miss Anna Clark, Saturday evening, the highest scores being made by Miss Maude Vanston, Mrs. H. A. Dyer, Lyman J. Peterson and Edward Brown.

The following ladies were elected to membership:—Miss Mattie Shaw, Miss Eva M. Feltis and Miss Clara W. Beals.

The next meeting of the club will be with Mrs. Henry Dyer, Saturday evening, Nov. 14.

East Braintree M. E. Church Notes.

Evangelical services will begin in the church next Sunday evening at 7 o'clock and continue through the week. The weekly meetings will begin at 7.30 o'clock. Speakers will be announced at the services. Miss Emma Butler of Providence, R. I., will lead the singing. These meetings are to be held for the welfare of the public. Let there be a hearty response to this call and come "believing." All are cordially invited.

The annual meeting of the Ladies' Aid society was held at the home of Mrs. W. J. Kelly, Tuesday afternoon. The following officers were elected: Miss S. L. Bennett, president; Mrs. W. J. Kelly, vice-president; Miss S. L. Bennett, Mrs. L. F. Johnson, Mrs. A. E. Pratt, directresses, Miss L. M. Clark, secretary and treasurer. This society begins the new year with eight orders on hand, "tufting comfortors," presumably owing to the new administration. All orders promptly filled.

THE PEOPLE'S COLUMN

The column under this title will be given to the people for a free discussion of any and all subjects the management of the paper distinctly disclaiming all responsibility for the opinions here expressed.

Messrs. Editors:

Allow me to ask through you or some of your many readers what particular crime East Weymouth has committed that her streets both for carriage and pedestrian travel should be in such a deplorable condition?

Whether on foot or in a carriage, one takes his or her life in their hands when they attempt to make a pilgrimage from any given point to another, especially after dark; holes and pitfalls are in the street and washouts and gullies in the sidewalks. It is not agreeable or safe in riding to have the carriage wheels drop into a hole from six inches to a foot deep or when walking to step down from two to six inches, driving your anatomy together with a thud.

I have never been a town divisionist but I do believe in dividing some part of the money raised for highways in reasonably equitable manner.

A SUFFERER.

BUSY LIFE CLOSED.

C. H. Pratt Passes Away.

The Community of East Weymouth was startled Monday afternoon to learn that C. H. Pratt had suddenly been called from the scenes and associations which had known him so well.

Mr. Pratt had been in failing health for some time and those who were most intimate with him were looking for a sudden termination of his life but hardly expected it so soon. The deceased was attending to his regular business on Saturday and was out on Sunday, Monday morning he planned to go to Boston and as he was dressing, his wife heard a fall and rushing into the room found him lying unconsious on the floor. A physician was immediately summoned and every aid possible used, but in a few hours he passed away.

Mr. Pratt was the oldest of a family of six children of Bela Lyon and Nabby Pratt and was born in East Weymouth sixty-six years ago; he was the last survivor of the family.

Few men have ever lived in the place who have taken a more active interest in its business and social affairs. He early identified himself with the Methodist church and was a worker in its every department conducting its music for many years and was a member of the board of trustees at the time of his death. In Crescent Lodge I. O. O. F. he was a working member and filled many offices of importance. Orphans Hope Lodge F. A. M. found in him a brother who took a deep interest in its work. He was one of the founders of South Shore Commandery K. T. and filled the position of Prelate from its organization in 1870 to his death.

The last sad rites were performed over his remains at his late home yesterday afternoon and seldom have so many people gathered at a private residence in East Weymouth to pay a tribute to the departed. The body rested in the east parlor literally buried in flowers from the various organizations to which the deceased belonged and from friends and relatives. At either end of the casket as a guard of honor from South Shore Commandery were Em. Sirs T. J. Evans and F. H. Mason.

The services were conducted by the Rev. W. I. Ward of the M. E. church assisted by Rev. J. H. McDonald of Newport, R. I., and Rev. Daniel Evans. The Columbian quartette of Boston, gave several fine selections, among them "The Home Land," "Still with Thee," "Passing out of the Shadow," Remember now thy Creator" and "God be with You," a part of them were given in connection with the Masonic burial service which was rendered at the house by Orphans Hope Lodge F. A. M., as was also the Oddfellows service, rendered by Crescent Lodge I. O. O. F.

At the conclusion of the service the remains were conveyed to the Old North cemetery escorted by Crescent Lodge I. O. O. F., South Shore Commandery Knights Templars, Orphans Hope Lodge F. A. M., and Trustees of the East Weymouth Savings Bank.

Bela P. French, F. D. Thayer, W. J. Dunbar and C. T. Humphrey of the Commandery acted as body guard and the bearers were D. M. Easton and D. J. Pratt, of Orphans Hope Lodge; E. Q. S. Litchfield and J. F. Cushing, of Crescent; E. G. Bates, of the Trustees; and Geo. W. Dyer, of the M. E. church.

Brief concluding ceremony was held at the tomb and just as the last words were being spoken and the benediction pronounced the rain drops which had been threatening began to fall and a silent prayer was offered that there might be a truth in the adage that "blessed are the dead upon whom the rain falls."

THE ZOO.

The Old Public Library in Boston Has Been Transformed into a Zoological Garden.

The old Public Library in Boston had its long and useful career interrupted when the most valuable collection of books in the world was removed from its shelves to the new and more magnificent new Public Library in Copley Square. But its usefulness as a public educator will now be continued. It has been transformed into a grand Zoological Garden to be known as the Zoo. The doors are first thrown open to the public Monday, Nov. 16, at 2 o'clock.

On the floor level of Bates hall, on either side, where the recesses contained volume after volume of valuable books, will be established great iron cages containing the finest specimens of tigers, leopards, kangaroos, wolves, bears, and a dozen or more magnificent members of the lion family. A notable feature on this floor will be the famous elephant "Jolly," known the world over as a particularly great friend of the children. "Jolly" rides them on his back, lifts them with his trunk and amuses them generally.

In the center of the hall will be erected what will be known as "The Exhibition Den," where each day, at hourly intervals, the process of training wild animals will be illustrated by some of the world's most famous animal trainers. This feature in itself will be so novel and instructive that it should draw great crowds.

The management promises that every department of this new amusement resort will be above reproach, and proposes to provide nothing but wholesome, novel and instructive amusement, which shall be thoroughly in accordance with the historic uses of this building. Not only will sightseers find here a great variety of things to interest them, but it affords a valuable and unprecedented opportunity for all classes of local artists to have animal subjects from real life.

After Monday, Nov. 16, the Zoo will be open daily from 10 a. m. to 11 p. m., and the admission for adults will be 25 cents, for children 10 cents.

Prof. Ranloff's celebrated orderless cages will be introduced here, for the first time in Boston, and the ventilation of Old Bates hall is well known to be absolutely perfect.

A great feature and one that is absolutely novel to any public, will be the "Feeding of the Carnivora." This occurs each day at 4 p. m. and 10.30 p. m. The ferocity of the animals is then at its height.

A handsome reception room for ladies will be found conveniently located on the Bates Hall floor, and a smoking room is provided for gentlemen.

Effects of the recent storm at the beach demonstrate the truth of the scriptures in the matter of building houses on the sand. There has been quite a demand in the past few years for house lots close to the water and prices have run up to enormous figures, some sandy houselots costing something like 30 cents a foot, while land somewhat back does not sell readily. It must be disappointing to those people who have paid such prices to come here after the storm to find their front yard moved around to the back of the house.—Cohasset Sentinel.

FRESH LITERARY GOSSIP.

Herbert Spencer and James Bryce are among those suspected by English reviewers of having written the reply to Max Nordau entitled "Regeneration."

James Payn, who edited Thackeray's famous Cornhill Magazine for the last 13 years, writes his valedictory in the June number. Ill-health prompted his resignation.

John Boyd Thacher's large folio volume, "The Continent of America; its discovery and Baptism," which has just been published, is limited to 275 signed copies.

President Paul Kruger's library has hitherto consisted of two volumes—the Bible and "Pilgrim's Progress." Now he is said to have become so fond of Mark Twain's humor that he has ordered a set of the American writer's works. Huckleberry Finn and Tom Sawyer always were careful of the company they kept.

Evelyn Briggs Baldwin, the member of the Chicago Academy of Sciences who accompanied Peary in his north polar expedition as meteorologist, has issued a volume entitled "The Search for the North Pole," in which he sums up all former expeditions and announces his intention of organizing a new one himself at an early day.

Kipling's "Letters of Marque," descriptive of the old cities of Rajputana, written when he was a reporter for the Pioneer, were issued in pamphlet form in India, but could not hitherto be published in England on account of some copyright trouble. This has now been removed, and the essays will soon be brought out in London.

Surviving friends of Gambetta are exceedingly wroth with Henri Rochefort, who is publishing his own reminiscences in a Paris journal. Whether Gambetta died of pistol wounds, and whether these wounds were inflicted by a woman after an all-night orgy are questions which Rochefort professes to decide in the affirmative by new personal evidence, but he has been promptly met with categorial denials and scientific refutation.

FOREIGN NEWS NOTES.

Rontgen rays have been used to take pictures of flowers. They show the ovules inside the ovary in an unopened bud, the seeds within a seed vessel, and even the veins upon the white petals of a flower.

Brent house, at Brentford, where Nell Gwynne lived, caught fire recently. The billiard room was burned, but the broad staircase up which Charles II. is said to have ridden his charger was untouched. The house is used now by a conservative club.

A portion of Wordsworth's library, 3,000 volumes of which were sold in 1859, will be put up at auction soon in London. It contains many presentation copies, one of them Matthew Arnold's "Strayed Reveller, 1849," a very scarce book.

Swaziland's 18-year-old king has taken to the mountains. Some one presented him with a Winchester rifle, which he tried effectively on six of his subjects. Then it occurred to him that the Transvaal officials might object, and he got himself out of the way.

Russia and Japan, it is announced, are to exercise a joint protectorate over Corea. Meanwhile the Japanese, who are secretly perfecting a military map of eastern Siberia, will continue to strengthen themselves on land and sea. Gen. Yamagata, now at Moscow, is getting an inside glimpse of the czar's prowess.

More than 10,000 persons are engaged in the manufacture of explosives in England. Last year 40 persons in the business were killed and 167 injured by accidents.

In India telegraphic dispatches are headed: "After compliments," the receiving operator writing out a set of complimentary formula established by the telegraph company, which is indispensable in oriental countries.

Paris gelee groseillee, which the careless take to be currant jelly, is simply agar-agar, or Ceylon sea moss, flavored with chemical essences which give it the taste of fruit. The authorities refuse to interfere with the sale of the substance on the ground that it is harmless.

Next year the English church will celebrate the 1300th anniversary of the baptism of the first English king by St. Augustine. The dean and chapter of Canterbury still hold land in Essex given by King Ethelbert of Kent, which has been in their uninterrupted possession since 597.

"Have you seen Mathilde's new dress?" asked Mrs. Cumrox.

"No, I haven't seen Matilda's new dress," was the not very genial reply; "and what is more, I don't want to see it."

"I should think you would have enough of the sentiments of a father about you to take an interest in what Mathilde wears."

"I can find out all I want to know about Matilda's dresses," he rejoined, persisting in his own pronunciation, "without seeing them."

"Oh, indeed. Then perhaps you can describe the material of this one."

"I can; not minutely, but none the less accurately. The most conspicuous thing about the material is a large check. I feel sure about that, because I wrote the check myself."—Washington Star.

Knew Too Much.

Mr. Chips—Mr. Greathead, I want to map out a line of journalistic study for you.

Young Assistant—I am pretty well up to newspaper knowledge as it is, sir.

Mr. Chips—I am aware of that, Mr. Greathead, but you know too much. I would suggest that you devote one hour each day to forgetting something.—Chips.

The Difference.

Mr. Frankstown—There goes young Mr. Homewood cycling with that pretty grass widow.

Mr. Point Breeze—Yes; he's deeply infatuated with her. He tells me he can't live without her.

Mr. Frankstown—That's odd. I know her ex-husband very well, and he confided to me that he could not live with her.—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

Her Version.

"Sixteen to one," she murmured; "yes,
This dazzling scheme I clearly guess;
It fairly makes my poor head whirl—
Sixteen engagements for one girl."
—Chicago Record.

A MILK FAMINE THREATENED.

Farmer Reaper—Hello, Waters, fine weather this.

Waters (the dairyman)—Yes, very fine, but if we don't have some rain pretty soon I don't know what I shall do for milk.—Chicago Tribune.

Another Verse-ion.

He stood beside the hotel bed
He'd paid two dollars for and said,
"It's horrible to have to sleep
Upon a mattress stuffed with cheap
Excelsior!"
—L. A. W. Bulletin.

One Chance Left.

Great Statesman—I have just received a letter from my brother. He has failed in business again. No matter what he tries, he fails utterly. Singular, isn't it?

Ordinary Citizen—Well, if he is too incompetent for any trade, business or profession, why in the world doesn't he go into politics?—N. Y. Weekly.

Not Up to the Requirements.

"I'm sorry, miss," said the leading director of the school in Milkweed township to the young woman who had applied for the position of teacher, "but your orthography ain't up to grade. You don't seem to know how to spell chimbly."—Chicago Tribune.

His Good Opinion.

She—It is no use, Mr. De Tone; in my present state of mind I would not accept the best man living.

He—No; I see you won't; but, at any rate, you will have the satisfaction of knowing that he has offered himself.—Hartford Times.

THE SONG OF THE CAMP.

Camping out; what rarest pleasure of the sportsman's golden leisure
When he bids adieu to worldly care,
And is lost amid the glory of creation's primal story
In the woodland, miles away from anywhere.

When the morning sunlight gleaming o'er the hills with all the seeming
Of the light that warms Arcadia's verdant shore,
Marks a vision to inspire in the heart the native fire
Of the free-born race that ruled these realms of yore.

Here, in perfect peace and quiet, nurtured on the frugal diet
All dependent upon skill with rod and gun,
Flow the richest founts of reason, where no hint of mortal treason
Ever dawns between the courses of the sun.

Draw the fire and turn the spittle, stir the coffee (just a little),
Sink the oven in this bed of mossy loam;
While the bonfire, brightly burning, starts, perchance, an instant's yearning
For the scenes that light the glowing hearth at home.

Reminiscent songs and stories, oft rehearsed with added glories,
Greet the ears of night with melody and jest;
Till the final, crowning number, yields to nature's touch of slumber,
And the forest sings its lullaby of rest.
—Frank C. Riehl, in Outing.

A WONDERFUL INSTRUMENT

The sun shone delightfully on the wedding day of Miriam Brooks. The friends who offered congratulations on the auspicious occasion had less need than usual to reconcile truth and good manners; for that she was pretty and as good as she was beautiful was a fact generally conceded, even on days when she was not necessarily the objective point of all compliments; and that the character of Tom, her husband, both financially and morally, was such as is supposed to form a firm basis for the construction of a prosperous life, was equally evident.

As if this were not enough, the happy pair had been fitted out for their new career by the bride's parents with every reasonable material contrivance for comfort and pleasure which a good, but not extravagant architect could devise and a first-class furnishing warehouse could further.

The first suggestion of the imperfection which characterizes every mortal state and puts its mark on every human endeavor, came into this new joint life when Aunt Cecilia—Tom's aunt, or his fairy godmother, as he called her—made her first morning visit to the bride and tour of inspection of the house.

"Look at my beautiful new piano, Mrs.—I mean Aunt Cecilia," said Miriam, as she led the way into a pleasant room with wide outlook towards the south, supposed to be devoted more intimately to family purposes than the general reception-room. "I'm afraid it was extravagant to buy it just now, but you know I want to do all I can to make home attractive to Tom—and a little music now and then adds so much." And Miriam looked to the older woman for the approval which perhaps her own conscience did not wholly give. She was a little disappointed.

"Yes," said Aunt Cecilia, quietly; "a home without music is worse than a flower without fragrance; but I have not been accustomed to look upon a piano as an essential to that end. In my old home there was another instrument which was thought much more important to a well-ordered house, and each little girl was carefully taught the use of it, so that when she carried it with her into her husband's home it was a very important part of her outfit. The spell its music exercised was a powerful one, little understood here, but quite as useful in driving away the blues and other family pests as was the famous pipe which freed the town of Hamlin from rats."

Miriam was not yet sufficiently posted in her husband's family history to know where the "old home" was which Aunt Cecilia referred to, though it was evident, from the inflection and quality of her voice, if from nothing else, that she was a native-born American. But before the bride could satisfy her curiosity on this point, or as to the strangely seductive fiddle or horn which was in vogue there, other callers interrupted the conversation which was not destined to be taken up again for many a long day.

And some of the days which followed were all too long for the mistress of Crow's Nest, as the pretty home was called. Not that things went wrong; a tragedy would not have been so dully tiresome. Tom did not take to drink; he came home punctiliously to dinner every day, and showed his wife that deference and courtesy which a self-respecting man never omits except because he does not understand its significance.

It was after dinner that the rub came—at the hour when her youthful imagination had depicted the cheerful glow of lamp and firelight falling upon a sheet of music they two should be scanning together, or on the book which she should read aloud to her weary but contented lord. These pictures had remained fancy sketches for the most part through the accumulating years of married life.

Tom grew more and more inclined to excuse himself for a quiet hour in his den. The children seemed to find nurse's crooning voice a better preparation for the bed-time hush than anything mamma could say or sing to them, and the young men from the neighboring institution of learning, who were always dropping into Mrs. Heard's parlor for a bit of advice or encouragement, seemed never to find out that Mrs. Brooks would be glad to serve her day and generation as gracefully as that plain little woman in the next house evidently had a knack of doing.

Miriam being, as I have hinted, a sensible woman, began to look the situation in the face, hoping by dint of self-criticism to find out what she lacked which Mrs. Heard had and gave to everyone who came within her reach. The looking-glass told her that the pink and white prettiness which had been praised in the bride had vanished with her youth. But she was always nicely, even stylishly, dressed, and could not make herself believe that her personal appearance was a negative factor in the attractive influence she would like to exercise. She tried to get some enlightenment from her husband and other men she met as to Mrs. Heard's power to fascinate, for the town being a small one social lines had to be very strictly drawn, or not at all, and they happened to separate the two good ladies of this tale, so that were it not for the greater freedom from convention allowed to men, they might never have known of each other's existence. All that Miriam could learn, however, was that there was "a touch," "an atmosphere" about that other house which she was left to infer was absent from her own. A touch of brightness, she reasoned, must be supplied by household decorations which should be striking enough to attract attention, yet tasteful enough to disarm criticism. She gave herself up to the embroidery craze—that snare of those who think they cannot afford to buy works of art, therefore prefer not to know how much they are spending—and often plied her needle until her muscles were stiff, her eyes dull, and her voice sharp with the tension of worn nerves. And yet her beautiful centerpieces did not supply the charm which she had felt to be lacking to her dinner table; her artistic sofa pillows did not invite to that repose of mind and body for which she had hoped.

That wonderful instrument, hinted at years ago by Aunt Cecilia, sometimes recurred to the dissatisfied wife, and at last, one day, she put on her hat, resolved to see that dear old lady, expressly to find out more about the subject which had never again come uppermost in the general conversation between these two good friends and relatives.

Aunt Cecilia was about starting for church when her caller arrived at her door, it being the season of Lent, and therefore of extra week-day privileges for worshipers. She invited Miriam to accompany her, promising, when she heard the object of the visit, to tell what she could about the instrument on the way thither.

What she said would perhaps not have struck Miriam forcibly but for an accidental circumstance which brought back and emphasized her discourse during the church service. They went into a pew occupied by a little woman in black, in no way specially noticeable, who moved up to make room for them without turning her face. But when the congregation began to take its part in the repetition of prayers and psalms Miriam became aware that the phrases which she had known and loved, all her life were sounding on her ears with a fresh beauty and meaning. Could it be the voice of the inconspicuous little woman which was so full of tears and yet so full of joy, whose unaffected earnestness did not raise its pitch or strain its quality, and yet compelled listeners as no oratorical display of lung power could have done? Miriam could not avoid the rudeness of staring at her neighbor, whom she found she had often seen before, but only at a distance.

"I see you realize at last Mrs. Heard's power to charm," said Aunt Cecilia, on rejoining her companion at the church gate after a greeting to the little woman in black.

"Do you mean to tell me," Miriam answered, "that such a voice can be acquired, is anything but a gift of God?"

"It is that, of course, my dear child; but her mother, whom I knew well in the old country, understood the importance of learning to use God's gifts. She taught her children by precept and example that tones marred by muscular contraction or by slovenly enunciation constitute not only a remediable physical defect, but a danger to the moral character upon which the harsh sounds react to produce irritant or sullen thoughts and feelings. It is largely due to her training that the good thoughts of the sweet little woman whom we have just seen have free course through her throat and lips. It is the unimpeded beauty of her spirit which you admire."

"Thank you so much, Aunt Cecilia,"—Miriam was holding the old lady's hand at parting—"you have made me see without resorting to blunt speech that my uncontrolled voice has often slashed my husband's peace of mind to bits, gashed my children's good temper and nipped some of my own best impulses in the bud. I'm afraid it's too late, now, to get the best music out of my much-abused organ, and you admit that there is not so much danger that boys will convert their voices into instruments of torture; but my best efforts shall go to the training of Baby Miriam, so that her father may praise her some day in the words which express all of King Lear's passionate but too tardy appreciation of Cordelia—'Her voice was ever soft, gentle and low; an excellent thing in woman.'"—Good Housekeeping.

A Confused Conductor.

Popular belief is that millionaires go around with at least a thousand dollars of loose change in their pockets, but they do not. Baron Rothschild was once caught in a Paris bus without a sou in his pocket. The driver was very angry, and threatened to put him out. "I am Baron Rothschild," explained the capitalist, "and there is my card." The driver scornfully tossed away the card. "Cards don't go here," said he. "I want your fare." "Very well," said the baron. "Here is an order for a million francs. Give me the change." The driver stared and the passengers laughed. Just then a friend of the baron entered the bus and paid the fare. Then the driver realized his mistake, and, feeling remorseful, said to the baron: "If you want ten francs, I don't mind lending them to you on my own account."—Golden Days.

would make no impression on the number of the germs of consumption that exist in one affected lung. All germs are little enough, but those which cause consumption are very minute. Cod-liver oil won't kill them. We don't know a remedy which will. The germs float in the air and we can't keep from breathing them into our lungs. Then why don't all of us have consumption? Because a healthy throat, sound lungs, and a strong constitution won't allow the germs to gain a foothold.

BOOTHBY'S HARD RACE.

But He Kept Ahead of the Train That Was Chased by an Earthquake.

Boothby told us another story about phenomenal natural disturbance. He said he felt tender about it because he had figured prominently in it himself. The story concerned a habit engineers on the Vandalia and the Ohio & Mississippi roads had of racing. Just east of East St. Louis is the crossing of a belt railroad, and from there on to the bluffs, seven miles away, is a straight streak of parallel track. As the outgoing passenger trains all leave East St. Louis at about the same time, it was the regular thing for Ohio & Mississippi and Van engineers to hammer for their lives over the seven miles, while the passengers yelled defiance at one another and whooped and got excited. The Ohio & Mississippi had one engine, the 60, which was able to walk away from everything ever put up against her. She had humiliated all the Vandalia engineers, except Boothby, and he fairly ached to get at her. One day, just as he had whistled for the crossing, he heard another whistle, and, looking over, saw the Ohio & Mississippi train abreast. The engine's number was 60.

Boothby straightened up for the race of his life. Tenderly, notch by notch, he opened the throttle, while the fireman kept the old kettle just off the popping point. Over the belt tracks they went, the 60 alongside. To his joy, Boothby saw he was inching away from his opponent. Like a statue he sat, coddling the machine, and at the first mile he was two coach lengths to the good. His passengers were shrieking their joy, while those on the O. & M. were dumb. The O. & M. crew, too, seemed astonished, and gathered on the platforms to look over at the Van's new racer. It was Boothby's race in a walk.

Suddenly the Van engineer saw something was happening. Looking over his shoulder he found the O. & M. train only half a car length back and surging along like lightning. It scared him, and he pulled her still wider open. Then did that noble 182 respond. She leaped through the air, hardly seeming to touch the rails. Right at her shoulder was the 60. Boothby gave her more. They were both going within a mile a minute. Boothby said he never saw a locomotive go like the 60, but he knew his machine was as good as the best. They plunged forward more furiously than the wind. Three miles, four, five, and then—oh, joy!—the 60 began to fall back. At the sixth mile she was two coach lengths behind, and as the trains swept away from each other at the base of the bluffs the O. & M. train was three lengths off to the rear.

At Collinsville Hank Hibbard, white-faced, came rushing up to the 182 as she lay under the water tank getting water.

"Great heavens, Boothby!" cried the conductor, "do you know what you've been running against?"

"The O. & M.'s hottest stuff, and I cooled it for 'em."

"Yes, you have. You've been running against an earthquake. The O. & M. train was picked up by it just out of town. A hill 20 feet high followed her last Pullman and she was running down hill the entire way, being pushed forward all the distance."

"Say, Hank," said Boothby, "did that earthquake help us any?"

"No; we were 100 yards ahead all the time."

Boothby climbed back on his box and Hibbard returned to the train. But although Boothby's achievement brought glory to his roundhouse, he would never race again. He said he didn't mind whipping an ordinary engine run by ordinary steam, but he didn't want to combat a thing that "laid up" with devils and was in league with cyclone, storm and earthquake.

These are the two instructive stories told by Engineer Boothby to David Lawrence and myself—two trusting cyclists who stopped to rest with him.—Chicago News.

HOW TOT IS NEGLECTED.

Difference Between the City Child and Its Country Cousin.

Taking the little child out for exercise too often means a promenade for personal pleasure, in which the well-being of a child is not for a moment considered. He is held in a tight rein, made to walk slow or fast to suit his conductor, jerked away from sights that attracts his attention, snubbed when he asks questions and scolded in a hard, mechanical way that has the inevitable effect of dulling his sensibilities, and either making him rebellious or cowardly, as his disposition inclines toward boldness or timidity. One hour's untrammeled freedom were worth, for health, days of such perfunctory outings, and the moral effect would be far happier.

Doubtless much of the docility of the country child indoors is owing to the liberty he enjoys out of the house. If our city children had playgrounds of their own, there would be much less insubordination among them. But if we cannot altogether satisfy their natural desires, let us at least do what we can. Let us give them every innocent liberty, recollecting that staid as we ourselves are now, there was a time when the feeling of the sunshine and fresh air mounted like wine to our heads, when our blood stirred in quicker currents, our muscles twitched with the impulses of motion, and a little physical freedom, of the kind young animals enjoy, seemed to us the finest thing in the world.—Ladies' Home Companion.

Not Running.

Mrs. Kilduff—Oh, yes, I have a running account at Cotton & Tapes'. It's much better than paying for each little purchase, you know.

Mrs. Skidmore—A running account? Why, the collector of the firm told my husband that your account had been standing a very long time.—Boston Globe.

Could Not Wait.

The Old Man (tearfully)—And you want to take my only daughter from me in my old age! Can you not wait?

The Suitor—Well, no, not exactly. I don't mind taking her in your old age, but I don't care about taking her in hers.—N. Y. World.

Knowledge Leads Power.

Kate—Has Charlie acquired any accomplishments since he went to college?

Flossie—I should say he had. You ought to see how easily he keeps a cigarette in his mouth when he's talking.—Tit-Bits.

Their Value.

Prize these little summer outings;
Far and wide make haste to roam
Just to emphasize the comfort
That is only found at home.
—Chicago Record.

JUVENILE GENEROSITY.

Mummy—Oh, you cruel boy! You're making your brother cry.

Algernon—No, Mummy, I ain't—I'm only sharing my cod-liver oil with him—wot you said was so nice.—English Comic Paper.

FUNNY SNAPS.

Actor (as amateur hunter)—"Tell me, Mr. Forester, will the stag enter right or left?"—Fliegende Blaetter.

She—"Was there any particular thing about the town which struck you?" He—"Yes; a bicycle."—Yonkers Statesman.

He—"It seems a shame that we are not allowed to encore the choir." She—"Why so?" "We might be able to tell what they were singing about if they repeated it."—Yonkers Statesman.

A Musical Misfit.—Host—"Who was it persuaded Miss Screechum to sing?" Hostess—"It was Herr Amburg." Host—"Do you think he could persuade her to stop?"—Detroit Free Press.

"You didn't stay long at that hotel which advertised a fine trout stream in the vicinity?" "No; the hotel man explained that it was a fine trout stream, but he couldn't help it if the trout hadn't sense enough to find it out."—Chicago Record.

Agent—"Can't I put a burglar alarm in your house?" Lady—"No, we don't need it." Agent—"But —" Lady—"No, I mean it; the family across the street watches the place so closely that even a burglar could not get in without being seen!"—Tit-Bits.

"Henry," said Mr. Meekton's wife, who had been overcoming his objection to some household expenses, "you ought to go into politics." "I'm sure you never gave me any credit for ability in that line before." "No, but I think now that you have some of the right qualities. I never saw anybody more reluctant to talk about money than you are."—Washington Star.

OF GENERAL INTEREST.

One of Krupp's 130-ton steel guns has thrown a 2,600 pound shot 15 miles. An Armstrong gun, weighing 100 tons, has impelled a shot of 1,890 pounds a distance of 14 miles.

A black snake in Jefferson City, Mo., invaded the hen-house of L. D. Gordon, and in a hen's nest found a porcelain egg. In attempting to swallow the prize the snake choked to death.

Divorce is easily accomplished in Cochin, China. The man and wife who are eager to separate assemble a few friends, and in their presence break a couple of chopsticks, and the divorce is secured.

No female is allowed to ride a bicycle in public in Bavaria unless she holds a certificate of proficiency. This can only be secured after she has demonstrated her ability as a rider before the police officials.

A gigantic wine-cask has just been erected at the St. George vineyard, in Fresno, Cal. It vastly exceeds in size the Great Tun of Heidelberg. The latter holds 42,000 gallons; the Fresno cask holds 79,000 gallons.

Electricity has been put to a novel use—to warm bed-clothes. It is done by heating a system of wires inside a double quilt. The current can be regulated at will, and the temperature maintained at the required degree.

Milk stations are found at various places in the cities of Chili. A cow is tethered on a platform, and when a person wants a drink of milk, the cow is milked to order. The cost is a trifle, and brandy is at hand if he prefers a milk punch.

CONUNDRUMS.

What word may be pronounced quicker by adding a syllable to it? Quick.

Why is chicken pie like a gunsmith's shop? Because it contains fowl-in pieces.

Why is a clergyman's horse like a king? Because he is guided by a minister.

What is that which no one wishes to have and no one wishes to lose? A bald head.

Why is a gatepost like a potato? Because they are both put into the ground to propagate.

Why are coals in London like towns given up to plunder? Because they are sacked and burned.

What is that which is often brought to the table, always cut and never eaten? A pack of cards.

What moral lesson does a weathercock on a church steeple continually inculcate? 'Tis vane to a spire.

Why shouldn't a boy throw dust in his teacher's eyes? Because it may occasion harm to the pupil.

What are the most unsociable things in the world? Mile stones, for you never see two of them together.

What is that which Adam never saw, never possessed and yet gave two to each of his children? Parents.

Why is a restless man in bed like a lawyer? Because he lies on one side, then turns around and lies on the other.

NEW ENGLAND WEATHER LORE.

Six weeks after you hear the first katydid look for a frost.

When the camphor in its bottle is "riley," it shows that a storm is brewing.

Rub a cat's back the wrong way and if you see sparks it is a sign of cold weather.

When you take up the tea kettle and find sparks on the bottom, it is a sign of cold weather.

When you hear the first frogs in the spring, you may know that the frost is out of the ground.

Blow out a candle, and if the wick continues long to smoulder, look for bad weather. If it goes out quickly the weather will be fair.

The 12 days after Christmas indicate the weather for the following year. Each day in order shows the weather for one month.

The last Friday of each month is the almanac index for the next month. If the weather is fair, the month will be likewise; if foul, so will the month be.

When a person kills a snake he does well to consider what kind of weather he would like. If he hangs the snake up it will rain; if he buries it, the weather will be fair.

Strategic Mr. Chaffie.

Mrs. Chaffie—I don't know how I can get Johnnie to take his medicine. If I tell him what it is he won't take it, and if I don't tell him he won't take it.

Mr. Chaffie—I'll tell you what to do. Just put it on the table and forbid him to touch it, and he will take it sure.—Texas Sifter.

An Effective Appeal.

Doctor—Your daughter, madam, needs rest—absolute rest.

Patient's Mother—But she won't listen to me, doctor.

Doctor—You must appeal to her, madam, in the interest of her complexion.—Tit-Bits.

No Mosquitoes.

Summer Guest—The mosquitoes were terribly bad last night. Look at my face.

Jersey Landlord (reassuringly)—Oh, there's no mosquitoes here, sir—none worth mentioning. Them's bugs.—N. Y. Weekly.

The Present Worried Him.

"What are your hopes for the future?" asked the solemn man.

"I have none just now," replied the youth. "To-morrow is my best girl's birthday, and I'm worrying about the present."—Bay City Chat.

The Retort Courteous.

Mrs. Cumso—Is the hominy good, my dear?

Mr. Cumso (gruffly)—Yes, for hogs.

Mrs. Cumso (sweetly)—Then, pray, let me help you to some more.—Washington Times.

"Turn the rascals out"—the familiar party cry—may be applied to microbes as well as to men. The germs of disease that lurk in the blood are "turned out" by Ayer's Sarsaparilla as effectually as the old postmasters are displaced by a new administration.

Few People Have Eyes Alike.

Fully nine-tenths of those who wear Glasses have different vision in each eye. Sometimes it is a decided difference, in others only a slight variation. A careless examination will fail to bring out this defect—the same lenses woul be adjusted to each eye—and headaches and eye strain that medicine fails to relieve is the result. I test each eye separately, select proper lenses, adjust glasses to suit both eyes from as complete a Test Case as is made.

DANGER IN ROENTGEN RAYS.

Penalties for One Who Looks at His Skeleton.

A warning has been voiced by one of the leading English medical journals in regard to the too frequent use of the Roentgen ray apparatus.

It is interesting, no doubt, says the Philadelphia Ledger, to obtain a series of photographs of one's own skeleton, but if this is to be at the expense of such trifles as one hair and one's finger nails, it hardly seems worth the cost. One electrical engineer, who has often demonstrated the beauty of his own finger bones by placing one of his hands within the radius of the searching rays, has lost all the nails from the finger of that hand, while Sidney Rowland, who is one of the leading experimenters in this direction, mentions several cases of similar character in the structural changes that occur in the hair, and so forth, of those who have been frequently shadowgraphed by this method. Thus, in the case of patients whose heads have been subjected to the influence of the rays, the hair has either turned white or has fallen out entirely. It is suggested that these results are due to the electrical potency of what are called ultra violet rays of the spectrum, though their precise action is at present by no menas thoroughly understood.

One curious suggestion has already been made. It is a well-known superstition, and one which has existed for generations, that people who sleep in the direction of the moon have their reason more or less seriously affected. Now it is said that these ultra violet rays exist in the moonlight, and hence a popular superstition may be founded upon scientifi fact.

ENCOURAGE GARDENING.

English Railway Companies Offer Prizes for the Purpose.

In England the Great Western and the Midland offer sums of money annually to encourage platform gardens. In the case of the former company, says the Quarterly Review, a regular system has been in operation for 18 years, £50 being voted annually for the purpose. The line is divided into 12 sections. To each a special prize of five pounds is awarded, and there are 165 ordinary prizes, ranging from three pounds to ten shillings, a list of the successful stations being published each year. A circular is also sent round furnishing a complete list of plants suitable for various purposes—for permanent borders, for summer bedding, for mixed borders of hardy plants, for spring bedding, as well as a list of evergreens and creepers, together with particulars as to height, color, dates for sowing, and many other necessary hints.

The Midway railway devotes £200 in the same way, the prizes ranging from seven pounds ten shillings to five shillings. A fully qualified inspector, whose duties take him to every part of the line, is deputed to deal with the matter, and the whole scheme is pronounced a success. The Great Northern and the London & Northwestern companies let allotments to their men where possible, the number of allotments in the case of the former company reaching very nearly 2,500.

CHINESE GIRL DOCTORS.

Young Orientals Graduated with Honor from Ann Arbor.

Two young Chinese girl physicians arrived in Oakland recently en route to their native land from Ann Arbor, Mich., where they have just completed a four years' course in medicine and surgery. They graduated with distinguished honors, and they are the first Chinese women to graduate from this celebrated university of Michigan. They will be the pioneer Chinese women physicians of central China. Only one of their nativity and their sex has preceded them. She has been practicing in the missionary and government hospitals of southern China for a year past.

These distinguished young students are wards of the Women's Foreign Missionary society, of the United States. The elder of the couple is only 23 years old. In her native land she is Meiyu Shie, which in Anglo Saxon is plain Mary Stone. Miss Stone is the daughter of Christian Chinese. Early in life her father was a Christian preacher. She lived in the missionary sphere and was educated by private tutors. Miss Stone's companion is Miss Ida Kahn, a year younger. She was adopted when a child into a Christian missionary's family and received a training in her youth which fitted her for the path she has chosen.

FILLING TEETH.

Reasons Why the Dentist Uses Gold for the Best.

It is the custom with many persons to grumble a little at what they consider the dentist's extraordinary charges. It is also frequently said that the dentist finds gold more profitable, and that this is the reason why he prefers to use it.

It is not generally understood that there is a scientific reason for the employment of this metal. Gold can be welded into a solid mass while cold. It is also susceptible of being pressed into the smallest cavities and depressions.

When once the cavity is properly cleaned and the gold carefully put in, care being taken that it fills every particle of space from the beginning, the union of teeth and filling is nearly as perfect as possible without the action of heat.

A gold filling may be built up to almost any size or shape required. None of the acid secretions of the mouth or stomach have any effect upon it.

Hindoo Traps for Bedbugs.

An ingenious plan is employed in hospitals in India. It is to place a piece of wood, freely perforated with gimlet holes, under the mattress. The insects find their way into these holes, where they may afterwards be destroyed by dipping the piece of wood in hot water.

NOT POSTED ON LOCAL ISSUES.

A—'Scuse me, sir; can you tell me (hic) whether the moon's in the first quarter or the last quarter?

B—Sorry (hic), but I can't tell you I don't live in this town.—Witzblatt.

A Long Wait.

Mr. Hayseed (after a long, weary wait in a New York restaurant)—Seems to me that briled Philadelphia spring chicken we ordered is a long while coming.

Mr. Hayseed (resignedly)—I s'pose the train is off the track.—N. Y. Weekly.

Taken Literally.

Horton—What would you do if I should ask you to lend me ten dollars?

Bixby (who thinks it is a conundrum)—Give it up.

Horton—Thanks, old man. That's very good of you. I'll pay you back at the first possible moment, 'pon honor.—Cleveland Leader.

THE SKYLARK.

Full of merriment and mirth,
Full of laughter is the earth;
Full of blessed labor, too,
For the skies are bright and blue,
And the land with music rings
When the sky-lark soars and sings.

Flowers white and flowers blue
Are all dabbled o'er with dew;
And the daisy, bonny lass,
Blushes in the dewy grass;
From her velvet couch she springs
When the sky-lark soars and sings.

Blackthorns bursting with delight,
Bud and blossom snowy white;
Briers shooting up between
Mix and toss their tufts of green;
And the woodbine—how she clings!
When the sky-lark soars and sings.

Boys and men, and men and boys,
In the fields are full of noise;
Full of healthy vigor, too—
Doing nobly all they do—
They are happier far than kings
When the sky-lark soars and sings.

Back and forth across the rows
Up and down the harrow goes;
The two horses they enjoy
The light chirping of the boy;
His old jacket off he flings
When the sky-lark soars and sings.

Cows and calves and heifers pass
Lightly o'er the springing grass;
Kids are bleating on the hill,
Goats are bleating louder still—
Straining hard at twisted strings
When the sky-lark soars and sings.

Barefoot boys go roaming round,
Glad if one wee nest is found;
Little maidens' faces shine
With a light that is divine;
So much joy the season brings
When the sky-lark soars and sings.

Joy below and joy above,
All the land is full of love;
Heaven's not so far away
As some silly people say—
For the door wide open swings

IN SUPPORT OF A THEORY.

The house party at Westwood were dawdling over their coffee on the moonlit piazza.

It was a merry crowd; everybody knew everybody else, and there was much laughter and talk, but suddenly a silence fell. Then it became patent to all that the couple seated on the steps leading to the lawn were engaged in a quiet but bitter altercation.

The girl's listless air was in striking contrast to the man's eagerness. "Your idea is an absurd one," he exclaimed.

"Oh, fie!" she said, "to speak so rudely to a woman."

"It is not rudeness, but truth."

"Then they are apparently synonymous."

"I can't help it; it exasperates me to hear an intelligent girl like you—"

"Now where," she broke in, "did you pick that up? I am not the least bit intelligent! If I were I would know better than to argue with you; it is so perfectly hopeless"—sighing—"and you do get so excited."

"And who wouldn't?—listening to such impossible theories!"

"You don't have to! I never asked you to talk to me. I came out here to be by myself, and you deliberately followed me. Why didn't you stay with the others? They are all pleasanter than I am."

"Humility," he said, "is a cloak that fits badly on your shoulders."

"My sleeves are too large, perhaps! but really you misunderstand—I have an excellent opinion of myself. I can be quite agreeable, when I choose, but am not in the mood to-night."

"Then according to your theory you ought to be most attractive."

"What is your theory, Kate?" called her cousin.

"One you have heard me express thousands of times before."

"Shall I tell him, Miss Doane?"

"Certainly."

"She says that a man doesn't like to feel too confident of a woman's effection; that it is the element of uncertainty in love affairs that makes them interesting; that he enjoys being puzzled and played with, and that a clever woman has only to appear indifferent to first pique and then attract him."

"Heresy!" exclaimed a chorus of manly voices.

"Mr. Stewart has omitted an important clause," said Miss Doane. "I added that to do this the woman must necessarily be good to look at and not lacking in this world's goods."

"Oh, Kate, Kate," sighed her cousin, "would you insinuate that the masculine fancy is influenced by worldly advantages?"

She shrugged her shoulders. "I have stated my case; you can make it what you choose." The hostess, who had been listening idly, now put in a word: "The trouble with you all is that you analyze too much," she said. "Why not take things as they come, without worrying over their possible causes? It is so much simpler and healthier."

Miss Doane turned around. "Isn't Madge charming?" she said, amiably. "To hear her, you would suppose that she had never seen the inside of a drawing-room. She always gets like that when she comes to the country; something in the air, probably."

"And you?" said Stewart, when the laughter following her speech had died away; "has it no effect on you?"

"The country? Oh, yes, it makes me —if that is possible—more indolent than usual," and she leaned her head against the pillar and looked, not at him, but past him to the stretch of rosy sky.

"What an actress you are!" he said; "you are not the least bit indifferent, really, but it has amused you to pose as such so long now it has almost become second nature."

"To pose as anything involves a certain amount of personal exertion."

"Well, doubtless you find it worth while, if your audience is appreciative, and it usually is, I fancy."

"Have you noticed those two clouds?" she said. "It is curious to watch how they keep floating first toward and then away from each other, like people who are playing at cross purposes."

"You were evidently not listening to a word I was saying."

"Oh, yes, I was. You were scolding me, but you generally are, you know, and you said something about my posing. You have told me that often before, and so—"

"And so—apparently there was no need of listening to me.—I had no idea I was such a bore."

She looked at him, saying: "Now, you see, you are angry again! Don't you think," leaning toward him confidentially, "you ought to do something for your temper? It may get you into trouble some day. Not everybody is as amiable as I!"

"Still wrangling?" asked Carl Ainslie, lounging down the steps. "My dear young friends, it grieves me to the heart to see such a display of un-Christian feeling. 'Let dogs delight to bark and bite.'"

"Blame Mr. Stewart, and not me," said the girl; "you know, Carl, that I haven't the energy to quarrel with anyone, especially in this weather."

"Of course not. Miss Doane only says the things that make other people want to row."

"A charming character you have given me; after that, I think I will abandon the field to you. Come, Carl," with a quick change of manner, "let's go down to the lake for a row."

Stewart watched them with wrath in his heart—the girl was talking gayly, her soft laugh floating back to him.

"There goes a living denial of her theory," he thought. "She is kindness itself to Ainslie and he is devoted to her. Indifference, indeed! I'd like to see the woman, who could attract me by that. As for Miss Doane, she is a heartless little flirt, and I don't intend to fret myself about her," and he climbed the steps and stalked gloomily off to the smoking-room.

"Kate," said young Ainslie, resting on his oars, "I'm your cousin and have a right to tell you when I think you are doing wrong; so I say—do leave poor old Stewart alone."

"Leave poor old Stewart alone!" indignantly. "I think you had better suggest his leaving me alone."

"Of course, now, you know very well what I mean. It's all right for you to trample on Herbert and Reade and myself; we're used to it—been broken in too long to protest—but Stewart's another sort; he cares awfully about things."

"Oh, indeed, so he 'cares awfully,' and the rest of you, I suppose, are only amusing yourselves."

"How you tease a fellow! No—what I mean is that he is so terribly 'all there,' don't you know, that if he lets himself be hard hit it would knock him out completely to have you throw him over."

"So terribly 'all there'—what a graphic expression. Yet undeniably true in this case; but why do you take it for granted that I will throw him over?"

Mr. Ainslie's face expressed the utmost consternation. "Well, really, I don't know, but I thought, I somehow concluded—"

"What?"

"Why," a brilliant idea striking him, "that you didn't care for anybody, and wouldn't until you had seen more of the world, for you are very young, Kate, in spite of your many experiences."

"Carl," said Miss Doane, solemnly, "the bar has lost a shining mark in you, but I am proud to claim you as a relative."

II.

It was a fortnight later; the house party would disperse on the morrow, and Miss Doane, to whom Westwood was dear, was taking a farewell stroll through the gardens. She was idling down a path when, catching sight of Stewart over the tops of the rose bushes, she ostentatiously put up her parasol and turned in the other direction.

But he was not to be so easily thrown off; with a curl of the lip (for he had recognized the maneuver) he hurried toward her.

"Miss Doane!" he cried, "will you spare me a few moments?"

She turned her head.

"I am not in a pleasant frame of mind. Uncle forwarded me my dressmaker's bill this morning, with certain pungent comments of his own appended, and my best manuscript has just been returned to me as 'unavailable,' so the atmosphere is not rosy."

"Never mind about that. I will not detain you long," and he pulled up a bench.

For a few moments there was silence, for now that he had gained the coveted interview, Stewart did not seem to know what to say, and Miss Doane, with the point of her parasol, sketched triangles and circles and all sorts of impossible devices in the sandy path. While looking the picture of careless inattention, she was in reality curious to know how long her companion intended to continue staring ahead of him. When he finally did speak his remark was so different from what she expected that she almost started.

"I suppose you know you are very beautiful," he said. "Doubtless your mirror has told you that already, so I need not worry you with repetitions, but I feel sure that you do not realize how absolutely charming you are."

She looked at him wonderingly; it was a feavorite method of hers, and usually worked well, but now it failed to produce the effect she intended.

"Don't look like that," he said, "or I shall think you are not sincere, and I don't want to think that. I want to carry away the kindest thought of you."

"You have changed," she said. "Ten days ago you told Mary Fair I was thoroughly heartless."

"Did I? Well, that only shows I was a fool. I know you better now; and what is more, I understand you."

A slight pause.

"I heard up at the house that you were engaged to your cousin, and while the news could not but hurt me, it was in one sense a relief, for I knew at once why you had avoided and almost ignored me. You wanted to save me pain. Experience has taught me that if a man saw much of you he generally cared for you, and you tried to ward me off. But you cannot keep the moth from the candle, and I loved you in spite of your coldness. It almost looks as if there was something in your theory, doesn't it?"

Miss Doane gathered herself together. Stewart did not know it, but she was summoning courage to tell him the truth about herself. She loved to be well thought of, and it was a genuine sacrifice to speak, but she could not, in common honesty, allow him to remain under his delusion.

"You must not think too well of me," she began.

"I could not," he cried. "One rarely sees so much youth and beauty and simple goodness united as I find in you."

Simple goodness! The words scorched her.

"You are all wrong!" she cried, with burning cheeks. "I am not the least bit like that. Don't you see? Can't you understand? It vexed me to have you laugh at my theory, so I determined to make you an example of its truth. It was from no good motive—not to 'ward you off,' or 'to save you pain,' but with the distinct intention of making you care for me, 'that I pretended to be indifferent.'"

Stewart got slowly to his feet.

"And so," he said, "in support of a theory, for the sake of proving yourself in the right, you could play with a man's heart and make havoc of his life? Fool, fool that I was, not to understand!" and he struck one palm sharply against the other. "Well," with sarcastic courtesy, "the point is gained, the poor dupe at your feet. I hope you are content?"

"Content!" she cried. "I was never so sorry in my life. It seems strange I should care, doesn't it? As you say, I have gained my point—and yet—"

"Yes," he said, "and yet?"

Instead of replying she turned her head swiftly away, but not before he had seen that her eyes were full of tears. He stood irresolute, overcome by surprise; then he approached her.

"Don't cry like that," he said. "You never meant to hurt me; it was a pretty bit of acting to you, and if I was stupid and overdid my part you are not to blame. There, look up. What will your cousin say if he learns I distressed you?"

"What is it to me what my cousin thinks?"

Mr. Stewart stared. "Pardon me, but I thought that, being engaged to him—"

"I am not engaged to him. Nothing is further from my intention."

A silence followed. Then Miss Doane rose to depart, but Stewart, whose mind had been adjusting itself to the changed situation, put out a detaining hand. "Kate," he said, "if you are not going to marry your cousin, perhaps there might be a chance for some one else."

"Perhaps."

He drew nearer. "I know I'm a perfect fool to rush on my fate, but what's worth having is certainly worth asking for. Kate, will you marry me?"

She smiled, but her eyes were very tender. "I believe you do love me," she said.

"Well, a little."

"And if I marry you, I know I shall be happy. You are so strong and true, and have my confidence so utterly, but I have been horrid to you—so rude and disagreeable that I don't see how you can stand me."

"Why, you are going back on your theory."

"The girls will certainly laugh, and Carl will never leave me alone about it, but I don't care," lifting her face resolutely. "I love you, and there's no use pretending I don't."

A little while later she looked up.

"I always said I would never care for anybody," she remarked. "What will this prove?"

"That you are a woman," he said.—N. O. Times-Democrat.

THE M'SWATS.

Mrs. McSwat Loses Her Temper But Keeps a Promise.

Mr. McSwat heard a noise in the kitchen and went out to investigate. He found Mrs. McSwat in a high state of indignation and freeing her mind with great fluency, the victim of the vocal storm being the kitchen maid, who was vainly trying to explain matters.

"What's this, Lobelia?" he asked. "What is the trouble?"

"The trouble?" echoed Mrs. McSwat. "The trouble is that this careless, ignorant—"

"Be careful, Lobelia. You promised me the other day that the next time you lost your temper you would count 25 before you said anything, and here you are—"

"I know I did. I forgot. One, two, three, four—I tell you, though, Billiger, I've stood more from that girl than I ever did from any other, and she gets worse all the time—three, four, five, six, seven, eight, nine—this morning she burnt the coffee, left the milk where the cat got at it, and broke my best china teapot—twelve, thirteen, fourteen, fifteen, sixteen, sev—I give her two afternoons off every week, too, and half the time I have to do the dishes over again or find them all greasy and stuck together, and I'm not going to stand it any longer—thirteen, fourteen, fifteen, sixteen, seventeen, eighteen, nineteen, twenty, twenty-one, twenty-two, twenty-three, twenty-four, twenty-five—now, then, you brazen, impudent, good-for-nothing dowdy, I told you the next time you let that happen and tried to lie out of it you'd be sorry. Here's two weeks wages and you can pack up your traps and get away from here right now!"—Chicago Tribune.

—"A good many things depend on the point of view," remarked the philosopher. "That's so!" replied Farmer Corntossel. "Ye never said nothin' truer 'n that." "Have you noticed it?" "Sh'd say so. Ordinary seat in a circus costs 50 cents. Ef ye git a reserved seat it costs a dollar, an' ef ye're a boy an' can sneak in under the tent, it don't cost nothin' 'tall. I tell ye, it makes a heap o' difference."

Barbarous.

Wiping the gore from his glittering weapon the desperate-looking young man seized a piece of cloth and removed as well as he could all traces of his horrible work from the face of his victim.

Then he straightened himself up, pushed the unhappy wretch away from him, and in a voice of thunder called out:

"Next!"

He was the apprentice. — Chicago Tribune.

A Cipher Without a Rim.

"Do you believe in the transmigration of souls?" asked her husband.

"I do," she replied firmly.

He laughed jeeringly.

"You do, do you?" he said. "I suppose you know all about it, eh? Maybe you'll tell me what I was before I took my present body and married you?"

"I don't know," she said, hesitatingly, "I don't know, but I think that you were the middle part of a doughnut."—Chicago Tribune.

EAST WEYMOUTH SPEAKS.

Arched Dome of Night Painted Red.

Grand Finale of the Campaign Monday Night.

A fitting celebration of the recent political victory has been on the minds of the Republican committee and citizens of Ward 2, East Weymouth, since the election and it was arranged to have a grand celebration last Saturday night, but the premature snow storm of Friday and bad condition of streets which followed it, necessitated a postponement and the affair was postponed to this week.

It was at first arranged to have the celebration Tuesday night but as that interfered with other services it was changed to Monday, which change may have kept some people away as they may not have heard of it. Yet thousands of people were on hand to see and hear and to add their efforts to those being made for a glorious celebration.

The night was a favorable one and barring a little mud now and then in the street conditions were of the very best.

When the first strains of music from the Weymouth band vibrated from the band stand in Jackson square an audience was in attendance which has seldom been seen in the place for in addition to home people, the Q. & B. and the B. & W. roads brought a large number of people from other villages and towns. The scene in and about the square was of the most brilliant character, every store was elaborately decorated and illuminated.

At the conclusion of the band concert the following line was formed

J. H. Vining, Chief Marshal.
Mounted Aids.
Platoon of Police.
Weymouth Band.
Quincy Drum Corps.
McKinley and Hobart Battalion, Quincy, in command of Major J. M. Holt.
McKinley Guard, North Weymouth, Capt. Geo. Nash.
Commonwealth club, Weymouth, Capt. W. S. Hollis.
Drum Corps.
Citizens Battalion, East Weymouth, Capt. C. S. Redmond.
Lovell Rifles, Capt. W. C. Earle.

The line moved down Broad street amid the cheers of the multitude, bursting of bombs, a shower of Roman candles and other lights and a volley from the rifles.

High, Hawthorn, Cedar, Myrtle, School, Commercial, Station, Madison, Putnam, Chard, Maple, Middle and Broad streets were the route of march and it is many a day since a procession has passed so many finely illuminated houses and elaborate decorations as were seen on this occasion.

At the conclusion of the march refreshments were served in the banquet room at Odd Fellows Opera house.

Thanksgiving Proclamation.

Gov. Wolcott has issued the Thanksgiving Proclamation. The Proclamation read as follows:

Commonwealth of Massachusetts. By His Honor Roger Wolcott, Lieutenant Governor, Acting Governor. A proclamation for a day of Thanksgiving and Praise.

Whereas: The revolving year has brought again the glad season of harvest, which it has been the pious usage of our fathers in successive generation to celebrate in a special manner with thanks and praise to God, and

Whereas: It is fitting that this gracious custom should be followed by us their decendants, who have been blessed in equal degree with them,

Now, therefore, I, by and with the advice and consent of the Council, appoint Thursday, the 26th day of November current, as a day of public thanksgiving and praise to the Lord, whose merciful kindness is great toward us.

In the solemn service of the church and in the silent aspiration of the heart, let due acknowledgement be made to the loving God who has showered His mercies upon us. Let young and old meet beneath the home roof-tree and recalling the tender memory of the dead, bind more closely the bond of family affection which should unite the living.

Let kindly thought and generous act go forth from man to man. Let joy abound and praises be sung with gladness.

We have special cause to rejoice in each new evidence that the welfare and honor of the republic are safe in the intelligence and honest purpose of her citizens. Inspired by the past history and great destiny of our country let us guard well her present and resolve anew that her claim to loyal services at our hands shall not fall upon unheeding ears; and from altar and hearth may the prayer ascend that as God has been with our fathers so may He be with us and our children.

Given at the Council Chamber in Boston, this twelfth day of November, in the year, of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-six.

The Companion Calendar.

It is said that the expense of making the Companion Art Calendar for 1897 was so great that had it been published in the usual quantity it could not be sold less than one dollar. Four beautiful female figures are reproduced on four folding pages. Each figure is lithographed in twelve colors, being a true reproduction of the original water-color painting, which was selected because of its excellence of design and charm of color and tone. The size of each of the four folding pages is 10 1-2 by 6 inches.

It is by far the best piece of color work the Companion has ever offered. Both as a calendar and as a gem of the lithographer's art, it is attractive that it becomes a valuable addition to the mantel or center-table of any room. It is given free to all new subscribers sending $1.75 to the Companion for the year 1897, who receive also the paper free from the time the subscription is received till January 1, 1897.

Celebrating in 1897 its seventy-first birthday, the Companion offers its readers many exceptionally brilliant features. Fully two hundred of the most famous men and women of both continents have contributed to the next year's volume of the paper. For free Illustrated Prospectus address.

State and national elections are over and for a while the only special interest taken in state and national politics will be the dividing of the spoils of the victory, making up cabinets and mapping out legislative work. The American people are however never far removed from some sort of political excitement and in our cities municipal elections come so close on the heels of state elections that lively contests are now on in most of the cities. Most of the towns however, have their annual meetings in March or April and there is more time between the heats, yet the time should not be wasted but utilized in planning what is for the best good. The agriculturalist is already selecting seed and laying out ground for another harvest and equal care should be taken in planning expenditures and the general interest of a town as large as Weymouth. Roads, schools and a proper distribution of charity funds are grave questions. This year we have made a new departure in the matter of roads and built a few miles of most excellent Macadam roads; we have at the same time demonstrated the fact that if we are to build such roads we must raise special money for it or let other roads suffer. The question of schools is also becoming a serious one, especially the High schools. We are maintaining two High schools, under protest of a majority of the people, with a consolidation project in the hands of a committee. What the report of that committee will be remains to be seen and definite action depends upon the nature of the report; it is a question in which the people should take a deep interest. Another serious question with which the town authorities are contending is that of aid furnished to people outside of the Alms House. "The poor ye have with you always" is as true now as it was two thousand years ago and no one is disposed to withhold aid from the needy suffering, but when people who keep and ride bicycles and take lessons on the piano ask for town aid it is time to draw the line. Let us study town matters and be prepared to act kindly, firmly, but above all intelligently.

Thanksgiving.

Next Thursday will be Thanksgiving day and again families will rejoice as they gather around the laden tables. There is much to be thankful for this year. In addition to the usual blessings for which we may return thanks to the Giver of All, we have recently passed through a most critical election and it is happily settled, decisively and peaceably. From all sides come reports of an improvement in business, and hope reigns in all the business world. There is every prospect of an era of returned prosperity and that all who can and will work shall have the opportunity. The Thanksgiving festival will therefore have an increased significance over any of recent years.

The Week.

No one now doubts that the brighter day is dawning, and it is the common remark that never before has business shown so great a change for the better within a single week. To the change of conditions and of spirit described last week, there has already answered a large increase in the working force and in the volume of trade. Dispatches telling of about five hundred establishments which have opened or have materially enlarged their force, though they fill many columns, give only part of the fact, for throughout the country the gain has been surprising even to the most hopeful. It is not mere speculation or hope which lights the fires and starts the wheels, for orders which have been accumulating for months, with the necessary replenishment of dealer's stocks now greatly reduced, would employ the whole producing force for a time, and the increase in number of hands at work means increase in purchases for consumption. Monetary anxiety and peril being removed, the business world has that confidence which is worth more in practical influence than several thousand millions of currency in circulation.—Dun's Review.

Edison's Vitascope at Odd Fellows Opera House, East Weymouth, Nov. 24 and 25.

Showing "Whirlpool Rapids, Niagara Falls." Opening Scene from the 2d act, "Hoyt's Milk White Flag." "Bowling Green, New York City." Kissing scene from the "Widow Jones," by Miss May Irwin and John C. Rice. "Umbrella Dance," by the Lay sisters, showing colors of costume. "Bucking Broncho," Buffalo Bill's Wild West. "Irish Politics." "Water Melon Contest," by two colored boys, and others.

Co. K Supper.

The annual supper of Co. K, Fifth Regiment, Massachusetts militia to its honorary members was held at Armory hall, Wednesday evening. Cook, of Boston, was the caterer and a fine menu was furnished. When cigars were lighted the post-prandial exercises began and speeches both witty and serious upon military matters were listened to with interest. Co. K, came in for abundant praise and Capt. Morrison and Lieut. Kincaide were cheered to the echo. Co. K is a very popular organization and deservedly so.

You may eat cheap food and not be seriously hurt by it; but you cannot take cheap medicines without positive injury. If you use any substitute for Ayer's Sarsaparilla, you do so at the peril of your health, perhaps of your life. Insist on having Ayer's, and no other.

The wife of Mr. Leonard Wells, of East Brimfield, Mass., had been suffering from neuralgia for two days, not being able to sleep or hardly keep still, when Mr. Holden, the merchant there, sent her a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and asked that she give it a thorough trial. On meeting Mr. Wells the next day he was told that she was all right, the pain had left her within two hours, and that the bottle of Pain Balm was worth $5.00 if it could not be had for less. For sale at 50 cents per bottle.

Food Fair.

The Young People's Christian Union of the First Universalist church held their third annual Food Fair at Lincoln hall last evening, and it was a very successful affair. The hall was very prettily decorated as were also the different tables containing soup, griddle cakes, vegetables, sandwiches, coffee, cake, ice cream, candy, lemonade, etc. There was also an excellent entertainment consisting of piano duets by Miss Mabel S. Nash and Edwin Hunt and banjo solos by Miss Marion Baldwin.

The humorous farce "Chums" was given with the following cast:—

Mr. Breed, A Vermont Squire, Lyman C. Williams

Harry Breed, A. B., his son, William Mason, Tom Burnham, Leading Lady of the Pi Eta theatre, Burton L. Baker; chums

Flora Strong, Mr. Breed's Neice, Alice L. Burrell

Mrs. Breed, Carrie S. Robinson.

Historical Society.

The Weymouth Historical society will hold its regular monthly meeting at the Tufts library, Wednesday, the 25th inst., at 7.45 p. m.

A Paper will be read by William H. Reed, Esq. on the Ancestry and Descendants of the Rev. James Bailey, first pastor of the second church of Christ, in Weymouth.

The Massachusetts Teachers' Association.

The fifty-second annual meeting of the Massachusetts Teachers' Association will be held in the English High School building, Boston, on Friday and Saturday, Nov. 27, 28, 1896. President Parker and his associates have done all in their power to make the meeting equal to any ever held by this famous organization. No teacher and no school officer who can possibly attend the meeting can afford to lose the benefit which will come from attending it.

'94 N. H. S. Reunion.

The class of '94 N. H. S. held a reunion with Miss Grace A. Randall last Friday evening. A severe storm prevented a full attendance. During the evening, a collation of cake and ices was served. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Grace A. Randall; vice-president, Mary A. Hopkins; secretary and treasure, Alida M. Denton.

Cemetery Fair.

The North Weymouth Cemetery circle will hold a fair in Odd Fellows' Opera house, East Weymouth on the evenings of December eighth and ninth. The object of the fair is to raise money for the erection of a chapel on the cemetery grounds and any contribution from interested friends will be gladly received.

The tables will be in charge of the following ladies.

Fancy table, Directors
Bric-a-brac, Mrs. L. B. Curtis
Pound, Mrs. H. W. Barnes
Doll, Mrs. David Benson
Grab-box, Mrs. Charles Scott

The President, Mrs. J. H. Pratt and the Secretary, Mrs. Aug. Beals, will receive any contributions.

THE ZOO A POPULAR SUCCESS.

Crowds Thronged the Old Library Building.

The Zoo is open, and any one who doubts this statement has only to pass the old Public Library building on Boylston street and listen to the almost unearthly sounds that betray the presence of the great animal family.

On entering the building, one is struck with the transformation which has taken place. On the lower floor, instead of the old rows of seats, in which hundreds of Bostonians have reclined while they waited for their books; or in the old reading room, where it was considered a sin if there was a noise louder than a whisper, there were shouts of laughter and approval as the various attractions were noted by the throng of spectators which filled the place. Chiquita, the Cuban atom or living doll, was, of course, the leading attraction, while the others included the exhibition in the tank of two amphibious wonders who seem to think nothing of the inconvenience of eating or holding conversation while submerged in water, and the Zooscope, the latest and best invention showing an entirely new set of those remarkable motion pictures.

After a half-hour spent here the visitor climbed the stairway leading to "Bates Hall." There, too, a great change has taken place. The entire centre of the hall is vacant, but in each of the alcoves, between the huge pillars which support the monster roof, large cages have been erected in which are almost every known species of a wild animal from the lion down to the insignificant fox.

The feeding of the carnivora at 4 and 10.30 p. m. was a sight never to be forgotten by those who witnessed it, the spectators following the attendants from cage to cage and watching the almost frantic efforts of the enraged animals who had been angered at the sight of meat which they could not reach. They fought for each morsel after it had finally been put into their cages.

The second week commences Monday, Nov. 23, and replacing "Wallace" in the exhibition hall will be the original giant boxing Kangaroo, to be seen for the first time in Boston. He is a powerful animal and it requires great skill on the part of the brave trainer to protect himself from the harm of his vicious attacks.

Retaining the great variety and generous number of wild animals many more are added for the coming week. There will be 60 of the lion tribe, alone.

The Boston press praises the Zoo unanimously and reports it to be what is claimed for it—the finest collection of animals ever shown in this country. A laudable feature of this place is the one price of admission to everything in the building. There are no extra charges whatever.

Meats of All Kinds.

Among the new ads. of the week will be found that of A. Gunsenhiser, New Quincy Market, Boston. This house is one of the most extensive in its line in the New England states and stands at the front in its specialties.

The demand for Ayer's Hair Vigor in such widely separated regions as South America, Spain, Australia, and India has kept pace with the home consumption, which goes to show that these people know a good thing when they try it.

Norfolk Cycle Club, 2340; Chelsea Reviews, 2254.

The second match in the Massachusetts Amateur Bowling League was rolled on the alleys at South Weymouth and the Cycle boys had for opponents the Reviews of Chelsea, champions of the third division last year.

The game was uninteresting from the start, break following break until at the end of the third string sixty-nine breaks were served.

The home team lead the first string by fifty-eight pins scoring 742 against 684.

The visitors put in some good work in the second string serving 801 against 772, cutting the lead down to twenty-nine pins.

At the beginning of the third string it looked as though the visitors intended to win the game and at the half the score was about a tie but the home team put in some good work and won out the string with a lead of fifty-seven, thus increasing the lead to eighty-six.

The score:

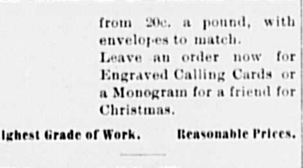
The teachers' registers show that 2111 pupils were enrolled during the month of October. The attendance for the month in many of the schools was very good. Grade VII at the Franklin stood the highest. Two only, the Shaw primary and Tufts grades III and IV, reported less than 90 per cent. The largest number of tardinesses were from North High and Pratt, grades I-V.

In comparing this month with Oct. '95, we find there are 63 more pupils in school; the per cent. of attendance not quite so good; 16 more tardy marks; two less cases of truancy; and 56 more visitors.

The Friday afternoon exercises at the North High school are very interesting. It is hoped that more parents and friends of the school will attend them



Money in it.

In Weymouth, Nov. 14, Charles E., son of William A. and Charlotte P. Allen, aged 10 years, 9 months.

Quinn—Carroll.

Seldom has East Weymouth seen a prettier wedding than that solemnized in the Church of the Immaculate Conception last Wednesday afternoon by Rev. Fr. M. E. Begley. In the presence of a large audience of friends and relatives of the bride and groom, Miss Mae Carroll, daughter of John Carroll, and Alfred Quinn of Milwaukee, Wis., were united in marriage.

The bride presented a charming appearance in white satin, with veil adorned with orange blossoms and carrying a bouquet of lilies of the valley. The bride was accompanied by her brother, Will Carroll, who gave her away at the altar and Miss Annie Morresey, of Hingham, richly gowned in white muslin over yellow.

The groom, a graduate of Harvard university and a former resident of East Weymouth, was accompanied by his brother as best man.

At the conclusion of the marriage ceremony the party returned to the home of the bride on Middle street where a brilliant reception was held, the newly wedded pair being assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. Carroll.

The decorations of the church and home were most elaborate, rare plants, flowers and ferns being used in great profusion.

A fine collation was served with Cook of Boston as caterer and many costly and rare gifts testified to the esteem of friends.

After a brief bridal trip the couple will return to East Weymouth for a few days and will then leave for their future home in Milwaukee.

Hanley—Leary.

St. Francis Xavier church, South Weymouth was the scene of a very pretty wedding Wednesday morning, the contracting parties being, William E. Hanley of Rockland and Miss Fanny Leary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Leary of South Hingham.

The nuptial mass was celebrated by Rev. J. J. Murphy, assisted by Rev. J. B. Holland.

Miss Elizabeth Leary, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid and Joseph P. Shannessy was best man.

Immediately after the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served to the immediate family. In the evening the home of the bride's father was crowded with friends who had come to tender their congratulations and wish them happiness in their new life.

Mr. and Mrs. Hanley will reside in Rockland.

Foster—Partridge.

On Monday evening last, there was a quiet, but pretty wedding at the residence of Mrs. Partridge on Middle street, Weymouth Centre. The parties were Arthur Foster of Brookline, and Mary Emma Partridge of Weymouth, and the service was performed by Rev. Wm. Hyde of Trinity church. Only relatives of the happy pair witnessed the ceremony and the bride was given away by her brother, George Partridge. Refreshments including ice cream was served after the wedding and a pleasant evening was spent by those present. Mr. and Mrs. Foster were the recipients of quite a number of pretty and valuable gifts from relatives and friends. The happy couple left town Tuesday for Wormington where Mr. Foster is engaged in business.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury,

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally and is made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

The Christmas Number of McClure's.

The publishers of McClure's magazine announce a Christmas number of quite extraordinary quality, both in its reading matter and its pictures. There is to be a richly printed cover, decorated with one of Botticelli's most famous Madonnas, specially redrawn by Henry McCarter; a first reproduction of a Madonna painted by Josephine Wood Colby; a reproduction of a portrait of Washington painted at Valley Forge by Charles Willson Peale, and never before published; reproductions of some famous frescos by Melozzo da Forli, in illustration of a Christmas poem by Harriet Prescott Spofford; and some new and especially important views of Palestine, made under the personal direction of the editor of the magazine. In addition to this, every contribution will be fully illustrated, and among the contributors will be Rudyard Kipling, Ian Maclaren, Harriet Prescott Spofford, Frank R. Stockton, Hamlin Garland, Henry Seton Merriman, Cyrus C. Adams of the New York Sun, and William Canton, author of "W. V. Her Book."

COMMON PLAIN FOOD.

It is Best for Children or Adults.

Natural grains, meat and fruit will make good blood if the digestive machinery of the body is not interfered with.

The blood when first made goes into the arteries and is of a bright red color. After it has been used some in supplying the body, it is carried into the veins and is there a dark red or purple color. Blood contains the elements to nourish and build up the body, such as iron, soda, lime, albumen, etc., etc.

When the powers of the stomach and the bowels are reduced by lack of vitality or by putting coffee and tea into the stomach the processes which nature goes through with to change the food into rich, red blood are seriously interferred with.

If a man could see what a "wet blanket" he put over his hard working friend, the stomach, by putting in coffee, whiskey or tobacco, when it was honestly toiling away to do its work well, he would never repeat the outrage and injustice. It is like striking your friend a vicious blow when he is delving away for you with might and main. Don't do it. One feels more respect for himself when he acts the man and permits no form of abuse to strangle and spoil the beautiful work being done for him in the human body. No sort of fun on earth is equal to the fun of being thoroughly well.

If one wants a pungent, piquant, hot drink for breakfast, lunch or dinner, it can be had in Postum, the health coffee. It is made wholly of grains by the Postum Cereal Company Limited, of Battle Creek, Mich. It can be truly said, "It makes red blood." It brews the deep seal brown color of Mocha; it creams to the rich golden brown of Java, and has an aroma and taste that make a man thankful that someone has at last made a combination of the grains that gives such a delicious hot drink that one can readily leave off the coffee which has been hurting more than one likes to think of.

Medicines are poor crutches. The only safety is to use food and drink that the Creator intended for man, and when this is done the diseases and sick spells gradually disappear.

Common sense is quite uncommon except with those who give themselves a shaking now and then and look plainly at what they are doing. If a person knows coffee don't hurt him, let him stick to it until he does, then such people thoroughly appreciate Postum. Grocers and druggists testify to large sales and the steady use of those who once try it, is evidence of its taking ways.

"Just as good" as Postum Cereal are words used to defraud the public.

Sold by E. J. Pitcher.

OBITUARY.

Charles Allen.

The people of South Weymouth were saddened to hear of the death of little Charles Allen, son of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Allen, who reside on Main street.

The child had been sick with diabetis for a long time and the end came last Saturday afternoon at about 4 o'clock.

The funeral service was held at the home of his parents, Tuesday afternoon, Rev. Mr. Butler, pastor of the Union church, attending.

Charlie was a member of the Union church Sunday-school and his voice will be missed from among the number who always took part in the school concerts.

The little boy was 10 years old. The body was taken to Fairmount cemetery, East Weymouth, for interment.

Obituary.

Although a resident of Berkeley for only a little over a year, Major Henry A. White had made many friends. Being retired from his profession he was at liberty to visit among business men, and everywhere the clearness of his views and strength of character shown, won for him the admiration of those with whom he came in contact.

He was an enthusiatic Grand Army man, and although not affiliated with the local post, has visited it frequently, and his loss is deeply felt by the members of the order, and theirs will be the last hands to minister to him, as he will be given a soldiers' funeral.

Major White was born in New York of Puritan ancestry in 1833. His boyhood was spent on a farm in Indiana. In '53, after his mother's death, he went to Nashville, Tenn., where he taught the first public school ever established in that state. He came to California in '54 and mined in Diamond Springs. He taught school in Sacramento for four years, earned money to continue his education. He graduated from Harvard Law school and entered the Union army as a private in 1861. Was Lieutenant and Captain of Company G, 48th Indiana Volunteers. Lost his health, resigned and partially recovering, went again as Captain of the 118th Indiana, a company mustered by himself. Left the army at the close of the war as Major of the 148th Indiana. He was married in '66 and settled in Kansas City, Mo., where he practiced law for some years, but later took up his natural vocation, teaching. Taught for twenty-five years, when his failing health forced him to resign. In '95 was principal of the largest school in the city, and was considered one of the finest educators in the state. He had a genius for teaching and numbered among his friends thousands of his pupils.

Portland, Me., Nov. 16, 1896.

My Dear Gazette:

Major Henry A. White, the subject of above notice, clipped from the Berkeley (Cal) Daily Advocate, was a son of Lemuel and Sara Arnold White, and grandson of Deacon Abiel White of the North Parish of Weymouth. His grandmother was Betsey Babcock White, of Dorchester, Mass. Lemuel was the third of a family of seven, five sons and two daughters. Betsey, the elder daughter, married Oliver White, her cousin, and removed to New York. The younger, Rachel, a strongly-marked character of great intelligence and promise, was suddenly removed in early womanhood to the life beyond. Enos, a younger son, followed his father's occupation of cabinet maker, and remained on the old homestead, an attractive place, occupied in later years by his widow. The recent death leaves it untenanted by any member of this once large and prominent family.

Two Lives Saved.

Mrs. Phoebe Thomas, of Junction City, Ill., was told by her doctors she had consumption and that there was no hope for her, but two bottles Dr. King's New Discovery completely cured her and she says it saved her life. Mr. Thomas Eggers, 139 Florida St. San Francisco, suffered from a dreadful cold, approaching Consumption, tried without result everything else then bought one bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery and in two weeks was cured. He is naturally thankful. It is such results, of which these are samples, that prove the wonderful efficacy of this medicine in Coughs and Colds. Free trial bottles at the drug stores of J. E. Connell, Weymouth; Geo. M. Hoyt, East Weymouth; L. T. Brown, South Weymouth; F. A. Smith, Braintree. Regular size 50c. and $1.00.

WANTED—A LITTLE GIRL.

Where have they gone to—the little girls,
With natural manners and natural curls,
Who love their dollies and like their toys
And talk of something besides the boys?

Little old women in plenty I find,
Mature in manner and old of mind;
Little old flirts who talk of their "beaus
And vie with each other in stylish clothes.

Little old belles, who, at nine and ten
Are sick of pleasures and tired of men,
Weary of travel, of balls, of fun,
And find no new things under the sun.

Once, in the beautiful long ago,
Some dear little children I used to know;
Girls who were merry as lambs at play,
And laughed and rollicked the livelong day.

They thought not at all of the style of their clothes,
They never imagined that boys were "beaus,"
"Other girls' brothers" and "mates" were they,
Splendid fellows to help them play.

Where have they gone to? If you see
One of them anywhere, send her to me,
I would give a medal of purest gold
To one of these dear little girls of old,
With an innocent heart and an open smile,
Who knows not the meaning of "flirt" or "style."

ELLA WHEELER WILCOX.

THE BOYHOOD OF GRANT.

New Reminiscences and Portraits.

McClure's magazine announces for publication in the December number a paper of reminiscences of the boyhood of Grant. Mr. Hamlin Garland, the novelist, who has long had in mind the project of writing an intimate personal life of Grant, has gone down to Georgetown, and Ripley, Ohio, and Maysville, Kentucky, the towns in which Grant passed his life until he went to West Point, and by industriously talking with every man and woman there who had any personal knowledge of Grant, and by delving into the local records and newspapers, has gotten together a rare store of illuminating fact and anecdote; and out of this perfectly new material he has written the paper which is to appear in the December McClure's.

Tremont Theater.

Mr. Willard will begin the second and last week, but one, of his engagement on Monday evening next, and owing to its great success "The Rogue's Comedy" will be played every evening during the week, and at the Saturday matinee, Nov. 28. A grand Holiday matinee will be given on Thursday, Nov. 26 (Thanksgiving Day), and, for that occasion, a special performance of the great play "The Middleman," will be given, Mr. Willard appearing as Cyrus Blenkarn, the role in which he made his first, and a lasting, impression upon the Boston public. For Thanksgiving night "The Rogue's Comedy" will be given, thus affording out of town patrons an opportunity to see Mr. Willard in two of his finest impersonations. There will be no Wednesday matinee next week.

"It is announced that, commencing with Jan. 1, 1897, the city of Glasgow, Scotland, will cease to levy taxes of any kind whatsoever upon its residents. The city authorities have ascertained that from that date the entire expenses of the city for the future can be borne by the incomes which will be received from the public works owned by the city. Among the latter are water works, gas and electric light plants, street railroads, sewage farms and other institutions of lesser magnitude, all of which are paying large profits to the city treasury."

Good advice: Never leave home on a journey without a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

Sideboards!

There is something more than convenience in the Sideboards manufactured today, and those who know venture to say that the wonderfully low prices of the present time cannot exist for a very great while.

Sideboards in beautiful flake, quartered oak, richly carved, large beveled and shaped French mirror plate, swell top, and delightful arrangement of drawers, with one beautifully velvet-lined for your silver.

Year after year the prices have dropped, and $25.00 today at this store buys more Sideboard elegance than thrice the amount could buy not many years ago.

They add a constant air of welcome to every dining room, and real Sideboard comfort once tried, makes one wonder why they ever lived without it. 50 patterns to choose from—$9.50 to $60.00.

BRIEF ITEMS

Of Local Happenings and Personals.

WEYMOUTH.

—"Edison Vitascope Co." See ad.

—Invitations are out for a dancing party in Clapp's hall, Thanksgiving eve and the affair promises to be a great success.

—Miss Adaline Gaillardet and Frank Bergeron were united in marriage at the parochial residence by Rev. Fr. Billings of Jamaica Plain, Tuesday evening. Miss Rose Bergeron, a sister of the groom, was bridesmaid and the bride's brother, George Gaillardet, was best man. A reception followed the ceremony at the home of the couple, on Washington street. They were the recipients of many handsome and costly gifts.

—Police Officer Oliver Houghton was 75 years old yesterday. Mr. Houghton is the oldest public officer in town, having served continuously for 30 years. Mr. Houghton went to Randolph, Tuesday, to attend the celebration given by the Odd Fellows of that town to his brother Ralph Houghton, the veteran undertaker, who was that day 77 years old and it was also the 50th anniversary of his initiation into the Odd Fellows.

—A large number attended the first social and entertainment given by the Arbutus Assembly Pythian sisterhood at Pythian hall, Wednesday evening.

—Miss Alice Nash is ill with the mumps.

—Frederick Harris and family arrived in town Tuesday from Bartow, Florida, where they have been living the past two years.

—Miss Nettie Binney of Riverside, Cal. who has been visiting here for several months has returned home.

—There are quite a number of cases of mumps in this village.

—Miss Millie Clark of East Bridgewater, who has been visiting Miss Alice Burrell, has returned home.

—Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Foster of Summer street were in New York last week attending the horse show.

—William Colson is around again after being confined to the house by illness for some time.

—Senator-elect James H. Flint and Mrs. Flint are on a trip through Maine.

—Miss Mary S. Knight, bookeeper at E. W. Hunt's, has resigned. Miss Cora Ratcliffe will take her place.

—John Goulay rolled a great string at Burrell's alleys, Saturday afternoon, 274, which wipes out all previous records at these alleys.

—The alarm from Box 78 at shortly after eight o'clock Sunday morning was needless and was rung in by an excited individual who saw smoke rising from a pile of coal at Richards' wharf. The fire department was soon on the scene, but their services were not needed. The fire which was in a pile of soft coal had been burning for the past two weeks.

—Daniel A. White who was quite badly injured by being kicked by a horse some time ago is able to be out again.

—Delta Lodge of Masons held a regular communication Tuesday evening.

—A large number from this village attended the celebration at East Weymouth, Monday evening; the electric cars did a big business.

—$1104.05 was cleared at the Cemetery fair held at the church of the Sacred Heart.

—George R. Davis is quite ill and his son George M. Davis has moved into his father's house on Washington street.

—The Terpsichorean club held a well attended dance at Clapp's hall last Saturday evening.

—At Union church next Sabbath, Rev. Chas. S. Brooks, late of Fitchburg will occupy the pulpit. Mr. Brooks is said to be a fine preacher. It is hoped that all who can will make it a point to hear him He has been for some years pastor of the largest Congregational society in Fitchburg and is highly recommended.

—The Union Literary circle met with Mrs. R. L. Hunt, Tuesday evening, November 17th. Quotations were miscellaneous. Miss Emma F. Thayer gave a review of the History of Spain up to the year 1492, Mrs. George W. White treated the same subject from 1493 to 1498, and Mrs. S. W. Gutterson, from 1498 to 1516. These papers were not only instructive but very interesting. Miss Susie H. Porter then sang a few selections in her usual pleasing manner, and the circle adjourned to meet with Mrs. John E. Hunt, December 1st. Quotations miscellaneous.

—The Little Oil Man will be around Wednesday afternoon of next week instead of Thursday.

—A delegation from Delta Lodge of Masons attended the visitation at Orphans' Hope lodge, Wednesday evening.

Hints to Merchants and Clerks.

You can learn something useful every day, if you try.

Deal with each in his turn; it is only fair, and makes friends. Do not hurry the matter in hand.

Whether you sell or buy, make but one price for equal terms.

An honest worker does not fear the employer's appearance.

Attention to social and private matters is not in order during business hours.

Places out of usual sight should be as clean and orderly as any.

Insure in the New York Underwriters Agency.

Every man knows more than other people about something which may be of use to you.

Do your very best always; but never believe you cannot better it in time.

When you have nothing to say, hold your tongue. There is enough talk already.

When you slip up, own up. Make no excuses, for a good excuse is worse than none; but be sure you do better next time.

Nothing succeeds like success.

Indifference is worse than ignorance.

Be ready and willing to advise all who ask, but never offer advice.

Try to know faces and names of all with whom you deal; proof of such remembrance counts greatly, as a rule.

Give every one his full due in courtesy, avoiding slip-shod familiarities of speech.

Have time-tables handy, and try to be able to answer all sorts of questions such as visitors are likely to ask.

A clean, well displayed stock is worth more quick money than the same goods in mussy confusion.

Zeal is very well, but is never a good substitute for knowledge.

Loss beyond recovery should be charged off and forgotten; for the lapse of time and wear and tear are resistless and not to be worried over.

801 GARRET A. HOBARTS.

800 of Them Are Babies Named for the Vice-President Elect.

New Brunswick, N. J., Nov. 13.—A committee, which is arranging for a sound money demonstration in this city on Monday, went to Vice-President-elect Hobart yesterday to secure his attendance. Mr. Hobart begged to be excused. Then he added:

"Gentlemen, the demands upon my time are enormous. I have about seventy-five invitations to attend dinners and celebrations on Monday. If I did nothing but write autographs for the babies I would be very busy."

"Babies? What do you mean?" asked one of the Committeemen.

"Why," said Mr. Hobart, "I have had 800 of them named after me so far, and the end is not in sight."—New York Sun.

Noah was the first man to advertise. He advertised the flood and it came through all right. The fellows who laughed at advertising got drowned and it served them right. Ever since Noah's time the advertiser has been prospering while the other fellow is being swallowed up in the floods of disaster. The moral is so well pointed that it is hardly necessary to dwell upon it further.

THE GONE GOBBLER.

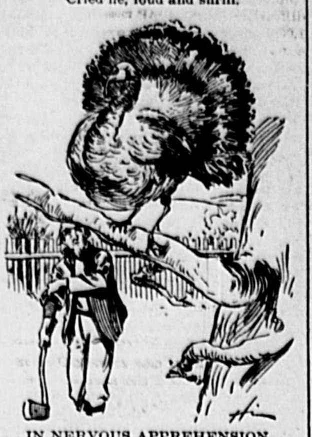
A gobbler perched on a walnut limb
One chill Thanksgiving morning
Awoke the brood in the daylight dim
With gobbled notes of warning;
He craned his neck and he gazed below
In nervous apprehension,
Where a human being crouching low
Attracted his attention.
"Gobble-obble! Gobble-obble!"
In the morning still,
"Obble-gobble! obble-gobble!"
Cried he, loud and shrill.



IN NERVOUS APPREHENSION.

Then down he flew with a mighty flop,
His wattle redly flaming,
And he gobbled on with scarce a stop
His lordly rank proclaiming;
But close at hand crept the human form,
Each moment drawing nearer,
And old Mr. Gobbler grew quite warm
When he saw the creeper clearer.
"Obble-gobble! obble-gobble!"
Cried the gobbler grand;
"Gobble-obble! gobble-gobble!"
Finest in the land.

Swish! went a sharp and gleaming knife—
Off went his head a-flying!
And the valiant bird gave up his life
To man a martyr dying.
In state on the farmer's board that day
Reposed good Mr. Gobbler,
And all who feasted on him did say
There never was turkey nobler.
"Gobble-gobble! obble-obble!"
Now no longer heard;
"Obble-obble! gobble-gobble!"
Great Thanksgiving bird.
—FRANK B. WELCH.

OUR NATIONAL HOLIDAY.

There are holidays and holidays. Christmas and New Years are cosmopolitan—are the property of no particular people, but yet are joyously observed by many. But Thanksgiving is purely an American holiday, original in conception and growing from a small beginning until it has reached the dignity of a national event. Its first celebration was by the Plymouth colony in 1621—those sturdy pioneers whose piety was as pronounced as their pluck, who honored themselves by honoring their Deity. The custom soon became more general, spreading over all the New England states. After the revolution it gradually extended to the middle states and later to the west, growing more slowly in the south. In 1863 the patriotic Lincoln forever established it in the list of holidays by proclaiming a day of Thanksgiving, his action being promptly followed by the individual proclamations of the governors of the states, who named the same day. Since then, by common consent, the first announcement of the day is found in the president's proclamation, and the day so named is also named by the states.

In many ways, says the American Agriculturist, Thanksgiving is one of our most delightful events. It comes at a time when the rigors of winter are not yet at hand. We have at our disposal all the varied products of the soil, and the time for a season of partial rest for the farmer is at hand. One of its most delightful features, which has become quite general, is the gathering together under the old rooftree of all the scattered sons and daughters on this day. Two, three and sometimes four generations thus meet around the festive and hospitable table of the old homestead, and thus fraternal ties are strengthened and filial piety encouraged.

Another and not less commendable feature of this holiday is a practical benevolence which has become very notable. Poor people, to whom a good dinner is a rarity, are hunted out, and in an unostentatious way are helped to properly observe the day, so far as its festive features are concerned. The sick and suffering are remembered in various ways. The homeless are, for the day, made members of some hospitable household, where they can join in its pleasures. Altogether, this is perhaps its best feature. There is no pleasure so lasting, none which affords such real joy, as that which comes to us from the knowledge that we have done a real kindness to some of the suffering children of earth—in some way alleviated their sorrows or eased their pains.

Last, but not least, the devotional spirit which is the impelling motive of the day, is encouraged and developed, we learn to be more contented with our lot, thankful for what we have and hopeful for the future.

Gets More Than His Share.

"I only wish they'd confine Thanksgiving to one day."

"Well, don't they?"

"Not at my house. I'll have to eat cold, minced, deviled and croquetted turkey all next week!"—Chicago Record.

Thanksgiving.

All summer long the barnyard heard
The turkey's brag and boast,
And now they're glad that bumptious bird
On all sides gets a roast!
—N. Y. World.

The Best of All.

Herbert—I like Thanksgiving dinner the best of any in the year.

Aunt Jane—How is that?

Herbert—Because it is so good that I never want the dessert first.—Truth.

November Sentiment.

In blessings shared, with humble lots
The truest joys we trace;
Who gives the freest charity
Gives thanks with fairest grace.
—Kansas City Journal.

The One Thing Needful.

She has a man to make her gowns,
And every one's a gem;
Yet for one lack she often frowns—
A man to pay for them!
—Truth.

Quiet Missionary Work.

Literary Critic (laying down a new book)—I wish every maid, wife and mother in the country could read that book.

Able Editor—Well, run in a line to the effect that that book is one which no woman should be allowed to see.—N. Y. Weekly.

Agreed.

Mrs. Cutter—The more I think of it, Mr. Cutter, the more I am convinced that when I married you I married a fool.

Mr. Cutter—Accepting your conclusion as incontrovertible, madam, it enforces the verdict that we are well mated.—Boston Courier.

Her Sarcasm.

"Henry," said Mr. Meekton's wife, who had been overcoming his objections to some household expenses, "you ought to go into politics."

"I'm sure you never gave me any credit for ability in that line before."

"No, but I think now that you have some of the right qualities. I never saw anybody more reluctant to talk about money than you are."—Washington Star.

Right Kind of Pull.

"You like your new partner, do you, Dr. Forseppes?" asked the patient, as the dentist paused to fit a more excruciating drill into his boring machine.

"Yes," responded the doctor, with a thoughtful air, "we pull together."—N. Y. Recorder.

A Great Battle.

Do consumptives recover? Yes, thousands of them. Even after the disease has a firm hold? Yes, no doubt about it. After cavities have been formed and hemorrhages have occurred? Yes, even then. If the system is too weak, the disease will probably conquer, but if the body can be reinforced there is a fair chance for a winning fight. For twenty years, thousands have testified how they gained the victory.

Scott's Emulsion

of Cod-liver Oil with the Hypophosphites is still coming to the rescue. Out-door life, fresh air, and good pluck are of immense value. But in addition to these the body must be supplied with that peculiar kind of fat which is found only in cod-liver oil; combined with valuable medicinal agents; and there must be the tonic effect which comes from the hypophosphites. It is a great battle, and a great victory is often gained.

"Just as Good" is not SCOTT'S EMULSION.

MISCELLANEOUS ITEMS.

—German authority estimates that almost a third of humanity speak the Chinese language, that the Hindoo language is spoken by more than 100,000,000, the Russian by 89,000,000 while the German is spoken by 57,000,000 tongues and the Spanish by 48,000,000.

—The races inhabiting the world communicate with each other in 3,004 different tongues, and confess to about 1,000 religions. The number of men and women is very nearly equal, the average longevity of both sexes being only 38 years, about one-third of the population dying before the age of 17.

—A Hillsboro (Ore.) man owes more to his bicycle than he ever thought he would. He missed the train that was to take him to be married and was sore put to it, when he bethought him of his wheel, which he mounted, and scorched to such effect that he arrived just in time to cheer the drooping spirits of a wilting bride.

—Gouverneur Morris, of New York, in 1872, proposed to the Continental congress a decimal currency system. He suggested that ten units equal one penny; ten pennies, one bill; ten bills, one dollors, ten dollars, one crown. In 1784, Jefferson proposed the system as now in use; congress, in July, 1785, resolved that the coinage should conform to the decimal system.

—Generally, taking the entire world, married people live longer than single, and those who have to work hard for their living longer than those who do not, while also the average rate of longevity is higher among civilized than uncivilized races. Further, people of large physique live longer than those of small, but those of middle size beat both.

—The bobolink builds her nest in a little depression in a meadow, and as bird, eggs and house are all of the same mottled brown, and well hidden by the grass, she is not often molested. Some birds excavate a cup-shaped hole and line it. The nighthawk and the whippoorwill deposit their eggs on the bare ground, where they are only protected by their inconspicuous coloring.

—The boundary line between Canada and the United States is marked with posts at mile intervals for a great part of its length. Cairns, earth mounds and timber posts are also used, and through the forests and swamps a line a rod wide, clear of trees and underwood, has been cut. Across the lake artificial islands have been put to support the cairns, which rise about eight feet above the high water mark.

NOT FOR A MOMENT.

Junius Could Not Forget His Dear Little Wife.

"Good by, dearie," said Mrs. Junius, as she hung about her husband's neck and bothered him in putting on his overcoat. "I shall be busy here at home all day with the affairs of the house and I am sure that with you busy at the office we shall be a very busy couple. You won't forget, will you, to call in at Price & Bargain's and get me two spools of silk to match the sample I put in your pocket? Have you got it in your pocket? Yes, here it is. Well, go to the silk counter and the young girls that wears glasses; anyway, I know she is near-sighted, for I saw a young man bow to her on the street and she didn't return it—and show her this sample and tell her who it is for; she will know just what you want, and now I do hope you will be careful and not slip, for the sidewalks are just awful, and, think of it! If you should fall and break your leg, and you know your accident policy has run out, and I do hope you will not have a hard day at the office. Now, for pity sake, put on your gloves before you start out and if you see the grocery man tell him to change my order to chops, but not the long, stringy kind that he brought last time, which I had to give to the cat, for somehow we've got to keep our market bills down this year or else what will become of us? And you know the gas bothers us terribly, so if you see the man don't forget to speak to him, will you? There, good-by, darling. I shall be thinking of you all the minutes of the day while I am about my work; not for an instant will you be out of my thoughts. Kiss me, dearie, and tell your little wife that you will be thinking of her all day, too."

And he told her so.

"Clack - clack — clack - clack-clack" went the typewriter just behind Mr. Junius' desk.

"Clack - clack - clack — clack - clack clack" it went all day.

Not for a moment was Mrs. Junius out of his thoughts.—N. Y. Recorder.

Dainty Furnishings.

Cushions grow larger and larger. Many of them are made of figured silk, the patterns in which are as big as saucers.

Richly-covered chairs, too good to be hidden and yet slightly worn at the corners, may be most effectively renovated with a round, open gold braid or lace. If the material is much worn, the ornamentation may be lined with something in harmony with the groundwork of the furniture.

To while away the hours of your pleasure in a perfumed atmosphere you will find that the rich material sachets now in vogue are of great assistance. These should be filled with strong scent and apparently thrown carelessly on pianos and tables. Bags about 18 inches long, trimmed around with ribbon ruches and ornamented with floating ribbons, may also be hung with good effect on the backs of chairs and sofas.—Chicago Record.

Domestic Felicity.

She—So you are going to your club again. When are you coming home?

He—I could come home by ten o'clock. Would that suit you?

He came home at a quarter past one.

She—Didn't you say you would be home by ten o'clock?

"Certainly; I said I could be home by ten, and so I could, but I didn't want to."—Texas Sifter.

Bound to Be a Success.

"So you have written a novel?"

"Yes."

"Has your heroine satin skin, velvet eyelashes, and hair like threads of spun gold?"

"Yes."

"Is her name Gwendoline?"

"It is."

"Then I don't see why it shouldn't be a success."—Tit-Bits.

As Usual.

Went to the cupboard
To get her poor dog a bone;
But they all looked so sweet,
That she kept them to eat,
And so the poor dog had none.

"Well, that's a peculiar thing. If I don't ask for a substitute they'll believe I have nothing to do, and if I ask for one he'll find out that I have nothing to do."—Fliegende Blaetter.

Few People Have Eyes Alike.

Fully nine-tenths of those who wear Glasses have different vision in each eye. Sometimes it is a decided difference, in others only a slight variation. A careless examination will fail to bring out this defect—the same lenses would be adjusted to each eye—and headaches and eye strain that medicine fails to relieve is the result. I test each eye separately, select proper lenses, adjust glasses to suit both eyes from as complete a Test Case as is made.

No extra charge for testing the eyes. Gold Spectacles, $3.00 to $5.00. If you are having any trouble with your eyes or head call and see if I can't relieve you.

KEEP THE HOUSE COOL.

Exclude the Light and Air During the Scorching Hours of the Day.

However mild the first day of summer, July and August generally blast all hopes for a cool season, and it is a rare and exceptional year in which these months are not a fiery furnace of endurance, so far as the weather is concerned.

The main question then for those who, from choice or necessity remain in town, is how to keep the house cool, so that when night comes some part of the discomfort of the day may be forgot in sleep.

No one needs to be told that the main element of success in this effort lies in the total exclusion of air as well as light during the scorching hours of the day. The breeze is very tempting whenever it comes, but it is also very treacherous and deceptive, for, in the long run, it is more heating than cooling, as it blows over streets where the thermometer is marking 90 in the shade.

Of course, we must have light and air, for if we remain in the house we must employ our time in a thousand and one ways which require both, but the outside heat is the foe to fight, and it enters by every crack large enough for an atom. The best generalship selects certain rooms to be kept open enough to live in, those of the second story being usually preferred.

As soon as the light grows strong in the morning all the other windows of the house should be fastened tight, the shutters bolted, the sashes in place and even the dark shades lowered so as to exclude as nearly as possible the rays of day.

In the second story the shutters should be bowed in and the rooms made as dark as feasible, while on the parlor floor the only windows open should be those of the dining-room—and these are fastened tight between the hours for meals.

The cook needs light and air to make her hot kitchen still hotter, but the work is rendered more tolerable if a large gas stove or an "Aladdin's oven" is substituted for the fierce fires of the range. This deprives the bathroom of hot water, but it also prevents the heating of the house by the pipes which run from the boiler to different rooms, and hot baths are not advisable in hot weather.

A very important factor in keeping the rooms cool is the power to get rid of heated air, which rises toward the roof. A trap door which can be set open is almost a necessity for this, but it must be carefully watched if there are any empty houses in the row, lest by these means a burglar should be tempted into devious paths.

A house that was considered intolerably hot was made more habitable by the audacious extravagance of its owner, who had a long, narrow window cut in the wall near the roof at the head of the last flight of steps. The window was supplied with a grating and with slatted shutters, so that all air was excluded, and the hot air found a passage from the hall to the outside, while burglar-proof grating made it possible to leave the window open all night.

The front door might readily be so arranged with a grating that it, too, could be left open at night, and in all cases it should be supplied with an awning to prevent the intense glare of the marble steps and the pavement, and at the same time, to afford shade to the visitor and tradesman who must wait there till the bell is answered.

As soon as the sun has ceased to beat upon the house—either directly or by reflection—all these processes can be reversed. What is needed then is air, which, however heated, is sure to lose a degree or two of its temper as night comes on. All windows then should be thrown wide open and remain so until late, the upper stories, in fact, being left open until sunrise next morning announces the battle once more.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Sleeping Rooms in Summer.

To be healthful, the sleeping apartments should be the most esthetic rooms of the house; the furniture should be simple, the floor uncovered and the bed comfortable. No rooms on the sunny side of a house can be kept cool without inside blinds, or sun awnings outside. Many housekeepers make the mistake of excluding sunlight and air from the house in order to keep it cool. Windows and doors should be thrown open early in the morning, so as to freely admit sunshine and light, then they may be closed to exclude the heat in the middle of the day, to be again thrown open in the cool of the evening. Management and method must be exercised in order to keep cool in summer, as in all else pertaining to the family comfort, and will be found to produce good results in even the warmest climates.—Ladies' Home Companion.

He Had Seen Some Service Before.

They watched the graceful movements of the players on the tennis court.

"The count," said she of the auburn locks, "is a fine player, is he not?"

"Ah, yes," replied she of the raven tresses. "Especially do I admire his nerve. But what are those strange words which he repeats each time before he serves the ball?"

"I know them not," the other answered. "It is said that he learned them when he first began to serve, and cannot break himself of the habit."

Moved by curiosity, they approached the athletic nobleman, and bent their heads to listen.

"Yes-s, sar," said the count, "porter-house-steak-roast-beef-mutton - chops-loin-of-veal—"—Chicago Tribune.

A Boy's Chances Spoiled.

Farmer's Boy—Father, why cannot I rise in the world the same as other men? For instance, why cannot I some day become secretary of agriculture?

Old Farmer—Too late, too late, my son. You know too much about farmin'.—N. Y. Weekly.

MISCELLANEOUS ITEMS

—Robespierre was in love with Eleanor Duplay, and during the bloodiest days of the revolution spent his evenings with her and her mother. "You would think him a priest," she wrote; "he reads to us poetry and the Bible."

—Rev. J. C. Edwards, England's champion begging letter writer, has just died at the age of 82. He was rector of an out-of-the-way parish and had a wooden leg. On the wooden leg and the poverty of his cure he drew a comfortable income from the charitable for nearly half a century.

—Russia has 503,000,000 acres of forests. In Sweden and Norway the forest area covers 62,000,000 acres; in Austria, 45,000,000 acres; in Germany, 34,000,000 acres; in Turkey, 25,000,000 acres; in Italy, 14,000,000 acres; in Switzerland, 1,700,000 acres; in France, 22,000,000 acres; in Spain, 8,000,000 acres, and in Great Britain, 3,000,000 acres.

—In the intervals between lynchings, tenderness toward animals is being encouraged in Texas. A Galveston alderman who was so shocked at a dog catcher's method of final resort that he induced the common council to ordain that captured dogs must be asphyxiated, has now declared himself about to establish a prevention of cruelty society.

—The Buffalo board of aldermen voted the other day to grant an appropriation of $1,000 for the entertainment of the American Association for the Advancement of Science during the meeting of that body there. But the councilmen promptly killed the measure, the sentiment being that, though the scientists would be more than welcome, the city government could not afford to establish such a precedent.

—A correspondent living in Peking, China, writes: "The emperor's real mother died last Friday, after an illness of several weeks. If his adopted mother, the empress dowager, wife of the emperor Tung Chih, had died the whole nation would be in mourning, and the unpleasant sight of shaven heads would be universal. As it is, the woman who has given birth to an emperor will be interred with only the ceremonies due to the wife of a prince, and will be unmourned by the nation.'

WHALE'S FROLIC.

Water Blown Upon Frightened Boatmen and Their Craft Pursued.

Two men in a row boat fought for their lives amidst a school of ten whales the other day off Newport beach.

The men were camping at Newport, and had gone out for a fishing trip in a rowboat. Having found a good fishing ground, they were pulling in yellow-tail and barracouda rapidly, when suddenly what appeared to be an island arose from the water alongside the boat. The swell nearly capsized the little craft, and the terror-stricken men fell to bailing her out, realizing as they worked that they had had a visit from a whale. No sooner had they emptied the boat of water than they had a similar experience on the other side, and this time a sweep of a whale's tail nearly shivered their boat.

All about them, soon, were whales, spouting water over the sportsmen, toying dangerously with their boat and having lots of fun. The great creatures were apparently in a good-natured mood, for they resented no familiarity, such as having the men poke them with an oar to push the boat from too close proximity. They showed a most distressing curiosity about the little vessel and its contents, however, and the shouts of the men had no effect toward driving them away.

For half an hour the two Riversiders, expecting each moment to be killed by a smash from the tail of one of the mammoth animals, maneuvered about, trying to escape; but no sooner did they pull a few hundred feet away than the whales followed, and the contest commenced anew. The men kept frantically working for shore, and at last got so close that the whales gave up the chase.

At times during the adventure the occupants of the boat could have touched the whales with their hands, and the big ocean denizens appeared to take a mischievous delight in spouting water all over the hapless mariners.

When the men reached shore they were very much exhausted, and were bruised all over as a result of being thrown about in their boat.—Los Angeles Cor. San Francisco Examiner.

A QUEER INCUBATOR.

One That Is Used to Hatch Out Microbes for Experimental Purposes.

A firm in Regent street, London, makes a business of hatching out artificial birds, chickens and the like, and the incubators adapted for their various purposes are lined up against the sides of the long room. They also take infants that are prematurely born and by keeping them in a certain and unvarying temperature, and giving them proper nourishment, develop them into healthy and lusty babies.

Perhaps the strangest of all their many appliances for hatching living organisms is their biological incubator. Here are "cultivated" whole "colonies" of deadly microbes for purposes of bacteriological investigation and experiment.

The cholera bacillus, the scarlet fever micrococcus, the leprosy and tuberculosis bacilli and dozens of other varieties of these pestiferous little organisms propagate themselves in these forcing houses with marvelous rapidity. They are grown on small lozenge-shaped pieces of gelatine, and a fragment the size of a quarter suffices to maintain a "colony" of 80,000,000 of microbes.

This particular incubator is fastened by two locks of the latest design and most intricate construction; and, in view of the terrible results that might possibly follow from an unauthorized meddling with its gruesome contents, the precaution seems a wholly necessary one.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Wanted to Be Like George.

Willie Littleboy—I wish I had been George Washington.

Papa—Why so, my son?

Willie—Why, papa, he couldn't tell a lie, and so when he was visiting and was asked if he would like another piece of pie, instead of saying no just for the sake of being polite, he told the truth and said yes.—N. Y. World.

Unwelcome.

Peddler—Peg pardon, ma'am, but I am agent for Dr. Feeder's spice root bitters, and I'm sure if the members of your family would try them they would soon have the finest appetites—

Lady at Door (severely)—This, sir, is a boardinghouse.—N. Y. Weekly.

One at a Time.

"You seem to like dogs," he said, with an envious glance at her pug.

"I do," she answered, and then she added quickly, as she saw with a woman's intuition that he intended to propose, "but I don't want more than one at a time."—Chicago Post.

What He Was Doing.

He—I assure you I would never dare to rob those sweet lips of a kiss.

She—You hypocrite! Didn't you attempt it last night?

He—Never! Far from intending to rob you of a kiss I was trying to give you one.—Answers.

Explained.

Mrs. Bibbs—How is it that your husband doesn't belong to any lodges, Mrs. Jayson? And he always seems to be at home nights.

Mrs. Jayson—It's all very simple. I carry the pocketbook. — Cleveland Leader.

HARD TO SAY IT.

Mr. Popleigh—What would you think if I were to tell you that I had been dying by inches for you for years?

Miss Wanterwed—I should think it—it was very sudden.—Brooklyn Life.

Gave Him a Pointer.

"I believe," said the candidate, "that my country calls me."

"If you are alludin' ter that noise you heard just now," said the old farmer, "you air somewhat mistook Hit wur nuthin' but the ole mule a-brayin' in the lot."—Atlanta Constitution.

Rather Awkward.

Maud—I think you are real mean to refuse. You always promised you would be my bridesmaid.

Marie—True enough dear. But I did not know you were going to marry a man I had rejected.—N. Y. Herald.

Diplomacy.

"Who made your bicycle suit?"

"I made it myself."

"Yes, I thought so, but I wanted to be sure. How nice it is!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Leads All New England.

648,152 copies of The Boston Herald were circulated Nov. 4, 1896.

This is the new high water mark, and the greatest ever attained by any newspaper in New England. The Herald not only gives its advertisers the largest bona fide circulation in New England, but a known quantity of character and influence, and a purchasing power greater than that of any other Boston paper.

The time for business was never more propitious than at present; public confidence in the American system of government has been restored, the idle mills are starting up, others are running full time, and there is a healthy condition of affairs in every direction.

THE OUTLOOK

Published Every Saturday, 13 Astor Place, New York.

The Outlook will be in 1897, as it has been during each of its twenty-seven years, a History of our own Times. In its various editorial departments the Outlook gives a compact review of the world's progress; it follows with care all the important philanthropic and industrial movements of the day; has a complete department of religious news; devotes much space to the interests of the home; reviews current literature; furnishes cheerful table-talk about men and things; and, in short, aims to give fresh information, original observation, and reasonable entertainment.

Beginning with the fifty-fifth volume, the paper will assume the regular magazine size, which will add greatly to its convenience and attractiveness. The Outlook is published every Saturday—fifty-two issues a year. The first issue in each month is an illustrated Magazine Number, containing about twice as many pages as the ordinary issues, together with a large number of pictures.

The price of the Outlook is three dollars a year in advance, or less than a cent a day.

Send for a specimen copy and illustrated prospectus to The Outlook, 13 Astor Place, New York City.

Old People.

Old people who require medicine to regulate the bowels and kidneys will find the true remedy in Electric Bitters. This medicine does not stimulate and contains no whiskey nor other intoxicant, but acts as a tonic and alterative. It acts mildly on the stomach and bowels, adding strength and giving tone to the organs, thereby aiding Nature in the performance of the functions. Electric Bitters is an excellent appetizer and aids digestion. Old People find it just exactly what they need. Price fifty cents and $1.00 per bottle at the drug store of J. E. Connell, Weymouth; Geo M. Hoyt, East Weymouth; L. T. Brown, South Weymouth; F. A. Smith, Braintree.

Castle Square Theatre.

The coming week at the Castle Square theatre will take on somewhat of a gala character as it will include not only the extra matinee attending the annual Thanksgiving holiday; but also the 600th operatic performance at this house, an event as unprecedented as it is conclusive of the enterprise and good judgment shown in the conduct of this theatre.

General Director Jaxon has selected as the bill for the week a revival of the great double bill which created such a marked impression last season; "H. M. S. Pinafore" and "Cavalleria Rusticana." The two works with their sharply contrasted characteristics afford splendid opportunities for the display of the varied abilities of the members of the organization, and the distribution of the several roles will bring all of the leading singers of the company into the week's performances.

The 600th performance falls on Friday evening and a pleasant surprise is being planned for the patrons on this occasion. To follow the double bill on Monday the 30th inst., "Trovatore" is announced for one week only.

HOW TO PREVENT CROUP.

Some Reading That Will Prove Interesting to Young Mothers. How to Guard Against the Disease.

Croup is a terror to young mothers and to post them concerning the cause, first symptoms and treatment is the object of this item. The origin of croup is a common cold. Children who are subject to it take cold very easily and croup is almost sure to follow. The first symptom is hoarseness; this is soon followed by a peculiar rough cough, which is easily recognized and will never be forgotten by one who has heard it. The time to act is when the child first becomes hoarse. If Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is freely given all tendency to croup will soon disappear. Even after the croupy cough has developed it will prevent the attack. There is no danger in giving this remedy for it contains nothing injurious.

THANKSGIVING HYMN.

By Charles Eugene Banks.

Behold the garnered treasures of the field!
All promises of April are fulfilled;
The earth exhausted with its bounteous yield,
As some brown Samson suddenly o'erwilled,
Shorn of its flowing locks all nerveless lies
A helpless subject to the low'ring skies.

From distant fields come lowing herds of kine
To lie at ease beside the bursting rick,
Content to know, with reason wond'rous fine,
If fast or slow the clock of Nature tick,
That shelter, food and drink in plenty wait
To cheer their stay within the farmyard gate.

What though old Winter rouses in the north,
Who fears him now that Plenty reigns supreme?
The honest yeomen lead their children forth
To mingle voices with the praiseful stream,
The prayerful rushes and the chanting wood,
In grand thanksgiving to the God of good.

Impatient Love, now weary tasks are done,
Trips all as lightly to the homely tune
As fairies sporting where the brooklets run
Through rose-trees nodding in the month of June.
Hope long deferred a sweet fulfillment finds,
As grapes give answer to the bending vines.

Not rural homes alone to-day are blest,
The mother welcomes everywhere her child,
The worldling stands a sinner self-confessed
And is again to virtue reconciled.
Thanksgiving for the spirit born of Thee,
O man of God in blessed Galilee!

From lowly vale and lofty mountain peak
Still prayer and praise and glad thanksgiving rise;
The strong grow thoughtful of the poor and weak,
The dove of peace from cot to palace flies,
While strange, sweet music wakened by her wings
Thrills every heart till every creature sings:

The Lord in His temple
Ne'er ceases forgiving,
Sing praise to Him, praise to Him,
Praise and Thanksgiving.

THANKSGIBIN' IDA.

"If none were sick and none were sad
What service could we render?
I think if we were always glad,
We scarcely could be tender."

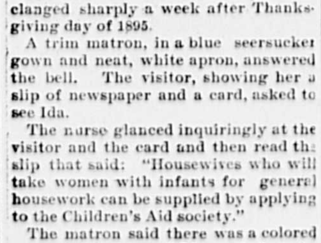
It was 24 years ago, on Thanksgiving day 1872, that dainty little cards announced to the many friends in society's world that unto Margaret and Edward Stanhope a daughter had been born.

Into the softly lighted, luxurious room where the mother lay, Edward Stanhope walked gently. He sat down beside the bed and held tenderly the hand of the wife and mother.

The white-capped, important-looking nurse, obeying his gesture, brought from its lace and downy nest the tiny, carefully-guarded pink and white mortal and laid it down between them with much careful patting and adjustment of its dainty draperies.

Together the father and mother gazed fondly at the child; the mother with the expression that only mother-love and reverent thankfulness can give to a happy woman's face, while the father's manly countenance showed wonder and paternal love just dawning.

As the husband rose to leave the room, he kissed his wife tenderly, saying: "We have great cause for thankfulness on this day, and always. What more welcome and precious gift could have come to us than this? God grant that she may be the cause of thankfulness to many as the years go on."



AND LAID IT DOWN BETWEEN THEM.

And happy Margaret gently pressed his hand as her eyes turned toward their baby daughter with love and thankfulness.

Twenty-four years later this precious little Thanksgiving bundle had unfolded and become to the social world Miss Margaret Stanhope, a lovely and lovable, helpful member of society.

---

The bell of the Maternity home clanged sharply a week after Thanksgiving day of 1895.

A trim matron, in a blue seersucker gown and neat, white apron, answered the bell. The visitor, showing her a slip of newspaper and a card, asked to see Ida.

The nurse glanced inquiringly at the visitor and the card and then read the slip that said: "Housewives who will take women with infants for general housework can be supplied by applying to the Children's Aid society."

The matron said there was a colored woman there named Ida, and that she could be seen.

The maternity ward was clean and bare except for the long rows of iron bedsteads. In these beds lay women and girls. There were young slips of girls, young women, and middle-aged faces here and there. Faces lined and seamed with trouble, poverty, hard work and care. Sad faces, bad faces, bold faces, scared, white despairing faces of young girls ashamed of the tiny bundles beside them.

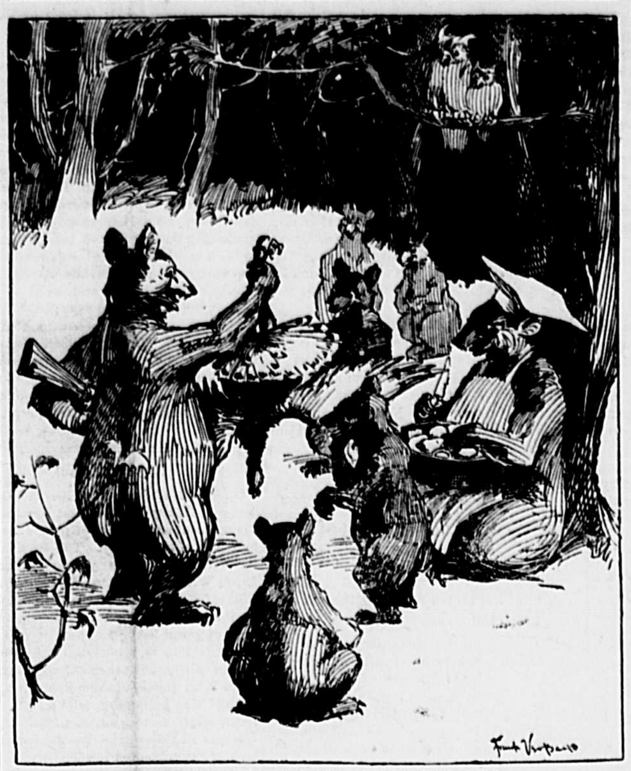
But the dusky face of Ida, with its mournful eyes and patient mouth, was not easily forgotten.

Her emaciated form lay immovable upon the cot and a tiny bundle, wrapped in a coarse flannel blanket, lay beside her. When the blanket was pulled aside, the contents proved to be a small, wriggling study in mahogany.

That it had been a study to Ida, one could see by the loving but troubled glance she gave it.

At first she was reticent and shy, but after a while the story came out. Ida spoke in the softly modulated voice of her race, but sadder, more monotonous, troubled tones one seldom hears.

She smoothed the counterpane with her thin, black hand slowly as she said:



THANKSGIVING IN THE WOODS.

"Yuh see dis is how it is, lady. I'm uh hidin frum him. Ebry wun dat kumz dis-a-way in de waud I sez: 'You is him,' and I dun hides undah de bedcloze an shakes an shakes."

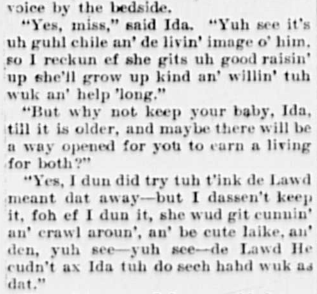
"Yes, yuh see, thehs ben trubble. I reckun ebry wun hez uh heap 'o trubble, an ef it aint laike my heap, its trubble jes' de same, I reckun.

"I wuz jes uh young guhrl an' I seen him. He wuz dressed up naice, an' he had uh mannuhly way—an' so we wuz mahrid. I ain't laike some o' dem poouh guhrls yondah, foh I wuz suah mahried. My cousin, Sylla Pearl, she dun reckuned it wuz de wuhst wuk I evah dun, 'kase Sylla Pearl she nevah tuk no notion to him.

"Well, at fuhst it wuz Ida heah an' Ida yondah, all pleasant an' nice, but wun day he says: 'I ain't got no moh money, Ida, an' I wants uh new pah uh gallusses an' uh bettah hat an' coat. Go out an' git 'em foh me. What yuh good foh, ennyhow—' an'—an'—he hit me, but I reckun he didn't mean dat nohow. Mothah she wuz so gentle an' still kaind o' an' I nevah wuz strong. But 'pears laike de Lawd knows how Ida dun did try to help.

"So den I dun washin's, an' I dun cookin'; foh, ef I do say it, I reckun no wun evah foun enny fault wid my cookin'.

But 'pears laike he had to have so menny trinkets, an' he tuk all de money I could git an'—den 'pears laike he got worse an' worse uh drinkin' an' gamblin', an' de ole doctah I went to when I got so drefful tired an' sick he said if it wuzn't too late foh me he'd try an' save me but I mus' leave him suah. Den I didn't know whah tuh go, noh what tuh do nex—I reckuned what wus kummin' tuh me."



"SHE DUN KUM UP THANKSGIBIN' DAY."

Here she stopped exhausted, and gave another troubled glance at the unconscious mahogany bundle.

"So dat kin' ole doctah he dun foun' out de lady at de aid society what yuh kum frum, an' she helped me tuh git in heah.

"Yes. I want wuk when I git out ob heah; only pears laike I'm so tairid like—an' de Lawd he dun keeps callin' sofly in muh heart—'Kum, Ida—Kum an' res'—Jes' laike my mothah used tuh say when she wuz libin'. So I've laid heah uh studyin' an uh studyin'—an' I sez: Ef de Lawd sez 'kum, Ida, chile; kum an' res' '—den whahs my little baby goin' tuh git tuk cah o'—an' den de Lawd he reach down an' sent some wun foh Ida's little baby. So I reckun de Lawd means I bettah gib it away."

"Give your baby away!" echoed the voice by the bedside.

"Yes, miss," said Ida. "Yuh see it's uh guhl chile an' de livin' image o' him, so I reckun ef she gits uh good raisin' up she'll grow up kind an' willin' tuh wuk an' help 'long."

"But why not keep your baby, Ida, till it is older, and maybe there will be a way opened for you to earn a living for both?"

"Yes, I dun did try tuh t'ink de Lawd meant dat away—but I dassen't keep it, foh ef I dun it, she wud git cunnin' an' crawl aroun', an' be cute laike, an' den, yuh see—yuh see—de Lawd He cudn't ax Ida tuh do sech hahd wuk as dat."

Here Ida turned her troubled eyes away.

"But, Ida," said the voice by the bedside, "who would want to take a little helpless baby? How old is it?"

"She dun kum uh Thanksgibin day. Der wuz uh lady—a young lady, an' she had uh kine, smilin' face, laike she wuz allus good an' happy, she kum in heah de othuh day—an' she reckuns she'll dun tak' it. She sez she'll raise her up, an' train huh to be huh little waitin'-maid, an' sen' huh tuh school sum, an' thet she will lib wid huh always. Dat's de bes' I can do foh huh, 'pears like, an' befoh she gits enny cute ways, an' befoh I gits too taired like to heah de Lawd when He calls in muh heahrt: 'Kum, chile, kum, an' res'.' "

Here Ida paused and lay smoothing the counterpane feebly.

Then she said: "I ben uh studyin' 'bout dem good wuds in de Bible—my mothuh luhned me, 'bout Thanksgibin' —an' 'pears laike Ida kin luhn 'em tuh say tuh de kine Lawd when she gits to His gates: 'Entah—into—His gates, wid—Thanksgibin'.' For de Lawd He jes reached down an' smoothed out all de tangles frum Ida's heap o' troubles an' sent de lady foh huh before she got any cute ways laike. De lady dun put huh name—kahd undah my pillow. Heah it is."

As I read the name, Miss Margaret Stanhope, Ida fumbled feebly for a stump of lead pencil under her pillow, and said:

'Jes put huh name, pointing to the baby, down on de name kahd foh me. Call huh 'Thanksgibin'—Ida.' "

The visitor wrote it and handed back the card to Ida, who held it fast as she closed the mother's eyes that had gazed longingly at the little bundle by her side, "uh studyin' an' uh studyin'," hoping and trusting till now she was ready to "Enter into His gates with Thanksgiving."

ONE THANKSGIVING.

It was Thanksgiving day and the kitchen so full of delicious odors that Mr. Beebee lingered in it after breakfast, watching his wife make pies.

"Ole Mis' Tooker's goin' to the porehouse to-morrow," she remarked.

"So?" ejaculated Mr. Beebee, a man of few words.

"Why, yes, father; where you been for two days not to hear it? Goin' to the porehouse at Thanksgivin', an' her with two married daughters!"

Mr. Beebee puffed at his pipe, making no reply.

"Jane Rose said she'd take her ma if she'd wear false teeth."

"False teeth, hey?"

"Yes. I'd like to know how she'd even have cut her own teeth if her ma hadn't took care of her while she was doin' it;" she made a dive at the unoffensive cat, "the pore ole sole's most heart broke. Sary Loo won't have her ma because her grammar's bad."

Mr. Beebee took his pipe out of his mouth long enough to say: "Who taught her to talk, I wonder?" and immediately replaced it.

"That's you, father," cried his wife, admiringly, "you ain't much of a hand to talk, but when you do you say something." The sole reply was a grunt.

"She was over to th' graveyard last week to see her husband's grave; says she can't ever hope to get over from the porehouse, bein' sech a poor walker."

Mr. Beebee's pipe was done, and he knocked the ashes out. "She ain't goin' nohow," he said.

"Matthew Beebee, you don't say!"

"Th' church has labored with her da'ters; they're goin' to have her week about. Don't know it herself yet, though; Jane Rose don't want her till after Thanksgivin'—she's goin' to surprise her to-morrow."

"Well, if you wouldn't try the patience of a saint, lettin' me most spoil my Thanksgivin' over it for nothin'. There comes Mis' Roach, father; you watch the pies while I run out and tell her. Say, Mis' Roach, ole Mis' Tooker ain't goin' to th' porehouse!" she cried, breathlessly.

"I know she ain't—" her face was very grave.

"Who told you?"

"The doctor; she died an hour ago."

"An' she never knew she wasn't to go to the porehouse; never knew Jane Rose was comin' fer her to-morrow?"

"Not a word of it; last thing she said was: 'Is the porehouse wagon come yit?' "

Mrs. Beebee sat down upon the steps, her apron over her head, and wept aloud.

OPTIMISTIC.

Clara—Going to church Thanksgiving?

Tilly—No, I ain't got nothin' to be thankful for.

Clara—Well, you ought to be thankful for that.—Bay City Chat.

Not Much Choice.

The American Thanksgiving.

By Stanley Waterloo.

Ever it is true that the great peoples are those who give open thanks to the Power they recognize for the good which comes to them. Something in the strong heart has made thanksgiving an instinct of forceful civilization. It has been so since the time when Miriam, the prophetess, played upon the timbrel while her handmaidens danced and the daring Israelites praised God because they had safely passed the sea. The old Greeks made thank-offerings to their gods, and the bearded Norsemen expressed their clamorous gratitude to Odin and Thor. To the world-dominating Anglo-Saxon, with his religion of Christ, came the same impulse, and it has clung to him in each vast wilderness he has invaded. Not only has he been a giver of thanks, but he has dignified and glorified the duty and made it a feature of his national life.

It was almost a matter of course that there should suggest itself to the Puritans, rigid and God-fearing as the most earnest of Cromwell's roundheads, the idea of a thanksgiving that should be formal, but it was from the flux of a new nature's munificent influence upon their lives that there came a mellowing to the character of the day's observance, that a certain hardness disappeared, and that the occasion became one of open joyousness. The little shrub of observance planted in 1621 by the good Gov. Bradford has grown into a mighty tree with flowers amid its fruit.

It was good, all that happened about the time of the first Thanksgiving day. The Pilgrim fathers were in a particularly jubilant mood—for them—on that occasion. Years of scanty crops and threatening starvation had been followed by a bountiful harvest and there was an absolute geniality in the preliminaries to the famous dinner. It was to be a game dinner, a dinner fit for any epicure who ever lived, and none so mean in all the colony but should be present. So were opened the hearts of those rugged worshipers that they were not content with even this but summoned old Sachem Massasoit and all his swart retainers, and when the feast was spread red man and white sat down together and were brothers. Here was Christian spirit; here was an exhibition of that broad humanity and care for the other man taught by Him who walked the strand of Galilee. Here was practical Christianity, and who shall say that from this hour, when such kindly hospitality was shown, when the good things God has bestowed upon men were eaten appreciatively and joyously, and when thanks were given more sonorously than in the past, there was not given birth to the germ of that broadness and joyousness, even in worship, which has become a trait of the American character.

So we have made of Thanksgiving a day of gratitude all untrammeled, a day the accompaniments of which are merry, as they should be. The reunion of families and of friends, the feasting and the laughter, even the legend of the ennobled American bird, all combine to make of the day something genuine and religiously beautiful. There is the strain of the timbrel. Never was a greater national holiday, never one more perfect in its spirit. It is in itself one of the things to be thankful for to the Power which has so blessed so vast a land.

GUARDING THE ROOST.

Farmer Oatcake (sternly)—What do you mean by hanging 'round my turkey roost at this time of night?

Mose—Bress my soul! Am dat yo', Mr. Oatcake? I was guardin' de place, sah; I was guardin' it! There's a good many thievin' niggahs around about Thanksgivin' time.—Texas Siftings.

As Seen by Him.

The old gobbler looked dreamily away over the back-yard fence.

"Yes—"

(A shudder ran through his frame)— "they are bringing out all our family skeletons these days."

A glance at the debris from the dinner table showed that this was only too true.—N. Y. World.

Thanksgiving.

What though we burn wood by the cord
And weather prophets croak?
Soon on the groaning festive board
The turkey, stuffed, will smoke.
Then something to the poor we'll spare—
Who're always with us here—
And we'll forget all grief and care
In sweet Thanksgiving cheer.

What He Had.

Richards (discontentedly)—Thanksgiving day, eh? I don't know what I've got to be thankful for!

Wraggs—Why, you've got a good home, splendid prospects and a big income.

Richards (savagely)—Yes, and dyspepsia.—N. Y. World.

Before and After.

The young wife pouted her beautiful lips,
And her sweet smile suffered a sad eclipse.
"I am not so much to you, now," she said,
"As I seemed to you, darling, before we wed."
Said her "lord," who had dared to infer that he Was aweary of holding her on his knee,
"You seem lots more"—he but sought to trick her,
"That's just why you tire me so much quicker!"
—L. A. W. Bulletin.

Unpardonable Crime.

"That was a pretty bold piece of business out on Thirty-seventh street. Two men held up a crowd of five or six fellows about three o'clock in the afternoon and robbed them of something like $1600. One of the robbers had a full dress suit on, too."

"And before six o'clock! What a scoundrel!"—Chicago Tribune.

Our Kitchen
No kitchen is kept cleaner than the premises devoted to the manufacture of NONE SUCH Mince Meat. No housewife can be more fastidious in the matter of preparing food than we are in the selection and preparation of the materials of which it is made. The cleaning of the currants (for one thing) is more thoroughly done by means of perfected appliances, than it would be possible to do it by hand.
Its cleanliness, purity, wholesomeness and deliciousness are good reasons for using NONE SUCH Mince Meat. The best reason is its saving—of time, of hard work, of money. A ten cent package affords you two large pies, without trouble to you beyond the making of the crust. Makes just as good fruit cake and fruit pudding as it does mince pie. Sold everywhere. Did you get a wish-bone?

Now for Christmas.

One has only to read the daily papers of the past week to be satisfied that all law and all legislation in regard to prize-fighting is a farce. From one to five fights to a finish are reported every day.

Cuban news is encouraging. Weyler is unsuccessful in putting an end to the war of the patriots and it is about time, in the opinions of most of us, for Uncle Sam to take a hand and add Cuba to the United States in some form or aid the island to independence. It is a glorious country and if it had half a chance under a liberal form of government would astonish the world in a few years.

Several centers and cross road places in town have recently been adorned with pretty gilt signs, giving them names as "squares;" among them one at Weymouth Heights, giving the place the name Adams square. If the party who placed the sign there will refer to the records of the Town Meeting for March, 1837, he will find that the Town voted "that the open space near the North Meeting house shall be known as North Square."

The weather yesterday was warm, damp and depressing, but it did not prevent a vigorous attack and a tremendous victory over Mr. Turkey and his minions. The slaughter was tremendous, and bones were everywhere. The enemy's "gobble-obble" is now scarce heard in the land. How long must we wait before we hear of the cessation of that other Turkey's fierce gobblings of innocent human beings.

Senior Councillor.

By virtue of previous offices held, Col. B. S. Lovell will become senior councillor on the staff of the next Governor of the Commonwealth. This will make him chairman of the most important committee, that of finances.

The Week.

The gain in volume of business continues entirely without precedent. More than 390 establishments have started work, since the election, which were idle, and at least 300 have increased working force, making 690 concerns which are known to have added largely to the number of hands at work, and these are only part of the whole number. Every day thus adds thousands to the number of those who are able to buy a week's supplies, and to make up gradually for many months of enforced economy. Already this brings great increase in the volume of business, and the Clearing House exchanges, for the first time in several years, not only exceed those of last year by 10 per cent., but also exceed those of the same week in 1892 by 9 per cent. Business men are all anxious to prevent anything like the fictitious excitement of last summer, and in nearly all branches an excessive rise in prices is prevented. But with more hands at work, there is inevitably a greater demand for supplies, materials, and products.—Dun's Review.

Who Will Fill The Post Offices?

We are but a few days removed from an election which in its results will bring a change of administration in National affairs and a consequent charge in many departments of the government. Applicants for post offices are getting quite numerous and the offices at Weymouth, North Weymouth and South Weymouth have several names on file for the title of Postmaster.

There has as yet been no applicant for the office at East Weymouth and as the present incumbent is on the first of a four years' appointment, it is doubtful if any immediate move for a change will be made.

VISITATION.

Old Colony Lodge of Hingham Visits Wildey Lodge of South Weymouth.

One of the pleasantest occasions in the history of Odd Fellowship or of any order, are those when through the invitation of one lodge another makes them a fraternal visit.

Surely this can be said of the evening at Wildey Lodge, No. 21, I. O. O. F. last Monday, when Old Colony Lodge of Hingham, to the number of about thirty, came over by special electric cars to enjoy their hospitality.

This was also made an occasion for an official visit of the district deputy and D. D. G. M. John H. Cooper and suite of Rockland were present.

To all but a few, the secret of this occasion was known, but it was yet to be disclosed to Brother Walter W. Hersey of Hingham, who has been the deputy over Wildey Lodge for the past thirteen years, but who has been appointed to other fields of labor in the order.

After the regular routine of business had been disposed of and the visiting brothers had been received, interesting remarks were made by the newly appointed deputy, John H. Cooper of Rockland, and many of the visitors, George L. Wentworth was called upon to make the secret known to those still in the dark.

In a few well chosen words, paying the highest tribute to the past deputy's worth in the position he has filled for so many years and the esteem in which he is still held, Mr. Wentworth presented Mr. Hersey with an elegant watch chain and charm the gift of Wildey Lodge.

The gift is of solid gold and the charm bears the emblem of the Odd Fellows and the Encampment. On the back of the charm was engraved as follows: "Presented to Walter W. Hersey, D. D. G. M., by Wildey Lodge, No. 21, I. O. O. F.

Mr. Hersey was completely surprised but responded, thanking the Lodge for their remembrance.

The lodge was then closed and all repaired to the banquet hall, where an oyster supper was served.

After supper, cigars were lighted and a social hour was spent, ending with singing a few college songs.

At 11 o'clock the visitors departed for home leaving behind their best wishes for the prosperity of Wildey Lodge.

A cup of muddy coffee is not wholesome, neither is a bottle of muddy medicine. One way to know a reliable and skillfully-prepared blood-purifier is by its freedom from sediment. Ayer's Sarsaparilla is always bright and sparkling, because it is an extract and not a decoction.

TAPS AGAIN SOUNDED.

Another Soldier Passes Away.

Capt. A. J. Garey Suddenly Called Home.

Yesterday Capt. A. J. Garey of East Weymouth was engaged in the active duties of life and this morning all that was mortal of him is resting at his home on Randall avenue as the result of heart disease.

Capt. Garey was born at Biddeford, Me., sixty-three years ago but has been a resident of East Weymouth for nearly half a century.

The deceased won his title of Capt. during the late war, enlisting in Co. H. 12th Regiment and seeing nearly four years of hard, active service, was wounded at Gettysburg, practically losing his right arm.

Twice he was appointed as postmaster at East Weymouth and did credit to the office, was an active worker in South Shore Commandery, K. T., and filled several important offices in that organization; was also a member of Orphans Hope Lodge, F. A. M., Crescent Lodge, I. O. O. F. and Pilgrim Lodge, K. of H. He was for several years an active worker in the police and constabulary force of Weymouth and distinguished himself as liquor officer; for many years he has had charge of the Methodist church and yesterday attended to his regular duties in connection with Thanksgiving service.

Funeral services will be held from his late home Monday the 30th at 1 o'clock.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Lavinia Littlefield.

Mrs. Lavinia, widow of the late Freeman Littlefield, passed away at her home on Pond street, South Weymouth last Friday afternoon.

The funeral services were held at her late residence, Sunday afternoon at 12.30. Rev. Mr. Bissell of the Universalist church attending.

Deceased was 72 years, 7 days old.

The interment was at Highland cemetery.

The bearers were, Messrs J. Leonard Curtis, John Vinson and four nephews of the deceased.

Course of Lectures to be Given at Lovell's Corner.

"Studies in Animal Life," is the subject of a series of lectures to be delivered with black board illustrations, in the Porter church at Lovell's Corner, by the pastor, Dallas L. Sharp, on the Wednesday evenings of December.

For Dec. 2, the subject will be "The Chain of Life"; for the 9th, "Eye for Eye, with Tooth, and Tusk, and Claw"; for the 16th, "Fashion and Dress, a Study in Animal Coloration"; for the 23d, "Animal Intelligence"; for the 30th, "Domestic and Social Life of Animals."

Mr. Sharp is an ardent lover of nature, and a close student of the subject which heads this course of lectures; he has made a post graduate study of biological science, and is well fitted to entertain and instruct in this department. The subject will be treated in a popular style and free from technical terms, and to all persons interested in the lives and habits of the humbler forms of the animal creation, is offered an enjoyable and instructive series of evening entertainments. The profits of the course are to be devoted to the use of the trustees of the church.

Season tickets for the course may be procured at the popular price of $1.00 at the store of B. F. Thomas, North Weymouth; C. T. Foster, South Weymouth; Weymouth Clothing Store, East Weymouth, and C. D. Harlow, Weymouth.

Single admissions at the door, 25 cents. For school children of all ages, season tickets will be 50 cents; single admissions, 15 cents. Lectures commence at 8 o'clock. Electric cars go by the door.

Life at Washington.

The inauguration of a President, the selection of his cabinet, and the seating of a new Congress—national events of the coming year—suggest the question, What are the powers and duties of these high officials? During 1897 it will be answered through the Youth's Companion, in a remarkable series of articles by Secretary Herbert, Postmaster-General Wilson, Attorney-General Harmon, Senator Lodge and Speaker Reed.

The Illustrated Announcement for 1895 (mailed free on application to the Youth's Companion, Boston), shows that the above is only one of many brilliant "features" by which the Companion will signalize its seventy-first year.

Three novelists who at present fill the public eye—Ian Maclaren, Rudyard Kipling and Stephen Crane—will contribute some of their strongest work. Practical affairs and popular interests will be treated by Andrew Carnagie, Hon. Theodore Roosevelt, Dr. Lyman Abbott, Madame Lillian Nordica, Hon. Carl Schurz, Charles Dudley Warner, Mrs. Burton Harrison, and a hundred other famous men and women.

Four fascinating serials, more than two hundred short stories, and ten times as many sketches and anecdotes will be printed during 1897; and all the departments will be maintained at the high standard which has made the Companion's name a synonym for impartial accuracy.

The cost of the Companion is but $1.75 a year, and we know of no investment that will give so great returns for so small an amount of money. New subscribers will receive the paper free from the time the subscription is received until January 1, 1897, and for a full year to January 1898. New subscribers also receive the Companion four-page Calendar, lithographed in twelve colors, which is the most expensive color production its publishers have ever offered. Address,

THE YOUTH'S COMPANION,

Weak Men and Women Will Be Glad to Learn This.

Tired bodies, pale and sunken cheeks, haggard eyes, sleepless nights and weak nerves, are ruining our lives and killing our people. No wonder these poor sufferers bless Dr. Greene for his great offer. He is the most successful specialist in curing nervous and chronic diseases and the discoverer of that wonderful medicine, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. He has established a system of letter correspondence at his office, 34 Temple Place, Boston, Mass., by which all can write him about their complaints, and by mentioning the symptoms they suffer from and telling him how they feel, they will receive an answer from him, free of charge, giving a complete description of their case and telling just what ails them. He gives most careful attention to every letter, tells just what to do to be cured perfectly and permanently, and makes all understand exactly what their complaint is. And all this costs nothing. No journey to the city, no doctor's fee, the best medical advice and consultation in the world, and nothing to pay. The Doctor makes a specialty of treating patients through letter correspondence, and it is wonderfully successful. Write him at once, reader, and you will almost certainly be made strong and well.

A Valuable Prescription.

Editor Morrison of Worthington, Ind., "Sun," writes: "You have a valuable prescription in Electric Bitters, and I can cheerfully recommend it for Consipation and Sick Headache, and as a general system tonic it has no equal." Mrs. Annie Steele, 2625 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago, was all run down, could not eat nor digest food, had a backache which never left her and felt tired and weary, but six bottles of Electric Bitters restored her health and renewed her strength. Prices 50 cents and $1.00. Get a bottle at the Drug Store of J. E. Connell, Weymouth; Geo. M. Hoyt, E. Weymouth; L. T. Brown, So. Weymouth; F. A. Smith, Braintree.

ANOTHER LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR.

Advises Use of Dr. Greene's Nervura Because He Knows It Will Cure.

Lieut.-Governor Fletcher Bids the Weak, Nervous and Discouraged to Hope, for the Wonderful Dr. Greene's Nervura Will Surely Cure Them.

The world believes its great men.

Their word is accepted as truth, their example followed, their advice taken.

Knowing this fact, the illustrious Lieut.-Governor of Vermont, Hon. Henry A. Fletcher, of Proctorsville, Vt., who is the descendant of a long line of Statesmen and Rulers, tells the people if they wish to get well, if they wish to get back their health and strength, to use Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy because he knows from personal experience, from its use in his own family and among his friends, and from having observed time and time again its wonderful curative powers, that it will surely and certainly cure, that it will give strength to the weak, strong nerves to the nervous, natural refreshing sleep to the sleepless, perfect digestion to the dyspeptic, rich, red blood to the feeble, freedom from pain to the rheumatic, in fact, sound and vigorous to all who use it.

Lieut.-Governor Fletcher's family have been leaders and advisers of the people and publicly identified with the history of the United States for more than a hundred years. His father was both Lieut.-Governor and Governor of Vermont and his grandfather was one of the framers of the Constitution of Massachusetts.

Certainly no higher testimonial, no greater proof of a medicine's wonderful power to cure can possibly be given than is here bestowed upon Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy by this most distinguished statesman and head of the government of the state.

Surely no one who is ill, worn-out, run-down, weak, nervous, discouraged and disheartened by repeated failures to be cured can require any greater proof, any stronger testimony that Dr. Greene's Nervura will cure, that it will certainly restore health and strength to the weak and nervous sufferer, than Lieut.-Governor Fletcher's powerful words wherein he states that he has personally used it in his family with greatest benefit, knows it to be a most wonderful curer of disease, and earnestly recommends its use by all who are out of health and need medicine.

The great Statesman says:

"I have long heard of the good effects of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy and have used it in my family. I have heard cases among my neighbors who have derived benefit from its use and can truly say, that as far as my experience and information go, the results are highly satisfactory. This letter can be published for others' good."

If you are a sufferer from weakness or disease, do not hesitate to take Dr. Greene's Nervura and get well after such a testimonial from so illustrious and distinguished a Statesman.

Do you think so eminent a man of such high official position would lend his name and give his emphatic advice to use Dr. Greene's Nervura unless he knew positively its great value, its wondrous power to cure? He knows that his words will be heeded and his advice to use this grand remedy followed because of his high standing and he unhesitatingly tells the people, speaking the welcome truth to the sick with the voice and dignity of official authority, that Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy will cure the weak and suffering, will give health and strength, renewed life, restored energies and the zest and happiness of living.

Remember also that this is no so-called patent medicine, but the prescription and discovery of Dr. Greene of 34 Temple Place, Boston, the successful specialist in curing nervous and chronic diseases, who can be consulted without charge, sooner or later.

THANKSGIVING DAY.

Observed in all Parts of the Town.

Thankful Prayers From the Pulpits and From the Hearts of the People.

Thanksgiving day was observed yesterday in the usual manner. Union services were held in the churches of the several parts of the town, and thanks were given for the blessings of the year, not the least of which was the providential deliverance of the country from the threatened control of anarchists and repudiationists. Not for years have the Thanksgiving sermons partaken of so much earnestness and fervent thankfulness for the protection and guidance of the Almighty.

Families gathered together as usual and the number of turkeys slaughtered and hid away by eager mouths can hardly be computed.

Thanksgiving is one of our best days and we thank our forefathers for it.

BOWLING.

Commercials 2425; Norfolk Cycle Club 2286.

The Norfolk Cycle club bowling team lost its first league game on Tuesday evening, the Commercials of Brockton being the opponents.

The game was played on the alleys at Brockton and there was a large delegation from both clubs to witness the game.

The visitors were unable to put up even a respectable score, being especially poor in second ball work. Both teams put up poor first ball work, as the break column will show, the home team having thirtyone and the visitors twenty-nine. Both teams had thirty-three strikes, but the second ball work of the home team was far superior to that of the visitors, they having seventy-two spares and only fourteen misses against fifty-six spares and thirty-two misses.

Crocker was high man with a score of 513 closely followed by Tower with 504. Crocker had but one missed spare.

Richards—Paul.

On Wednesday evening Nov. 25, the residence of Henry Paul in East Braintree was the scene of a large gathering of friends and relatives of the family. The occasion was the marriage of his youngest daughter, Ethel Winona Paul, to William Bradford Richards of East Braintree. The front parlor was decorated for the service, an arch of green being formed in one corner, under which, at 8 o'clock, the bride and groom presented themselves in front of Rev. Wm. Hyde of Weymouth, who performed the ceremony which was a most impressive and beautiful one. Little Georgia B. Carty was bridesmaid and she was prettily dressed for the occasion. The best man was Theodore B. Allen. The bride wore a beautiful dress of cream white and held a bunch of bridal roses in her hand. The happy pair were the recipients of many valuable presents. They will reside on Commercial street, East Braintree. At the close of the wedding formalities refreshments were served and the evening was spent in a very enjoyable way.

White—Knight.

Miss Mary Snow Knight of East Braintree and Mr. Arthur Russell White of this village were united in marriage, Monday evening by Rev. William Hyde. Miss Cora Ratcliffe of East Braintree, was bridesmaid and Mr. John P. Hunt, best man. The young couple were the recipients of many handsome gifts. They have gone to housekeeping in the Granville Field house on Washington street.

Castle Square Theatre.

The announcement of the revival of "Trovatore" as the attraction for the coming week at the Castle square theatre will be welcome intelligence to the vast numbers of music lovers who await the productions at this house as a regular source of entertainment. The old time opera has never yet failed to prove a drawing card at the Castle square as it has the world over, and for the revival announced the cast promises some brilliant performances. The role of Leonora will be alternately taken by Clara Lane and Laura Millard, and the title role of Manrico will be shared by Edgar Temple and Martin Pache, the latter tenor singer joining the organization the coming week. The remaining roles will be assigned as follows: Azucena, Hattie Belle Ladd; Inez, Bertha Lehman, Count Di Luna, J. K. Murray; Ferrando W. H. Clark; Ruiz, Lindsey Morrison, Messenger, John Read. The production of "Trovatore" will be characterized by elaborate stage settings, and every possible care will be shown in perfecting the groupings and tableaux of the several scenes. "Faust" is to follow as the attraction for Monday Dec. 7th.

A Nerve and Brain food: Ayer's Hygienic Coffee. Grocers sell it.

Ladies Meet and Organize.

About forty ladies, representing all parts of the town, gathered in G. A. R. hall last Friday afternoon for the purpose of forming a woman's club for educational and social advantages. A constitution and by-laws were adopted and officers were chosen as follows: President, Mrs. Henry A. Richards; vice-presidents, Mrs. M. E. Hawes and Miss Ella Shepard; recording secretary, Miss Caroline Trask; corresponding secretary, Mrs. A. Mason Bachelder; treasurer, Mrs. Charles A. Clapp; executive committee, Mrs. James B. Jones, Miss Susan Richards, Mrs. George W. Baker, Mrs. George A. Miles and Miss Annie Jones; auditor, Mrs. R. R. Kendall.

The club is to be known as the Twentieth Century Club and will hold its meetings on the first and third Monday of each month.

GEORGE E. PORTER.

A Leading Business Man of Weymouth Died Suddenly.

Heart Disease the Cause. The Community Shocked and Grieved.

On Monday evening at about half past seven Mr. George Edward Porter of Weymouth died suddenly at his home on Front street Weymouth, of heart disease.

Mr. Porter was about his business during the day and apparently in his usual health. He went down to the neighboring grocery store after tea for a chat and a pleasant word as it has been his custom to do often. While there he complained of feeling ill and was assisted to his home where in a short time he passed away without pain or suffering.

The death of Mr. Porter creates another void in the ranks of Weymouth's leading business men and his loss will be keenly felt by everyone. He was widely known as an honorable gentleman with a kindly heart and genial temperament.

Since the death of his son Edgar, a few years since, Mr. Porter has had to carry the entire burden of his business as a manufacturer of fine boots and shoes, and while he has borne the added duties with his accustomed cheerfulness it must have been an added strain in his advanced years.

George Edward Porter was born in Weymouth and was 68 years, 19 days old at the time of his death. He was the son of the late Whitcomb Porter. He received his education in the public schools and early entered business. He began the manufacture of boots and shoes at Quincy, but afterward removed to Weymouth. He was first employed, however, at the factory of the late Charles E. Hunt. After a brief business experience in Quincy he associated himself in business with Mr. Frank E. White making boots, and after a short time he became associated with the late Chapin Thayer and continued with him until Mr. Thayer's decease. His son Edgar was taken in as a partner and in 1890 the Thayer factory being too small for the growing business, the factory formerly occupied by the late Darius Smith was bought and large additions were made. The firm name was Geo. E. Porter & Co.

In 1848 he married Amanda Cushing, and to them a family of six children were born of whom four are now living.

He was a member of the First Universalist society and was one of the promoters of the Village Improvement association, being always interested in public affairs. He was a past master of Delta Lodge, Masons, and was president of the South Shore Masonic Mutual Relief association. He also was a member of Crescent lodge, Odd Fellows, of East Weymouth.

He leaves a widow, one son and three daughters, Dr. Charles of Canton; Edith, wife of Rev. Mr. Crossly of Framingham; Alice and Susie, who sadly mourn the kind and helpful husband and father.

The funeral will be held today at 1.30 o'clock p. m.

THIRD YEAR.

Fish and Game Club, East Weymouth.

No organization has ever been started in Weymouth which has had a more phenominal success than the Fish and Game club of East Weymouth.

A little more than two years ago a handful of men met together to devise some way of protecting the fish in the river and to stop the wanton killing of robins and other song birds.

At this gathering the Fish and Game club was formed with nineteen members and James L. Lincoln was chosen its first president. The club immediately found favor with the people, its growth was marvelous and it now has a membership of nearly two hundred embracing every class of society and nearly every business man in the place.

In the two years of its existence the club has practically stopped the killing of robins and has protected the river to such an extent that seining is a thing of the past and plenty of smelts a thing of the present.

By its efforts the club has secured an appropriation of $10,000 for river improvements and a survey has been made and work will be pushed early the coming season.

The club has further distinguished itself by holding several of the most successful Ladies Nights and social events ever held in the place and on last Fourth of July got up a trade and society parade such as has never been witnessed in town.

Last Saturday night the annual meeting of the club was held and it starts on its third year under most favorable circumstances. Its bills are paid and it has money in the treasury.

James L. Lincoln was re-elected president but thought the honor should be divided among the members and two terms were enough for one man and he accordingly declined after which the following board was elected: Douglas M. Easton, president; M. E. Hawes, vice pres.; E. Q. S. Litchfield, secretary and treasurer; J. L. Lincoln, E. F. Cushing, E. L. Newcomb and G. M. Pratt executive committee, the above with the addition of A. L. Flint were chosen a committee to make arrangements for a "Ladies Night" which will embrace a banquet, entertainment and social dance and will probably be held on the night of Friday, Dec. 18.

WHY LADIES LIKE COFFEE.

Though Many Admit It Hurts Them.

Many ladies have so great a liking for coffee for breakfast that the meal seems flat and unsavory without it; but the muddy complexion which is almost a sure accompaniment, is a great trial and the question is seriously discussed many and many times over in one's mind, whether it is possible to give over the coffee and gradually get back the lost complexion, or keep on with the coffee and get on with the bad skin and make the best of it.

The disordered stomach and liver sometimes bring on more serious troubles. To quit the use of coffee is the only true relief, it contains the same poisonous alkaloids as tobacco, strychnine and morphine, although less in volume. One can use the delicious food drink, Postum Cereal, at meals and never miss the coffee. It browns the deep seal-brown of Mocha and takes on the rich golden-brown of old Java when cream is added. It is made by the Postum Cereal Co. Lim. of Battle Creek, Michigan, purely and wholly of the nourishing grains intended by the Creator for man's subsistence. The pungent taste so well liked in strong coffee is retained in Postum.

Nature quickly recovers when coffee is left off and the natural health coffee is used in its place. Healthful sleep is again enjoyed and nerves, stomach, liver, bowels and heart cease their complaining when the disturbing cause is withdrawn.

These are great big live facts worthy the attention of anyone who cares for the exquisite fun of being perfectly well.

Beware of the fraudulent imitations of the original Postum Cereal Grain coffee. Insist on Postum.

The Ideal Panacea.

James L. Francis, Alderman, Chicago, says: "I regard Dr. King's New Discovery as an Ideal Panacea for Coughs, Colds and Lung Complaints, having used it in my family for the last five years, to the exclusion of physician's prescriptions or other preparations."

Rev. John Burgus, Keokuk, Iowa, writes: "I have been a Minister of the Methodist Episcopal Church for 50 years or more, and have never found anything so beneficial, or that gave me such speedy relief as Dr. King's New Discovery." Try this Ideal Cough Remedy now. Trial Bottles Free at the Drug Store of J. E. Connell, Weymouth; Geo. M. Hoyt, E. Weymouth; L. T. Brown, So. Weymouth; F. A. Smith, Braintree.

Sleep for Sale.

If you want to travel all the way to old age, without missing connections at any stage of the journey, it is absolutely necessary that you sleep soundly at night. Sleep is the medicine of nature, and you can afford to snap your fingers at work if you can command sleep. No argument is so potent to this end as the soft and soothing surface of one of our hand made Enterprise Laid Hair Mattresses. Understand, this is not a common mattress. It is as unlike the mattress on which you are now sleeping, as night is unlike day. Life is short at best, and we fail to know of one thing that will give such absolute and continuous comfort as one of those mattresses.

—The Union Literary circle will meet with Mrs. R. L. Hunt, Tuesday evening, Dec. 1st. Quotations miscellaneous.

—Little Nathaniel Bradley Blanchard made his appearance in the world on Nov. 20th to gladden the hearts of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Blanchard.

—William Clark of Braintree has taken a position in the office of the Weymouth and Braintree Publishing Company

—The platform around the depot has received long needed repairs this week.

—The second eleven of the Weymouth High school went to Milton Saturday and played the second eleven of the Milton High school. Neither side scored. Tuesday, the North Highs played the South High eleven at Institute park and the game resulted in a tie score of 6 to 6.

—District Deputy Grand Master Frank H. Mason of the 25th Masonic district, accompanied by the members of his suite, paid his annual official visit to Delta Lodge of Masons, Tuesday evening. There was a large number of visiting Masons present from Quincy, Hingham, Braintree, Cohasset, Abington, Rockland, all parts of Weymouth and other towns. The "Fellow Craft" degree was worked on one candidate and the work was followed by a banquet and speech making.

—Otis Hollis has taken a position with Expressman A. W. Baker.

—Horace Smith, who has been confined to the house by illness, is rapidly recovering.

—Louis Bates is making rapid progress on the cellar for his new house. He intends converting the old blacksmith shop into a stable.

—Frederick Harris has moved into the Colson house on Franklin street.

—Phillip Trufant of Abington was in town this week visiting friends.

—E. E. Richards is home from a business trip through the west.

—Michael Corridan had his thum badly jamed by being caught in a door a few days ago.

—The fair at the lecture room of the Union Congregational church will be held next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings.

—A union Thanksgiving service was held at the First Universalist church yesterday. The service was well attended. Rev. W. J. Kelly pastor of the M. E. church, East Braintree, delivered a sermon appropriate to the day.

—Frederick Harris has accepted a position as travelling salesman for a wholesale grocery house in Boston.

—Joseph Arnington of Everett a former principal of the Hunt school was in town Tuesday and attended the visitation of Delta lodge of Masons, of which he is a member.

—The young son of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Wilder who has been ill with typhoid fever is much better.

—Mr. and Mrs. H. L. White of Brockton were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Hunt Thanksgiving Day.

—Liquor officer Thomas Fitzgerald arrested a trio of drunks at Lincoln square Wednesday afternoon.

—A large number from this place attended the Firemen's Ball at Braintree, Wednesday evening.

—Next Sunday will be the first Sunday in Advent, and during that season Rev. William Hyde of Trinity church, Weymouth will preach special sermons appropriate to the season. Next Sunday his subject in the morning will be, "The Second Coming of Christ a Necessity," and the evening subject will be "Worldliness in its Relation to Advent."

—Miss Agnes Hyde read at Monument Hall, Charlestown on Thanksgiving eve., Nov. 25.

—The Weymouth club was regaled yesterday by a box of fine cigars, the Thanksgiving gift of Druggist Harlow.

—Miss Annie F. Loud received a large and handsome medal from the government for music sent by her to the World's Fair at Chicago. The prize was for music by American composers. The medal has been long delayed by some mistake in her address which was finally advertised for. It is superbly gotten up and came in a very handsome case. Miss Loud had no idea she was competing for any prize but thought she was simply doing her duty in adding to the display of music by American composers and the medal is therefore a pleasant surprise.

—Cards of invitation to the wedding of Miss Ella C. Carpenter of Plymouth to Mr. Leon Krasinski of Boston have been issued by Miss Jennie Paty of Plymouth for December third.

—Miss Trask and Miss Robertina Trask spent Thanksgiving with their mother at Medford.

—Since Saturday evening managers of the raffle booths have been doing a very thriving business. Many dollars have changed hands and many beer kegs have been emptied.

—Walter White has recently moved into Jason Smith's residence on Front street. Mrs. White will for the present care for Mr. Smith, one of our oldest and most respected citizens, who has the past year been a great sufferer with inflammatory rheumatism.

—On Sunday at the Union church the sermon on "Reserve Power in Religion" was listened to with close attention. The Rev. Mr. Brooks of Fitchburg was an interesting speaker and with many practical and helpful words illustrated the need of a reserve force in character that should be sufficiently strong to overcome sudden temptation and to bear sharp trial. As Christ from his reserve force answered the tempter with selections from Scripture, so we should have a knowledge of the bible and its truths to overcome and slay evil with good.

Letter From Nebraska.

Fremont, Nebraska, Nov. 9, 1896.

Mr. Editor:

We are all glad that McKinley was elected, but feel ashamed of this state for the way she voted. It is a shame for this state to place herself on record as upholding the silver platform, when she has had so much aid from the eastern states, and I hope that if she ever needs help again, she will get it from some of the other states of her class, and not hope to have the East help her out.

This county went heavy for McKinley, and had the balance of the state done half as well we would not have had anything to be ashamed of.

I hope that things will now go on so that in time the East will forget the manner in which this state has voted, and that in the general prosperity of the country, we will at least feel a little of the good results, and force the Pops to own up to the fact that we have done a good job in placing our man in charge of this Nation.

B. W. BURRELL.

The wife of Mr. Leonard Wells, of East Brimfield, Mass., had been suffering from neuralgia for two days, not being able to sleep or hardly keep still, when Mr. Holden, the merchant there, sent her a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and asked that she give it a thorough trial. On meeting Mr. Wells the next day he was told that she was all right, the pain had left her within two hours, and that the bottle of Pain Balm was worth $5.00 if it could not be had for less. For sale at 50 cents per bottle.

LADIES' AID SOCIETY, NO. 31.

The Ladies' Aid Society auxiliary to James L. Bates Camp S. of V. held a most pleasing gathering in G. A. R. hall, East Weymouth, Monday night. At the conclusion of the routine business of the society the company which included visitors from J. L. Bates Camp, Reynolds Post 58 G. A. R, Reynolds Relief Corps and others repaired to the banquet hall where about ninety people sat down to well laden tables. After the supper the party adjourned to the main hall, Mrs. Frank A. Richards, president of the society, resumed the gavel and after a pretty speech of welcome gave a pretty entertainment as follows: song, "The Sailor's Grave," Mr. Bowker; bone solo, Master Ralph Flint; song, "White sails Come and Go," Miss Eva Sherman; recitation, "The Dandy Fifth," Miss Nella Hayden; guitar solo, Miss Baldwin. After brief remarks by a number of visitors all joined in singing America and thus closed an enjoyable evening.

WOMAN'S RELIEF CORPS.

A reception will be tendered Mrs. Agnes Hitt of Indianapolis, Ind., national president of the W. R. C., on Wednesday afternoon and evening, Dec. 2, in Berkeley hall, Odd Fellows' building corner of Tremont and Berkeley streets, Boston.

Among those who will accompany the national president are Mrs. Kate B. Sherwood, and Mrs. Emma R. Wallace, past national president, and Mrs. Louise Barnum Robbins, secretary of the National Council of Women of the United States.

The afternoon reception will be from 4 to 6 o'clock. The evening reception will take place from 7.30 to 10 o'clock, and it is hoped that all who can possibly attend, will be present in the evening, as this reception will be of a more general character.

Arrangements have been made with a caterer to furnish luncheon from 6 to 7 p. m. in an adjoining room. Tickets for the same, fifty cents, and those wishing them will send to Mrs. Sara E. Cain not later than Monday, Nov. 30th.

Members of Post 58 are invited to be present, and it is hoped members of the two orders will gladly avail themselves of this opportunity to meet the distinguished guests.

So Sudden.

Gushing Young Man (taking elderly spinster into his confidence)—Miss Nellalong, I have written a poem, addressed "To a Young Lady." Let me read it to you:

"For love of you, dear Hazel, I—"

Elderly Spinster (simpering)—Law, Mr. Spoonamore! My eye is not hazel! It's dark brown! — Chicago Tribune.

Well-Directed Sympathy.

The German sexton of a suburban church, listening a moment to an amateur performer in behalf of some local guild, was heard to remark:

"Dot makes me sorry for dot biano."

"Why not for the people?" a bystander asked.

"Der peebles can git avay," was the answer. "Der biany musht shday."—Boston Courier.

Made of the Right Stuff.

"What are your qualifications for an umpire?" asked the president of the league.

"I fell down an elevator shaft, was run over by a motor car, dropped out of a balloon and rode ten miles on a cyclone. I'm in fair condition yet."

"You're engaged for next season."—Detroit Free Press.

Differences.

"They say that human nature is always the same," said the middle-aged lady. "But I don't think so."

"What's the reason?" asked her niece.

"Twenty years ago girls read magazines and did needle work. Now they study a road map and learn to use a monkey wrench."—Washington Star.

THE CINEMATOGRAPHE.

A Wonderful Invention in the Line of Photography.

It Reproduces Moving Objects and the Play of the Human Features with Startling Faithfulness to Life.

The vogue of "the moving photographs" became pronounced, and thousands who had hitherto kept away from variety theaters crossed the doors of those places of amusement to behold the newest scientific achievement. Straightway countless new machines were put out, and the curiosity to witness the vitascope and cinematographe pictures grew apace. There are two dozen of these mechanical reproductive inventions now, and the returns are not all in by a good deal. Among the best known are the cinematographe, the vitascope, the phantoscope, the kineoptikon, the animatographe and the eidoloscope.

The secret of all these contrivances is photography. It is not unnatural, therefore, that the men who have succeeded best should be photographers. The Lumieres, who gave the cinematographe to the world, hit upon their discovery two years ago, and since then they have been reaping a golden harvest. There is no need to thrash over the old straw about priority of invention, and it matters little whether Lumiere or Edison was first in the field. The last twelvemonth Lumiere & Sons have acquired a world-wide reputation through the cinematographe. The cinematographe has recently, by special invitation, been privately exhibited before Emperor Francis Joseph and the imperial court in Vienna, at the Elysee in Paris, before President Faure, his family and official household, and also before the various courts of Europe.

About 12 years ago the heads of this firm were almost unknown, even in their own city of Lyons, France. But from a small business they have, by their inventive skill and progressive methods, advanced until they now stand among the leading houses in the world. In their works they made the highest class of supplies and scientific appliances used in photography. The financial success resulting from their skill and enterprise is, perhaps, best shown by saying that they now employ hundreds of hands, and that their stock commands 500 per cent. premium—representing nearly $4,000,000.

The foundation of the Lumieres' fortune and the explanation of the superiority of the cinematographe rest in the accidental discovery of a composition that produced peculiarly sensitive plates. This composition has been kept a secret, but it proved so much better than all others that they gave up photography and devoted their entire attention to the manufacture of sensitive plates. Subsequently experiments led to the invention of a toy cinematographe, which they perfected about two years ago. Then they realized the possibilities of the machine and gave the first public exhibition in Lyons, France, December 26, 1895.

The cinematographe consists of a small box about eight by ten by four inches, and the entire mechanism is a series of reels upon which the long band of sensitive film is wound rapidly behind a set of five magnifying lenses. On these bands are a series of photographs, each one scarcely larger than a postage stamp, which are reflected on a white screen by means of a powerful electric light, in such rapid succession as to reproduce all the infinite and varied movements of nature.

The bands of sensitive film are about 18 yards long and contain from 1,800 to 2,000 pictures. They are made of celluloid and gelatine, which are covered with the preparation before mentioned, and so delicate is the material that it rolls up into a box about three inches in diameter. Yet it is so tough that it can be handled with perfect freedom, being, to quote the language of the operator, "strong as a watch spring."

The tiny pictures, when magnified through the various lenses, cover a space on the stage 14 by 18 feet.

The powerful light which throws the picture on the screen is obtained by the ordinary carbons used in the arc lamps, being arranged in a different manner. Instead of the two carbons being placed the one perpendicular to the other, they are placed obliquely, the positive carbon being slightly behind the negative and being hollowed out in such manner as to form a natural reflector. By this means an unusually intense concentrated ray of light is obtained, which is an important factor in the distinctness of the pictures. The occasional flickering is caused by unsteadiness of the current, and not by any defect in the cinematographe.

The camera by means of which the pictures are taken is just the same size as the box by which they are reflected, and the pictures are taken in the same manner. The sensitive film is placed inside of a perfectly light-proof box and unwound before the camera by means of hand reels, the same as when showing the pictures. The length of time taken to secure one picture is about a minute and a half, so that the exposures are made at the rate of about 20 per second. In the case of very rapid motion it is necessary to turn the crank quicker, and in slow motions slower, so that this time varies. This explains why some pictures last longer than others. Only one person is employed by the Lumieres to take these photographs. This is Alexander Promio, who has the reputation of being the greatest scentific photographer in all Europe. Every view shown through this instrument has been taken by him in person, and he has traveled over Europe, Asia, the northern portion of Africa and America in the short space of six months, taking an average of 12 daily. The largest number of pictures ever taken by Promio in one day was 32, being all different views of the coronation of the czar of Russia.—Chicago Post.

Not Flattering.

"When I grow up," said little Jack to his father, "I'm going to be just like you, papa."

"Good boy to say so," said his father.

"Well, I mean it," said Jack. "What a jolly time you do have with mamma always about to wait on you!"—Answers.

Trifled with Her Feelings.

"My husband played me a mean trick yesterday."

"What was it?"

"He told me folding-beds were selling down town at 49 cents each."

"Well?"

"When I got down there they were hammocks."—Chicago Record.

From His Point of View.

"Of course," he said, "ef Sairy's mind is sot, we'll have to git her a bicycle, but, durn me—!"

He paused and scowled angrily.

"—ef I see the use of payin' $100 jest fer an excuse fer wearin' pants."—Chicago Post.

It Was a Bargain.

"Those undershirts I bought here last month," he began.

"I remember it," said the clerk. "It was a great bargain. Do you find them warm enough?"

"They were warm enough when I first put them on, but I didn't think to inquire about them this morning."

"Inquire about them?"

"Yes. Ever since they were washed the baby has been wearing them. Now, if you have anything that isn't quite so much of a bargain and is a little more likely to remain my size I'd like to see it."—Chicago Post.

starving children

There are children without food. They cry for it, and are not answered. The pity of it! But often nature cries out in other ways that her children need nourishment. Is your child thin; actually poor in flesh? Does it get no benefit from its food? Then give something which produces flesh and makes rich blood.

Scott's Emulsion

of Cod-liver Oil, with Hypophosphites does more than this. It changes the unhealthy action to one of health, thus removing the cause. It acts on the nervous system, which controls all the processes of the body, toning it up into sound and vigorous activity. It is food for growing bone and brain. It makes the thin plump; the pale, ruddy; the weak, strong; it feeds and cures.

SCOTT'S EMULSION has been indorsed by the medical profession for twenty years. (Ask your doctor.) This is because it is always palatable—always uniform—always contains the purest Norwegian Cod-liver Oil and Hypophosphites.

GOSSIP OF DAME FASHION

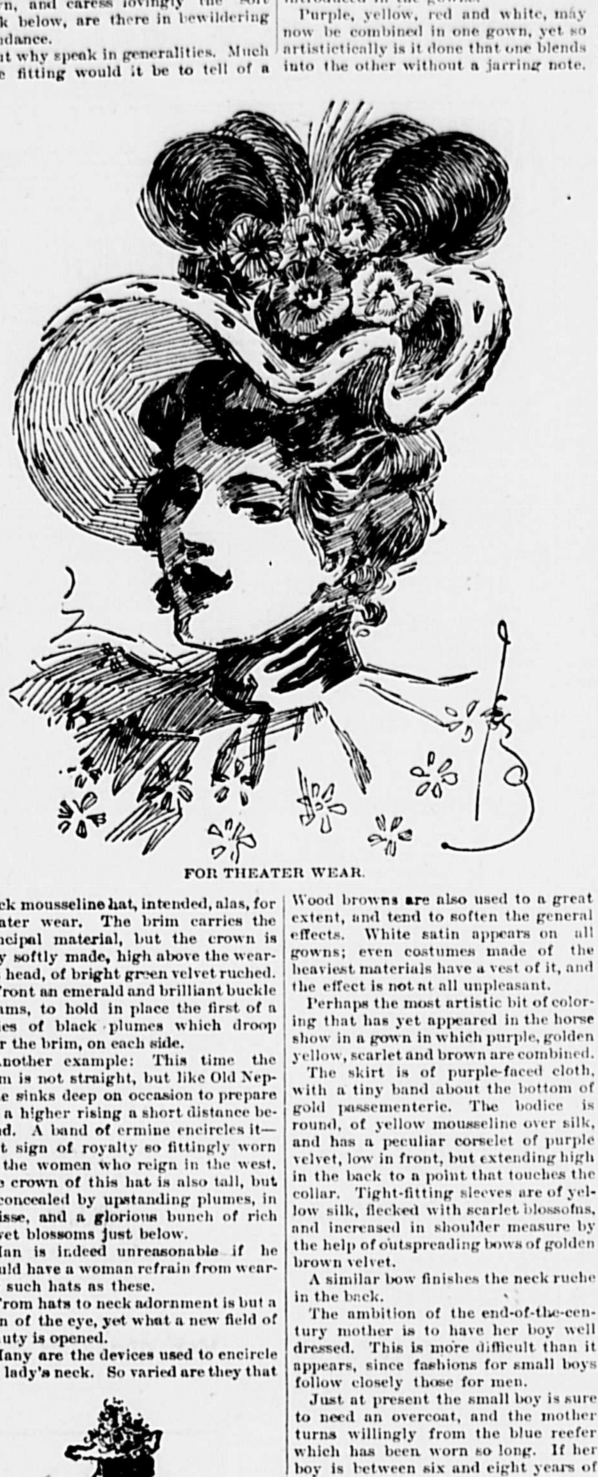
Large Hats That Are Wondrous in Size and Beauty.

To Encircle My Lady's Neck—Ruches and Wired Tabs—Overcoats for Little Men—What the Horse Show Revealed.

Now that the election excitement is well over, woman once more turns her mind to thoughts of costumery. She finds that during the hot fight, the milliner has not been idle; she finds small hats a plenty, that sit bewitchingly on the head, adorned with much glitter and many wings; but the magnificence of headgear lies in those of large size. These hats all have large crowns, and much trimming. Plumes that rear their heads even high above the high crown, and caress lovingly the soft cheek below, are there in bewildering abundance.

But why speak in generalities. Much more fitting would it be to tell of a black mousseline hat, intended, alas, for theater wear. The brim carries the principal material, but the crown is very softly made, high above the wearer's head, of bright green velvet ruched. In front an emerald and brilliant buckle gleams, to hold in place the first of a series of black plumes which droop over the brim, on each side.



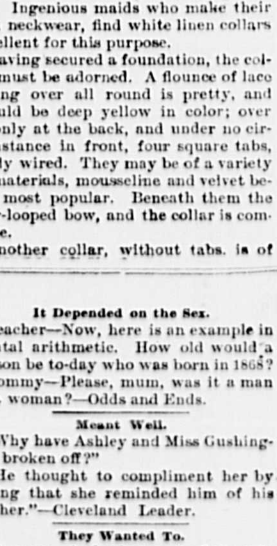
FOR THEATER WEAR.

Another example: This time the brim is not straight, but like Old Neptune sinks deep on occasion to prepare for a higher rising a short distance beyond. A band of ermine encircles it—that sign of royalty so fittingly worn by the women who reign in the west. The crown of this hat is also tall, but is concealed by upstanding plumes, in cerisse, and a glorious bunch of rich velvet blossoms just below.

Man is indeed unreasonable if he would have a woman refrain from wearing such hats as these.

From hats to neck adornment is but a turn of the eye, yet what a new field of beauty is opened.

Many are the devices used to encircle my lady's neck. So varied are they that one is obliged to select not that which is prettiest, but the one which would be most missed.



BUILT AROUND A FLOWER.

The bow at the back is still there. Not the same bow, however, but a bow without ends and with four loops that stand outright, like those worn on the turned-up brims of our last summer's hats.

Encircling the neck, as a basis on which to build, is always a stiff, high collar. Ingenious maids who make their own neckwear, find white linen collars excellent for this purpose.

Having secured a foundation, the collar must be adorned. A flounce of lace falling over all round is pretty, and should be deep yellow in color; over it, only at the back, and under no circumstance in front, four square tabs, stiffly wired. They may be of a variety of materials, mousseline and velvet being most popular. Beneath them the four-looped bow, and the collar is complete.

Another collar, without tabs, is of green velvet and has three large silver buckles in front

Buying ruching by the yard recalls old times, and yet ruchings were never quite as they are now. The up-to-date ruche may be of any delicate color—pink, blue, yellow, green—and is fully three inches in width. It sells for about $2.50 a yard, and half a yard is sufficient for one dress. Ruching must be put only around the back of the collar—a quarter of a yard is sufficient for that—and in the back of the sleeves.

One rule must be strictly adhered to—sleeves invariably carry waist decorations that are the collar in miniature.

The horse show has brought to light a new fad among fashionables. It is no less than to select a flower, and build a gown around it, using its color as a foundation. Autumn foliage will play an important part in house party entertainments, and its colors will be largely introduced in the gowns.

Purple, yellow, red and white, may now be combined in one gown, yet so artistically is it done that one blends into the other without a jarring note.

Wood browns are also used to a great extent, and tend to soften the general effects. White satin appears on all gowns; even costumes made of the heaviest materials have a vest of it, and the effect is not at all unpleasant.

Perhaps the most artistic bit of coloring that has yet appeared in the horse show in a gown in which purple, golden yellow, scarlet and brown are combined. The skirt is of purple-faced cloth, with a tiny band about the bottom of gold passementerie. The bodice is round, of yellow mousseline over silk, and has a peculiar corselet of purple velvet, low in front, but extending high in the back to a point that touches the collar. Tight-fitting sleeves are of yellow silk, flecked with scarlet blossoms, and increased in shoulder measure by the help of outspreading bows of golden brown velvet.

A similar bow finishes the neck ruche in the back.

The ambition of the end-of-the-century mother is to have her boy well dressed. This is more difficult than it appears, since fashions for small boys follow closely those for men.

Just at present the small boy is sure to need an overcoat, and the mother turns willingly from the blue reefer which has been worn so long. If her boy is between six and eight years of age, she may buy him a reefer of gray chinchilla, with a narrow, turnover velvet collar. Such a coat costs from $12 to $15, and is simply irresistible.

After the boy has passed his ninth year, many coats are available. Particularly attractive are the faced cloth and covert top-coats in tan. They come in several qualities and sell from eight to fourteen dollars.

They are made exactly like the top-coats worn by men, have enough pockets to be acceptable to the small boy, and are finished with strap seams.

These coats, however, are totally unfit for school wear, and the average mother will turn from them with a sigh.

Let her take heart and examine those which the salesman is now showing. They are of rough cheviot, mainly brown in color. They are lined with a light, checked flannel material throughout, making them doubly warm. The sleeves have satin linings, the collar is velvet, and the pockets are numerous. In every way are they ideal coats for boys. About $12 will buy such a coat, and it may be depended upon to last three winters.

And the small boy, if ten years or over, wears a high linen collar and a sporty tie.

THE LATEST.

Human Tears as Medicine.

A physician who has just returned from a visit to Persia says that the Persians still believe that human tears are a remedy for certain chronic diseases. At every funeral the bottling of mourners' tears is one of the chief features of the ceremonies. Each of the mourners is presented with a sponge with which to mop off his face and eyes, and after the burial these are presented to the priest, who squeezes the tears into bottles which he keeps. This custom is one of the oldest known in the east, and has probably been practiced by the Persians for thousands of years. Mention is made of it in the Old Testament.

A Chance for Jorkins.

"These are scathing political times when it behooves every man to be up and doing!" said Jorkins at breakfast.

He Took It Coolly.

"Oh, Henry," exclaimed Mrs. Younghusband, breathlessly, "I have something terrible to tell you. Baby has swallowed your shaving brush."

"Oh, that's all right," responded the brute; "it was worn out, and I was going to get a new one, anyhow."—Tit-Bits.

Understood at Last.

She had bought some bric-a-brac, and her husband was inspecting her purchases. One of them was a small Asiatic idol, with an especially grotesque figure and an exceptionally hideous leer.

"Is that your idea of beauty?" he said.

"There's no doubt at all that it is very artistic," she answered, with a little indignation.

"Well, if that's what you consider attractive, I can at last understand how you came to want me to wear the neckties you gave me on my birthday."—Washington Star.

HOW TO PREVENT CROUP.

Some Reading That Will Prove Interesting to Young Mothers. How to Guard Against the Disease.

Croup is a terror to young mothers and to post them concerning the cause, first symptoms and treatment is the object of this item. The origin of croup is a common cold. Children who are subject to it take cold very easily and croup is almost sure to follow. The first symptom is hoarseness; this is soon followed by a peculiar rough cough, which is easily recognized and will never be forgotten by one who has heard it. The time to act is when the child first becomes hoarse. If Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is freely given all tendency to croup will soon disappear. Even after the croupy cough has developed it will prevent the attack. There is no danger in giving this remedy for it contains nothing injurious.

Hints to Merchants and Clerks.

Ask leave to offer to your employer hints to better the business, if any come to mind; they will not come amiss to either of you.

Civility is a constant and general debt, easy of current settlement at a fair profit in good feeling.

Neglect to pay wages when due would be considered outrageous; but the wage-earners sometimes are neglectful between pay-days.

In all your dealings tell the truth only. A reputation for strict truthfulness and fairness is a great possession.

One should dress as well as possible on his means, and in quiet taste

"Waste not, want not," is one of the best old sayings, and has a very wide application, as you will see on thinking it over.

When a man sells his time his best endeavor belongs with it for steady use.

Regard for the feelings of others is a most valuable quality in all kinds of business, and can be cultivated

A man's work is hardly worth having when he has to be watched.

A still tongue in a wise head.

"Who breaks, pays," say the French; and that is a good rule everywhere.

Be scrupulously frank and fair in all your dealings. If you have not the trait by nature it will come by practice, and be a comfort to you.

Good workers are fairly sure of betterment, unless they get the "bighead."

Without discretion, force is risky, and likely to do more harm than good.

What is worth doing at all is worth doing well.

Consistency is the boast of fools.

Remember that a man is paid for what he does, not for what he intends to do.

The man that gets mad loses.

As the years go by, the best workers get the best places, naturally.

Gravity is a good counterfeit of wisdom.

No one should stop work without cause and consent, nor stay away from it without giving reason.

Let no needless light be kept shining, nor have any matches elsewhere than in metal boxes.

Good behavior is catching.

Patience and good temper are capital.

Avoid levity; it often clouds merit.

Self-respect tends to win respect of others.

Do not watch the clock at close of day. Stick to your work, and you may depend on some slouch giving the signal to quit.

Do not be any quicker to stop than you were to start.

Barring accidents, your future is in your own hands to make good or ill. What you do this very day will count.

MOUNTAIN LEAKS HONEY

A Natural Storehouse of Sweetness in Pennsylvania.

On Warm Days the Rocks Drip with the Sweets of the Great Beehive Within—Stories Told by Hunters.

Kishacoquillas gap is located in the Tussey, or Seven mountain, range, and is one of the many breaks through this wild chain of mountains leading from Penn's valley into Stone valley.

The Seven mountain range is perhaps the wildest system in the state of Pennsylvania. More than one experienced hunter and woodsman has lost his way in these mountains, and spent weary days wandering around before he found his way to civilization again, and some even failed to return to it, and it is the general belief that their bones lie bleak and bare in some dark ravine of the Tussey range.

Years ago current report said that in one of the least explored of the many fastnesses of these mountains there was a bee hive in the rocks which contained enough honey to make a man rich. The story was in effect as follows: Some eight or ten miles north of the gap is one of the deepest ravines inclosing the wildest spot in the entire chain of mountains. Precipitous cliffs to the height of several hundred feet rise on either side, the whole almost completely covered with a dense growth of small shrubbery and trailing vines, while away down at the bottom, so deep that the sun hardly penetrates, owing to the narrowness of the gorge, trickles a small stream or rivulet.

On the north side of this gorge, about half way up the rock side of the cliff, is a fissure in the rock presenting an opening perhaps 20 feet long and varying in width from two to five feet. Though there is no accurate way of knowing the depth of this fissure or cave in the rock side, it has been estimated at anywhere from 30 to 50 feet, perhaps even more, and possibly with the dimensions of a large chamber.

In this rift in the rock a swarm of bees years ago made their home, and there they have continued to abide, multiply and store up honey until three years ago, when the last report of them, as given by a lost hunter, stated that so numerous had they become that there was one perfect column or string of bees fully a foot thick continually going and coming from the stone hive.

Parties who claim to have seen it aver that on a warm day the sweet fluid, melted by the hot rays of the sun in the brief time its rays penetrate the opening, would trickle down the side of the cliffs and fall in pools at the bottom.

Several parties attempted to dislodge the bees and get at the hive of honey, but owing to the difficulty in getting at the opening they were never successful, as the bees always drove them away.

A few days ago a stranger, who claimed to hail from the eastern part of the state, and who had been trudging these mountains in quest of the outlook for game on several of the game preserves located here, stopped a few minutes at the gap, and while here told of seeing the beehive in the rocks. The man was so excited over the discovery that he could hardly tell a complete story, but the facts related by him are so closely allied to the current report of years that there is no doubt that he found the wonderful honey deposit.

The man averred that the bees going and coming looked like an immense tar rope at least two feet in diameter, and so constantly did they keep at their work that in the hour or more he watched them there was not one break in the flying string of bees.

To dislodge the bees and secure the honey would, however, be an almost impossible task, at the very least a Herculean one. From the bottom of the ravine to where the rift in the rock occurs is fully 75 feet, and from the top down to the rift is almost an equal distance. The rocky side is very nearly straight up and down, and the small brush and wild vines with which the side is almost entirely covered are not embedded securely enough in the rocks to admit of one climbing either up or down them as a support.

There is only one way by which the cavern could be reached, and then it would be at the risk of destroying the rich store therein, and that is to blow the mountain side up with dynamite. But even this mode of attack would not rid the place of all the bees, and when once their home was destroyed all interlopers would want to seek some secure retreat. The stranger averred that he would find a way to get the bees out and get at the store of honey.

He declared his intention of returning to make the attempt, at least, and what the results will be remain to be seen.

Five, four, or even two tons of honey is a large pile of the sweet stuff, and the smaller amount, if it could be put on the market in anything like a good condition, at the present price of 15 cents per pound, would realize just $600 for the successful bee hunter, a very clever sum to pull from a rift in the mountain side.—Philadelphia Times.

Canned Corn Fritters.

When fresh corn is not in season a good imitation may be made from canned corn. Chop it very fine, and if dry add two tablespoonfuls of milk to one can of corn, and then proceed as with fresh corn. When you are making corn fritters from fresh corn plan to have a corn soup for dinner and thus utilize all the juice that may be left on the cobs.—Albany Journal.
